Abstract: Procedures for the protection of endangered species in the regulatory program of the Corps of Engineers. Because of the increased emphasis being placed on endangered species by the Federal and State resource agencies, the Corps identified a need to provide more definitive guidance on implementing the Endangered Species Act (ESA) in its regulatory program. The Corps is now developing counterpart regulations with the Department of Interior. The regulations will basically bring together various guidance used in the past by both the Corps and DOI. The regulations will include guidance on how the ESA Amendments impact applicants for Federal permits.

Abstract: This regulation will provide for an increase in the fees charged for Department of the Army permits issued pursuant to section 10 of the River and Harbor Act of 1899, section 404 of the Clean Water Act, and section 103 of the Marine Protection Research and Sanctuaries Act; by the Corps of Engineers. This action is being taken after an evaluation of the current fee structure by the Department of Defense Inspector General determined that the fee amounts had not been changed for a significant time. The regulation change will also restructure the fees from "permit fees" to nonrefundable application fees.

Semiannual Regulatory Agenda

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION (ED)

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Office of the Secretary

34 CFR Subtitles A and B

Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations

AGENCY: Department of Education.

ACTION: Publication of the semiannual agenda of Federal regulations.

SUMMARY: The Secretary of Education publishes a Semiannual Agenda of Federal Regulations as required by Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Bulletin No. 89-12 issued under the authority of section 6(b) of Executive Order 12291 (Federal Regulations). The purpose of the agenda is to encourage more effective public participation in the regulatory process by giving the public early information about pending regulatory activities.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Questions or comments related to specific regulations listed in this agenda should be directed to Kenneth C. Depew, Acting Director, Division of Regulations Management, Office of the General Counsel, Department of Education, Room 2131, FOB-6, 400 Maryland Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20202-2241. Telephone: (202) 732-2887.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291, dated February 17, 1981, and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, Pub. L. 96-354, enacted September 19, 1980, require the Department of Education to publish, in October and April of each year, (1) an agenda of regulations that the Department expects to issue, and (2) currently effective regulations that are under review. The agenda includes both notices of proposed rulemaking (NPRMs) currently being drafted and pending final regulations.

Under the authority of Executive Order 12291, the Director of OMB has issued OMB Bulletin No. 89-12, dated July 15, 1989, prescribing the content and structure of the Unified Agenda of Federal Regulations. The Unified Agenda will be issued semiannually and will cover the succeeding 12 months from the date of publication.

For each set of regulations listed, the Agenda provides the title of the document, the type of document, a citation of any rulemaking or other action taken since publication of the most recent Agenda, and planned dates of future rulemaking. In addition, the Agenda provides the following information:

- An abstract, which includes a description of the problem to be addressed, any principal alternatives being considered, and potential costs and benefits of the action.
- An indication of whether the planned action is likely to have significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities as defined by the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601(b)).
- A reference to where a reader can find the current regulations in the Code of Federal Regulations.
- A citation of legal authority.
- The name, address, and telephone number of the contact person at the Department from whom a reader can obtain additional information regarding the planned action.
- An indication if the action is priority and the criteria used in determining the priority status.

If the "Abstract" section of an entry refers readers to the preamble, it means that amendments to those particular regulations would be designed (1) to effect regulatory relief, including reducing paperwork and compliance burdens, improving cost effectiveness, and to the extent possible, vesting greater discretion in State and local agencies; and (2) if necessary, to clarify and simplify requirements governing that program.

The Department will review all regulations to be promulgated to ensure that they reflect the principles set forth in the joint statement issued by the President and the Nation's Governors developed during the course of the Education Summit held on September 27-28, 1989, in Charlottesville, Virginia. Particular attention will be given to increasing flexibility at the State and local levels in the use of Federal funds, in return for greater accountability for increasing the levels of education and training under the Department's programs.

This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department with regard to any specific item on the agenda. Regulatory action in addition to the items listed is not precluded. Dates of future regulatory action are subject to revision in subsequent agendas.

Dated: August 25, 1989.

Edward C. Stringer,

General Counsel.

Regulatory Agenda

AGENCY: Department of Energy.

ACTION: October 1989 regulatory agenda.

SUMMARY: In order to make Government more responsive to the citizens of the United States and to assist in fulfilling the President's commitment to lessen regulatory burdens, the Department of Energy (DOE) is publishing this agenda of DOE rulemakings in progress and proposed rulemakings that DOE foreseeably may issue in the next year. This agenda also includes any rules which are being reviewed within the Department to determine whether to propose modifications and rulemakings and rule reviews which have been completed since the last regulatory agenda in April 1989. It also contains information on any rulemakings which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, and it contains additional data on procurement-related actions.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

General: For further information on the agenda in general, contact: Theodore Wilson or Peter A. Greenlee, Department of Energy, Room 6A-141, Forrestal Building, 1000 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20585, (202) 586-9507.

Specific: For further information about any particular item on the agenda, contact the individual listed under that item.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Covered agencies publish regulatory agendas under Executive Order 12291 in April and October of each year. The Executive order authorizes the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) to set forth standards and procedures for the preparation of these agendas. The October 1989 regulatory agenda has been prepared in accordance with OMB Bulletin No. 89-12.

There are important reasons for preparing this agenda. It is vital to efforts to reduce the burdens of existing and future regulations, to increase agency accountability for regulatory actions, to provide for Presidential oversight of the regulatory process, to minimize duplication and conflict of regulations, and to insure well-reasoned regulations. The Department has made considerable progress in these efforts.

Executive Order 12291 provides that the regulatory agenda may be incorporated with the "regulatory flexibility agenda" required under the Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 602 et seq. The regulatory flexibility agenda must cover any rule which the agency expects to propose or promulgate which is "likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities." Its information requirements are similar to those of the Executive order. The regulatory flexibility agenda required under 5 U.S.C. 602(a) is incorporated in today's notice.

The Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act Amendments of 1988, 41 U.S.C. 402, require publication twice a year of a "Procurement Regulatory Activity Report." As determined by OMB, agency information is now in the agenda for use by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy (OFPP) in producing these reports.

Entries appended to this notice reflect the status of activities as of approximately August 15, 1989. They are divided into categories first by DOE subagency and then according to their stage of rulemaking action: prerule, proposed rulemaking, final rulemaking, or completed action.

Appended entries contain the following information: (1) DOE organizational unit responsible for the regulation; (2) RIN number (that is, the Regulation Indentifier Number assigned by OMB/OIRA); (3) title; (4) significance (that is, whether the regulation appears in the Regulatory Program prepared annually under Executive Order 12498 and, if it does not, whether it is nevertheless a departmental priority); (5) the name, title, address, and telephone number of a person who is knowledgeable about the regulation; (6) effects on small businesses (that is, whether the action is likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of "small entities" as defined by the Regulatory Flexibility Act) and effects on Federal, State, and local governments; (7) CFR citation (that is, portion of the Code of Federal Regulations that will be affected); (8) legal authority (that is, a citation to the section of the United States Code (U.S.C.), Public Law (Pub. L.), or Executive Order (E.O.) that authorizes the regulatory action); (9) abstract (that is, a description of the problem the regulation will address, the regulatory approach under consideration, the alternatives being considered for addressing the problem, and the potential costs and benefits of the action); (10) legal deadline (that is, the statutory or judicial deadline, if any); and (11) timetable (that is, the dates, and citations if applicable, for all past stages and, generally, the date for at least the next stage of the rulemaking). The timetable for completed actions (that is, regulations completed or withdrawn and reviews completed since the preceding agenda) gives the completion date and the citation, if appropriate.

For each procurement-related regulatory action, additional information is provided in the Additional Information data element (Block A): (1) A statement that the action is procurement-related; (2) an indication of whether or not there is a statutory requirement for the action; and (3) an indication of whether or not there is a paperwork burden associated with the action.

Organizational Note: The previous agenda contained two regulatory actions under the "Economic Regulatory Administration" heading. Functions related to these two actions have been transferred to the Assistant Secretary for Fossil Energy. Accordingly, these two actions now are grouped under the "Departmental and Others" heading, which includes actions of the Assistant Secretary.

A draft of this agenda has been transmitted to the Chief Counsel for Advocacy of the Small Business Administration for comment, if any, to fulfill the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 602(b).

DOE's next agenda will be published in April 1990.

Issued in Washington, DC, on September 7, 1989.

Eric J. Fygi,

Acting General Counsel.

Abstract: The Energy Policy and Conservation Act (EPCA), as amended, establishes initial energy-efficiency standard levels for most types of major appliances and generally requires DOE to undergo two subsequent rulemakings, at specified times, to determine whether the extant standard for a covered product should be amended. These products are: refrigerators, refrigerator-freezers, and freezers; room air conditioners; central air conditioners and central air conditioning heat pumps; water heaters; pool heaters; direct heating equipment; furnaces; dishwashers; clothes washers; clothes dryers; kitchen ranges and ovens; and fluorescent lamp ballasts. Other appliances, including television sets, may be regulated by the Department. This rulemaking will review the Abstract: Under the National Energy Conservation Policy Act, DOE has promulgated regulations establishing a methodology for estimating and comparing the life cycle costs of Federal buildings and for determining life cycle cost effectiveness. The Energy Security Act required that the regulations provide for the use of marginal energy costs in the life cycle cost analyses. DOE sought legislative revisions to authorize use of average energy costs rather than marginal costs. Appropriate legislative relief came with the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986. The current rulemaking would update base year prices and energy cost escalation rates based on current average energy cost projections. It would also eliminate the need for Federal Register publication of future annual updates so long as there is no significant change in the method for making average energy cost projections. In addition, the Federal Energy Management Improvement Act requires the Secretary of Energy to establish the discount rate for life cycle costing. The current rulemaking would include the methodology by which the discount rate will be established.

Abstract: Title III of the Energy Conservation and Production Act, as amended, requires the development and promulgation of energy performance standards for new buildings. In order to comply with this requirement, DOE currently is developing voluntary guidelines for the private residential sector and has promulgated interim mandatory standards for the Federal Government. Subpart B develops voluntary standards for new non-Federal residential buildings. 616. ENERGY EFFICIENCY TEST PROCEDURES FOR WATER HEATERS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6293

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 430.22

Abstract: Final test procedures for 13 types of appliances were established during 1978. The test procedures form the basis of manufacturers' representations on the Federal Trade Commission's EnergyGuide label. In February 1984, DOE proposed to establish test procedures for heat pump water heaters and to eliminate the need for the test procedure waiver granted to A.O. Smith for its water heater with a thermal compensatory dip tube. Based on the comments received pursuant to the February 8, 1984 NPRM, the Department prepared a new NPRM published March 13, 1987. This NPRM proposed a single test procedure to cover gas, oil and electric water heaters as well as heat pump water heaters, and extended the test procedures to cover instantaneous type water heaters. In addition to the A.O. Smith matter, the rulemaking would eliminate the need for the test procedure waivers

620. ENERGY CONSERVATION STANDARDS FOR WATER HEATERS; TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6292

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 430.32

Abstract: This action would be a technical amendment, based on water heater test procedure changes in progress (see 1904 - AA12), of the statutory standard for water heaters contained in the National Appliance Energy Conservation Act of 1987 (NAECA), as amended. This amendment could change the way the standard level is measured, but would not change the level of the minimum energy conservation standard itself. NAECA requires amendment of the applicable standard if the Secretary determines that an amended test procedure will alter the measured efficiency of the standard. This technical amendment of the standard is to be completed concurrently with the rulemaking with respect to the amended test procedure.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 10222

Abstract: On April 18, 1983, the Department of Energy (DOE) published a rule which established the Standard Contract for Disposal of Spent Nuclear Fuel and/or High-Level Radioactive Waste (standard disposal contract) to be used by the DOE in furnishing disposal services to the owners or generators of spent nuclear fuel and/or high-level radioactive waste (48 FR 16590). On March 17, 1989, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia (Consolidated Edison Co. et al. v. DOE, No. 88-1194) ruled that the ongoing 1.0 mill per kilowatt hour (1M/KWH) fee in DOE's standard disposal contract should be based on nuclear electricity actually sold rather than net generation of electricity as adopted in the amended final rule of September 17, 1987 (52 FR 35356). This notice publishes for comment amendments to Article I.13, Article VIII.A.1 and B.1, and Appendix G of the standard disposal contract to be consistent with the court's ruling. This amendment is expected to reduce revenues from the ongoing fee about 6 to 8 percent.

Abstract: Legislative changes and economic conditions have made it necessary to modify the regulatory language to comport with Congressional intent of the amended Fuel Use Act. Specifically, it is proposed to remove all language that relates to industrial facilities. The fuel price calculations and inflation indices used in the cost test calculations supporting exemptions based on a lack of alternate fuel at a cost that does not substantially exceed the cost of using imported petroleum will be changed. It also is proposed to insert language that will dramatically decrease the evidence that must be presented to qualify for an FUA exemption when a powerplant certifies to the technical and financial feasibility of using an alternate fuel at a future date.

629. POWERPLANT AND INDUSTRIAL FUEL USE ACT OF 1978; REVISIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 8301 et seq; PL 100-42; 42 USC 7101 et seq; EO 12009

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 500; 10 CFR 501; 10 CFR 503; 10 CFR 504

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Legislative changes and economic conditions have made it necessary to modify the regulatory language to comport with Congressional intent of the amended Fuel Use Act. Specifically, It is proposed to remove all language that relates to industrial facilities. The fuel price calculations and inflation indices used in the cost test calculations supporting exemptions based on a lack of alternate fuel at a cost that does not substantially exceed the cost of using imported petroleum will be changed. It also is proposed to insert language that will dramatically decrease the evidence that must be presented to qualify for an FUA exemption when a powerplant certifies to the technical and financial feasibility of using an alternate fuel at a future date.

630. ● DOE CONTRACTOR ALCOHOL FREE WORKPLACE PROGRAM

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2011 et seq; Atomic Energy Act and Energy Reorganization Act, as amended

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 707

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Will establish comprehensive alcohol abuse prevention policy and program at DOE-owned or -leased operations consistent with DOE responsibility to protect public health and safety and national security. Regulation will address alcohol testing requirements, educational and training programs, counseling and rehabilitation, confidentiality and protection of privacy of employees. Costs incurred will affect cost reimbursement type contracts for managing, operating, construction, and servicing DOE facilities. Benefits will be in establishing a reasonable level of consistency among contractor programs and resultant cost to the Government and in reducing risk of unacceptable damage to security environment, health and safety of employees and the public.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7254; 42 USC 7256; 31 USC 6301 to 6308

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 600

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation establishes standards for program offices to follow in conducting objective merit review of discretionary awards. It addresses problems with inconsistencies among programs and uncertainties about processes within DOE. No costs are apparent. Benefits include consistency and greater public awareness of agency procedures. This regulation also implements OMB-encouraged grants management changes growing out of the Florida Demonstration Project. No costs are apparent. Benefits include less governmental and recipient paperwork and greater recipient efficiency.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2161; 42 USC 2165; 42 USC 2201

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 710

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Revision and amendment of the current administrative procedure is necessary to streamline and shorten the process for resolving questions concerning the eligibility of individuals who are employed by or applicants for employment with DOE contractors, agents, and access permittees of the DOE, individuals who are DOE employees or applicants for DOE employment, and other persons designated by the Secretary of DOE for access to Restricted Data or significant quantities of special nuclear material, or for access to national security information.

655. INDEMNIFICATION OF DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY OFFICIALS AND EMPLOYEES

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7131; 42 USC 7231; 42 USC 7254; 28 CFR 50.15 (a)(7)(iii)

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 1012

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department of Energy does not have a policy for indemnifying its employees who are sued personally and suffer an adverse judgment as a result of conduct taken within the scope of employment. Lawsuits against Federal employees in their personal capacity can constitute a major impediment to the effective conduct of the public's business, since employees faced with the potential of being held personally liable may be inhibited in discharging their duties. To deal with this problem, the Department proposes to establish a policy permitting, but not requiring, the indemnification of an employee who suffers an adverse verdict, judgment, or other monetary award when the actions giving rise to liability were within the scope of his employment and indemnification is in the interest of the Government. This policy would be modeled on a similar policy already adopted by the Department of Justice for its employees.

656. PRODUCTION OR DISCLOSURE OF MATERIAL OR INFORMATION AND PROVISION OF AGENCY WITNESSES IN FEDERAL AND STATE PROCEEDINGS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7254; 5 USC 301; 28 CFR 1621

CFR Citation: 10 CFR 202

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The intent of this regulation is to establish an agency-wide procedure for processing and responding to subpoenas or requests for Department of Energy records or testimony by Department of Energy officers and employees. A regulation intended to fulfill this purpose currently exists. However, relocating its position in the Code of Federal Regulations and some minor language changes would clarify its applicability. In addition, efficient application of the regulation will be promoted by more closely modeling it on the comparable Department of Justice regulation, since the Department of Justice is usually responsible for representing the Department of Energy in such matters. The cost of this action is expected to be de minimis and could effect a savings, since clarification and recodification of the existing regulation may avoid needless litigation.

DOE—OGC — Final Rule Stage

Unified Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, HHS.

ACTION: Publication of unified agenda of regulations.

SUMMARY: The President's February 17, 1981, Executive order (12291) and the Regulatory Flexibility Act of 1980 require the Department to publish an agenda of significant regulations being developed and an indication of those regulatory actions that are being analyzed for their effect on small businesses. The Department published its last agenda on April 24, 1989.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For further inquiries or comments related to specific regulations listed in the agenda, the public is encouraged to contact the appropriate responsible individual. Questions or comments on the overall agenda should be sent to: Charlotte E. Lewis, Regulations Coordinator, Office of the Secretary, Department of Health and Human Services, 200 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20201, Telephone: (202) 245-6824.

W. Keith Lively,

Acting Executive Secretary to the Department.

657. REVISIONS TO "QUALITY OF CARE" EXCLUSION AND PAYMENT DENIAL REGULATIONS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1320a-7(b)(6)(B); 42 USC 1320c-3(a)(2); 42 USC 1320c-5

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1001; 42 CFR 1004; 42 CFR 466

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would revise and consolidate, where feasible, the principal regulations pertaining to "quality of care" exclusions from Medicare and other health care programs. Such exclusions may be based on the furnishing of excessive services, the failure to furnish care that meets professionally recognized standards of medical care, or the failure to properly document medical services. This rulemaking would attempt to make the various OIG regulations relating to such quality of care exclusions consistent with each other, consistent with HCFA's PRO payment denial regulations at 42 FR 466, and consistent with the case law that has been decided in the U.S. Courts of Appeals in recent years.

658. PRINCIPLES FOR DETERMINING COSTS AND COST ALLOCATION PROCEDURES APPLICABLE TO GRANTS, CONTRACTS, AND OTHER AGREEMENTS FOR WORK PERFORMED BY HOSPITALS

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 74, Appendix E; 45 CFR 78

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will revise the Department's current cost principles for research and development activities under grants and contracts with hospitals to make them clearer, more specific, and compatible with cost principles issued by OMB for State and local units of government, educational institutions and nonprofit organizations. The revision will also broaden the coverage of the principles to include all grants, contracts and other agreements with hospitals (except the Medicare & Medicaid programs).

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 1003; 42 CFR 417; 42 CFR 434

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would provide for CMPs for each violation against any risk-sharing organization that: (1) fails substantially to provide medically necessary items and services that are required under the contract; (2) imposes premiums on enrolled individuals in excess of premiums permitted; (3) acts to expel or refuse, or to re-enroll an individual; (4) misrepresents or falsifies information; (5) engages in any practice that would reasonably be expected to have the effect of denying or discouraging enrollment; or, (6) fails to provide for prompt payment of claims for services provided to enrollees. In addition, this rule would authorize the Medicare program to suspend enrollment of individuals in, and payment to a risk-sharing organization that (1) denies medically necessary care to a beneficiary or (2) commits marketing abuses or other violations specified in section 1876(i)(6) of the Social Security Act.

those requirements (with many changes and additions) to a new rule (45 CFR Part 92) that would be virtually identical to the rules of 26 other federal agencies. The same action would also create a mechanism for applying a new set of liberalized rules to research grants. Since all Federal agencies' grants and cooperative agreements would henceforth be subject to identical rules, there should be administrative benefits for multi-award recipients and better understanding of the terms and conditions of awards.

680. IMPLEMENTATION OF THE EQUAL ACCESS TO JUSTICE ACT IN AGENCY PROCEEDINGS

Legal Authority: 5 USC 504(c)(1)

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Equal Access to Justice Act requires agencies to pay attorney fees to parties prevailing against the Government in certain types of administrative proceedings. It requires each agency to issue rules implementing the Act as it applies to these proceedings. As originally enacted, the Act had a sunset clause. A recent statutory amendment eliminated the sunset provision and made other changes in the Act. The instant regulation would amend 45 CFR Part 13 (HHS's regulation implementing the Act) to eliminate the corresponding sunset provision and to make other changes conforming with the statutory changes.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6000 et seq

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, April 30, 1988.

Abstract: This final rule will amend current regulations to implement statutory changes made by passage of Public Law 100-146, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 1987. The final rule will establish a peer review process for the University Affiliated Facilities program, and set forth standards to assure that States supplement and do not supplant program resources.

695. OLD-AGE, SURVIVORS, AND DISABILITY INSURANCE PROGRAM; REVISED MEDICAL CRITERIA FOR DETERMINATION OF DISABILITY; CARDIOVASCULAR SYSTEM

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 1383; 42 USC 405

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.1500ff Appendix 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Sections 4.00 and 104.00 of Appendix 1 of the Disability regulations (404.1501 through 404.1599) describe cardiovascular impairments considered severe enough to prevent an individual from doing any gainful or age-appropriate activities. Because of the advances in medical technologies and practice in this area we anticipate the need to revise the criteria in the Listing of Impairments to bring these sections up to date. The Supplemental Security Income program incorporates by reference and uses the same medical criteria as the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance program.

Abstract: Sections 3.00 and 103.00 of Appendix 1 to the Disability Regulations (404.1501 through 404.1599) describe those respiratory impairments which are considered severe enough to prevent a person from engaging in any gainful or age-appropriate activities. We are proposing revisions to require consideration of the nature and clinical manifestations of respiratory disorders and the limitations such disorders impose on the individual's ability to function. The Supplemental Security Income program incorporates by reference and uses the same medical criteria as the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance programs.

Abstract: Sec. 2615 of Pub. L. 98-369 amended sec. 1127 of the Social Security Act to eliminate loopholes that permitted some people who were paid Old-Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance (OASDI) and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits retroactively to receive more in total benefits for the same period than if they had been paid the benefits when regularly due. The two main changes are: (1) SSI benefits will be reduced where retroactive OASDI benefits have been paid before the SSI benefits. Under prior law, reductions could be made only in retroactive OASDI benefits and only when the retroactive SSI had been paid first. (2) OASDI or SSI benefits payable upon reinstatement following a period of suspension or termination will be reduced by the amount of SSI benefits that would not have been paid if the OASDI benefits had been paid when regularly due. We will amend our regulations to conform to the statutory changes. The program savings to SSA are estimated as $5 million a year.

Abstract: This provision of the law requires us to consider the combined effect of all of a person's impairments in determining disability regardless of whether any single impairment, if considered separately, would be of sufficient severity. If we do find a medically severe combination of impairments, the combined impact of the impairments must be considered throughout the disability determination process. When the combined effect is found to be severe, the person's impairments are evaluated throughout the full sequential evaluation process. We are revising the regulations to explain in greater detail how we consider the combined effect of multiple impairments and what we mean by a severe impairment.

Abstract: The proposed regulation reflects the provisions of the following statutes: (1) Pub. L 97-458 enacted January 12, 1983, which provides that Indian judgement funds held in trust or distributed per capita pursuant to a plan approved by Congress or the Secretary of the Interior are excluded from income and resources under the Supplemental Security Income program (2) Pub. L 98-64 enacted August 2, 1983, which provides for the exclusion of all funds held in trust by the Secretary of the Interior for an Indian tribe and distributed per capita to a member of that tribe and (3) Pub. L 100-241 enacted February 3, 1988, which provides for the exclusion from income and resources of certain items received by an individual Alaska native or descendent of an Alaska native from a native corporation. Some savings in program costs may result from these changes.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 402(x)(1); 42 USC 405

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404D

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing regulations at 20 CFR 404.468(d) provide a vocational rehabilitation exception to the nonpayment of benefits to prisoners provision described at 20 CFR 404.468(a). Under the exception, the nonpayment provision does not apply if a prisoner who is entitled to benefits on the basis of disability is actively and satisfactorily participating in a rehabilitation program which has been specifically approved for the individual by court of law. In addition, the Secretary must determine that the program is expected to result in the individual being able to do substantial gainful activity upon release and within a reasonable time. No benefits will be paid to the prisoner for any month prior to the approval of the program. The proposed regulations would set out more definitive criteria for applying the exception and would define terms, such as "rehabilitation program," "court of law," and "reasonable time," for purposes of applying the exception.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 8 of Pub. L. 99-643 provides that effective for benefits payable for months after May 1986, an underpayment shall be paid to any surviving spouse of a deceased SSI recipient whether or not the spouse was eligible for SSI, if such spouse was living in the same household with the recipient at the time of death, or within the 6 months immediately preceding the month of death, or to the parent(s) of a deceased disabled or blind child who was an SSI recipient if the child was living with the parent(s) at the time of death or within the 6 months immediately preceding the month of death. These proposed regulations would also reflect a policy change that would continue the appeals process (versus automatic dismissal), at the Administrative Law Judge or Appeals Council level, for the survivors' entitlement to an underpayment if they meet certain conditions. The cost estimate for these provisions is estimated to be $2 million per year in program costs and less than $1 million and 30 workyears in administrative expenses.

Abstract: This proposed regulation would establish rules on the evidence an individual must submit with a request to correct the Secretary's record of earnings and state the conditions under which the Secretary will assist the requester in obtaining evidence that establishes such records as incorrect. This proposed regulation would reduce the number of unproductive efforts the agency makes to investigate unsubstantiated assertions that the Secretary's records are incorrect and facilitate the correction process in many cases by relying more upon evidence readily available to the requester.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 1382(a); 42 USC 1382c(f)

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 416.1165

Abstract: Under the current SSI rules, three different formulas are used to calculate the amount of income deemed to an eligible child from his or her ineligible parent(s) when they are living together. The formulas produce different results depending on the type of income (earned versus unearned) and the number of children in the household. This sometimes creates anomalies. The rule would resolve the anomalies by providing that one formula be used regardless of the type of parental income. The formula to be used is the formula now used when the parent(s) has both earned and unearned income.

Under these proposed regulations a State agency would be required to limit the amounts it pays for laboratory tests to the maximum payment level contained in the Health Care Financing Administration's (HCFA) National Limitation Amounts for Laboratory Fee Schedules. Abstract: It is our policy that money borrowed (a loan) is not income for SSI purposes and therefore has no effect on a person's SSI benefits. These proposed regulations will state that only cash transactions may be considered loans. These proposed regulations will also provide that the one-third reduction rule which applies when a person who lives in another's household and receives in-kind support and maintenance will not apply if the SSI recipient pays his or her pro rata share in cash and no later than the month under consideration. No additional costs or savings are anticipated since these proposed regulations will codify existing policy.

Abstract: These regulations would reflect recently enacted statutory changes that extend social security coverage to work situations not previously covered. These newly covered work situations include: (1) Inactive duty training in the uniformed services; (2) Certain agriculture labor situations; and (3) Work for a spouse or parent. Additionally, the year for reporting corporate directors income has been changed, and Medicare coverage is provided to many previously uncovered State and local government employees. Also, a recently enacted statutory provision (section 8017 of PL 100-647) further revised our coverage provisions relating to agricultural wages.

Abstract: We are proposing to revise our rules on reducing the Social Security spouse's benefits of a person who is also receiving a Government pension based on noncovered employment. The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (PL 100-203, sec 9007) requires that a Federal Government employee who elects to be covered under Social Security after December 31, 1987 must work for at least 60 months after that date in order to avoid the reduction after he or she becomes entitled to Social Security spouse's benefits. That requirement is extended to the foreign service pension system by the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988 (PL 100-647), which also provides that under certain circumstances the reduction does not apply to any individual who retires before his or her coverage election becomes effective.

715. SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME PROGRAM; MODIFICATION OF INTERIM ASSISTANCE REIMBURSEMENT PROGRAM

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302; PL 100-203, Sec 9110

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 416.1901; 20 CFR 416.1902; 20 CFR 416.1906

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These proposed rules reflect sec. 9110 of Pub.L. 100-203. They extend Interim Assistance Reimbursement to cases in which assistance is provided by a State while an individual's Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments are suspended or terminated and then subsequently reinstated. Current regulations provide for reimbursement to a State only for interim assistance payments made while an individual's initial application for SSI is pending. No additional program costs are anticipated since the amount reimbursed to the State is later deducted from the individual's SSI payments.

Legal Authority: PL 100-203, Sec 9120

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 416.1121; 20 CFR 416.1201

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulation reflects the provisions of section 9120 of Pub. L. 100-203 by providing that payments to an individual (including gifts and inheritances) occasioned by the death of another person are not considered income for supplemental security income purposes to the extent that such payments are expended by such individual for purposes of the deceased person's last illness and burial. Also, the regulations propose a policy change to not consider the same payments as resources for one month following receipt. Any increased costs will be negligible.

Abstract: These amendments would require continued payment based on the full payment rate to certain persons eligible for SSI payments under Section 1619 or 1611(e) of the Act who enter certain medical and psychiatric institutions. Legal Authority: 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.366(a)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would change one of the requirements for determining whether an insured person is contributing to the support of a child at a specific time. The requirements that contributions be made regularly and be large enough to meet an important part of a child's living expenses would be replaced by a requirement that consideration be given to the economic circumstances of both the insured person and the child and that recognition also be given to the child's needs. Because of the minimal number of persons who would be affected by these proposed changes any additional program costs would be negligible.

719. OLD-AGE, SURVIVORS, AND DISABILITY INSURANCE PROGRAM; SUPPLEMENTAL EARNINGS REPORTS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 403

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.455

Abstract: We have learned that old-age and survivors' insurance beneficiaries whose estimate of earnings for the current year is more than the exempt amount for that year, but is equal to or less than the prior year's earnings, tend to underestimate or fail to report their work for the next year which results in overpayments. We are proposing an addition to the current regulation which will clarify that our interpretation of Section 203(h)(3) and (h)(4) of the Social Security Act permits SSA to request estimates of earnings for the next taxable year as well as the current taxable year. If a beneficiary does not furnish the requested future year's earnings estimate, we will use the estimate for the current year to determine whether to withhold benefits for the next year. We estimate savings of $3.5 million per year.

Abstract: The proposed rules contain procedures for determining when a State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations in accordance with applicable Federal law. If it is determined that a State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations in a manner consistent with Federal regulations or other written guidelines, the Social Security Administration, in accordance with section 221 of the Social Security Act (42 USC 421), must assume the responsibility for making the disability determinations. The costs or savings likely to result from implementation of these regulations are not predictable.

Abstract: The proposed rules would have provided for the reopening and revising of Supplemental Security Income determinations within four years of the notice of the initial determination if we discovered an error affecting a claimant's eligibility or benefit amount during this period through the use of information exchange and data gathering involving either our records or our records and those of other Federal or State agencies. We have determined that this proposed change is no longer necessary because improved systems processes since the publication of the NPRM allow us to process most of the errors discovered within the two-year limit on reopening an SSI determination and have relieved the need for an exception to the current two-year reopening limit.

Abstract: The regulations include standards for obtaining consultative examinations, the types of consultative examination referrals to be made, and monitoring procedures for consultative examinations and the referral process. The regulations also provide for evaluating all medical evidence of record and developing a 12-month medical history. References to "medical assessments" will be replaced by references to medical source statements as to what a person can still do despite his or her impairment(s). The regulations also set forth the standards to be used in evaluating the medical opinions of treating and other medical sources. The changes will not have any significant impact on either administrative or program costs.

Abstract: These regulations for administering the disability determination function make changes to improve the disability determination process by modifying our State agency monitoring and technical and management assistance procedures, administrative standards, and fiscal, audit, and appeals requirements. They also clarify when we will find that a State agency has substantially failed to make disability determinations consistent with the regulations and other written guidelines.

Abstract: Public Law 98-460 created 2 new provisions under which SSA will pay vocational rehabilitation (VR) agencies for the costs of services provided to disabled or blind social security beneficiaries or SSI recipients. Under the first new provision, SSA will allow payment to vocational rehabilitation agencies (VRAs) for the costs of VR services provided to individuals continuing to receive payment because they are participating in a VR program after their period of disability has ceased due to their medical recovery. The second new provision allows payment to VRAs for the costs of VR services provided to beneficiaries/recipients who refuse without good cause to continue or to cooperate in a VR program in such a way as to preclude their successful rehabilitation with such refusal resulting in the nonpayment of their disability or blindness payments. It is estimated that the first year costs of this program will be less than $1 million.

Abstract: These rules which implement section 2612 of Pub. L. 98-369 will limit the rate at which an overpayment may be recovered from an individual still receiving benefits (SSI or federally administered supplementary payments, or both) to 10 percent of the recipient's total income (countable income plus SSI and State supplementary payments) or the recipient's payment for the month, whichever is less. The 10 percent requirement will apply only to recipients in current payment status. The 10 percent limit will not apply in situations involving conditional disposition of resources agreements, misuse of burial funds, recovery by refund, cross program adjustment for individuals not in SSI current pay or where it is determined that the overpayment occurred because of recipient fraud, willful misrepresentation, or concealment. The rules, in negotiated cases, set a rate of withholding that is appropriate for the financial condition of the overpaid person after (continued)

Abstract: If the court remands a case and the SSA Appeals Council remands it to an administrative law judge (ALJ), under current regulations the ALJ returns the case to the Appeals Council with a recommended decision, and the Appeals Council must review that decision and take further action in every case before the decision becomes final. This can involve delay. The regulation will permit the ALJ to make a decision which would become final unless, within 30 days after the decision is received, the claimant files exceptions or within that period requests an extension of time to file exceptions, or within 60 days after the date of the decision the Appeals Council decides to review the decision on its own. The change will permit more timely final decisions, and result in administrative savings of about $1 million per year, due to a reduction in the number of personnel required to review the ALJ decision.It will not affect program cost.

Abstract: PL 98-21 changed the timing of crediting deferred compensation for Social Security purposes. It also changed the treatment of retirement pay depending upon whether it is paid under a qualified deferred compensation plan. Further, it excluded from coverage various fringe benefits and payments under a Simplified Employee Pension Plan. Finally, the amendments codify certain provisions pertaining to meals and lodging and tax-sheltered annuities. PL 98-369 amended the wage exclusion for qualified bond purchase plans. PL 99-514 excluded from coverage payments under a cafeteria plan; amended the law for determining self- employment income when an individual works for a church or church-controlled organization which has elected not to pay Social Security taxes; and amended the law for receiving an exemption from Social Security coverage for members of religious orders, ministers, and Christian Science practitioners. We are adding to the final rule the provisions in sec 9003 of PL 100-203 and sec 8013 of PL 100-647 concerning wage exclusion of group life insurance payments. These regulations merely reflect the above provisions and do not add substantive rules.

Abstract: This regulation will reflect the role of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in obtaining applications for Social Security numbers from aliens when they apply for temporary legal resident status. Rules on evidence needed to support an application are being updated and revised. The regulation will also reflect the role of the States in obtaining applications for Social Security numbers from welfare claimants and recipients. Savings for the Federal government are estimated to be $5.9 million for FY 1988 and $6.3 million for subsequent years.Virtually all of the savings are derived from the provision to reflect the role of the States in enumeration of welfare recipients.

Abstract: Under the rule, a parent will be able to request a Social Security number in the hospital when he or she provides birth registration information for a newborn child. The State vital statistics office will receive the information and the request from the hospital and electronically transmit this information to the Social Security Administration (SSA). SSA will assign a Social Security number to the child and send a card to the parents. We expect annual savings of $11.4 million. A pilot project in three States has shown this procedure to be efficient and well-received.

Abstract: These regulations will raise the earnings guidelines we use to determine whether persons with impairments other than blindness are able to do substantial gainful activity for purposes of disability benefits under title II of the Social Security Act (the Act) and Supplemental Security Income benefits under title XVI of the Act. They also raise the amount a person may earn before we consider that the person has performed services for purposes of a trial work period under the Act.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule reflects section 8103 of PL 100-647 (Technical Corrections Act of 1988). It adds to Subparts K and L of the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) regulations certain housing assistance payments that are excluded from income and resources under the SSI program for purposes of determining eligibility or payment amount under the SSI program. These exclusions (with the exception of section 202(h) of the Housing Act of 1959) are presently listed in the Appendix to Subpart K, entitled "Lists of Types of Income Excluded Under the SSI Program as Provided by Federal Laws Other than the Social Security Act." The statutes under which these payments are excluded are as follows: (a) The United States Housing Act of 1937; (b) The National Housing Act; (c) Section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965; (d) Title V of the Housing Act of 1949; and (e) Section 202(h) of the Housing Act of 1959. No costs or savings are involved.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 415(a)(7); PL 100-647, Sec 8003; PL 100-647, Sec 8011

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 404.213; 20 CFR 404.241

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation reflects sections of PL 100-647 that provide for a modified computation of an individual's Social Security benefit where he or she also receives a pension that is based on noncovered employment. The phase-out provisions of the modified computation are extended to include persons with more than 20, but less than 30, years of coverage and at the same time the percentages for each applicable year are increased. The month used in determining the appropriate pension amount in the modified computation is changed from the first month of concurrent eligibility to the first month the individual is concurrently entitled to both Social Security and the monthly pension.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 100-690

CFR Citation: 45 CFR 96

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 2027 of Public Law 100-690 amends Section 1916 of the PHS Act to set a floor on the amount States must spend each year beginning in FY 1991 from Alcohol and Drug Abuse and Mental Health Services Block Grant funds for new mental health services and programs. However, the Secretary may grant any State that he determines to be in a financial crisis a waiver lowering that floor by up to a certain amount. The Act requires that such determinations be based on standards published in regulations. Issues to be resolved in regulations include: (a) how to determine when a State is in a financial crisis; (b) what information States must provide to assure that a waiver is needed to avoid disruption to existing and planned high priority services; (c) how to determine the extent of relief to be granted for approved waivers; and (d) imposing requirements that are cost effective.

Abstract: The proposed rule addresses three major problems of the current regulation by (1) substantially upgrading laboratory performance tests for certifying respirators; (2) adding quantitative face seal performance tests; and (3) replacing current certification tests that are design- or application-specific with tests that are performance-based. The first NPRM for revising 42 CFR Part 84 was published in the Federal Register on August 27, 1987 (52 FR 32402). In response to the Abstract: The revised regulation will clarify the requirements for packaging and shipping material containing etiologic agents. Some users have had difficulty applying the current regulation, particularly with respect to the definition of material covered. The revised regulation is not expected to have a major impact on the cost of shipping these materials and is expected to result in increased conformance so that those handling such packages will have an even lower probability of exposure to potentially infectious material.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 99-660 Drug Export Amendments Act of 1986

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Abstract: The Drug Export Amendments Act of 1986 authorizes the export for commercial marketing abroad of veterinary and human drugs not approved for marketing in the United States. Under previous law, the export of new human and animal drugs for marketing was confined to drugs that were approved by FDA for domestic use. The law establishes three separate pathways for the export of unapproved products. Under each pathway, FDA approval is required before export is permitted. As a prerulemaking activity, FDA is developing guidance material for manufacturers instructing them as to what information must be submitted to the agency to obtain approval for the export of unapproved products. The guidance material will also identify FDA sources of information on agency practices and policies concerning the implementation of the Drug Export Amendments Act of 1986. The agency will then decide what, if any, regulations are necessary for the efficient implementation of the amendments, and establish timeframes for the development of those regulations.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 321(h)

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 800

Abstract: As a prerulemaking activity, FDA is developing guidance for manufacturers respecting how FDA would apply existing statutory requirements to the regulation of computer products (i.e., both hardware and software) when such products meet the definition of a medical device under the act.

On September 25, 1987, FDA made available a draft policy guidance intended to clarify how FDA would apply existing statutory requirements to the regulation of such products to provide opportunity for public participation in this activity.

Upon-analysis of the public comments on the complex issues pertaining to the regulation of computer products, the agency will decide whether any additional steps are necessary to clarify which computer products meet the definition of a medical device and what level of regulation, if any, is appropriate under the act.

Abstract: The agency has issued an advance notice of proposed rulemaking requesting public comment on possible changes in the labeling of food products regulated by FDA. The agency has long required certain labeling, such as ingredients and net weight on packaged foods, and in recent years has bolstered such labeling with requirements for label information about the nutritional quality of foods. Now, FDA believes it is timely to consider revising the food labeling requirements, and has sought public comment on five areas: (1) whether to revise the requirements for nutrition labeling; (2) whether to change the nutrition label format on food packages; (3) whether to revise the

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: FDA is responsible for issuing regulatory standards for blood and blood components to ensure the continued safety, purity, and potency of such products. Since 1975, CGMP regulations have been in effect that provide standards for facilities, personnel, and manufacturing procedures for blood and blood components. In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, FDA has conducted a retrospective review of its CGMP regulations for blood and blood components, to determine how the regulations may be revised to relieve regulatory burdens and increase flexibility without adversely affecting the public health. Part of the retrospective review of the CGMP will be completed through FDA's implementation of an efficacy review of blood and blood derivatives which responds to recommendations of a Committee of scientific experts--the Panel on Review of Blood and Blood Derivatives. To complete the remainder of the retrospective review program regarding the CGMP, FDA will issue a proposed rule to revise the CGMP regulations.

778. NEW ANIMAL DRUG APPROVAL PROCESS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 21 USC 360b Federal, Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 371 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 514.1; 21 CFR 514.8

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Based upon an evaluation of an action issues report, the agency has concluded that it will recommend that the Secretary propose revision of the existing regulations in a manner consistent with the current procedural regulations for human drugs where appropriate. The New Animal Drug Application (NADA) revisions would articulate general requirements in regulations containing performance standards and would complement them through detailed guidelines on, among other matters, appropriate ways of meeting requirements for submission of chemistry, pharmacology, and statistical data that would better address the intricate scientific issues involved.

Although the guidelines would not establish regulatory requirements, persons would be able to rely on them with confidence that action taken under a guideline would be acceptable to the agency.

779. REQUIREMENTS FOR ADVERSE EXPERIENCE REPORTING FOR LICENSED BIOLOGICAL PRODUCTS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 352 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 355 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 371 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 21 USC 374 Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; 42 USC 262 Public Health Service Act

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 211; 21 CFR 310; 21 CFR 600

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulatory action is being taken to improve the safety of marketed drug products by a reporting scheme that will require serious adverse reactions associated with licensed biological products to be reported to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

The purpose of the regulatory action is to require prompt reporting to the agency of serious adverse experiences for all licensed biological products.

The regulatory action being considered by FDA would be consistent with the agency's requirements regarding adverse reactions reporting for approved new drugs under 21 CFR 314.80 (see February 22, 1985; 50 FR 7452). These biologic regulations would require that all "serious and unexpected" adverse experiences and any "significant increase in frequency" of a serious expected event be reported to the agency within 15 working days. Known and nonserious adverse biological product experiences would be required to be reported to the agency at quarterly or annual intervals, depending on the length of marketing experience with the product. 780. PROPOSED RULE TO IMPLEMENT THE ORPHAN DRUG AMENDMENTS TO THE FEDERAL FOOD, DRUG, AND COSMETIC ACT

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 97-414 Orphan Drug Act; PL 100-290

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Orphan Drug Act is intended to provide incentives for drug companies to invest in the development of drugs for rare diseases or conditions. Certain incentives are necessary because "orphan drugs" are unlikely to be profitable. The agency is required to carry out provisions of the Orphan Drug Act, e.g., by designating a drug as an orphan drug, by providing protocol assistance, and by granting seven years of exclusive approval status. The proposed rule would establish procedures whereby drug sponsors can take advantage of the incentives to encourage development of orphan drugs. While several provisions of the Orphan Drug Act call for promulgation of regulations, the agency is considering the extent to which regulations will be needed to provide the framework and guidance for implementing a program of incentives to drug sponsors and manufacturers.

781. ABBREVIATED NEW DRUG APPLICATION REGULATIONS (TITLE I OF THE "DRUG PRICE COMPETITION AND PATENT TERM RESTORATION ACT OF 1984")

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 98-417, (Title I)

CFR Citation: 21 CFR 10; 21 CFR 310; 21 CFR 314; 21 CFR 320

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Until the passage of Title I of the "Drug Price Competition and Patent Term Restoration Act of 1984," abbreviated new drug application (ANDA) procedures were only available for generic products equivalent to pioneer drugs approved before 1962. Title I opened up the ANDA policy to generic copies of products approved after 1962. On July 10, 1989 (54 FR 28872), FDA proposed regulations to implement Title I. The proposal provides for the submission of abbreviated new drug applications for generic versions of drug products first approved after 1962. These new provisions will benefit consumers by making generic drug products available more quickly.

782. LOOK-BACK REQUIREMENTS FOR BLOOD RECIPIENTS WHO ARE AT INCREASED RISK OF HIV INFECTION

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 351 to 360k; 21 USC 374; 42 USC 262 to 264

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The agency currently requires that all blood and blood components intended for the manufacture of any product be tested for antibody to human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). In instances when the blood of a donor is found to contain antibodies to HIV, some blood centers have initiated a program of voluntary "look-back" in which recipients of blood and blood components obtained from the donor's prior donations are traced and tested. A well-conducted look-back program can provide an effective mechanism for identifying, testing, and counseling transfusion recipients who are at increased risk of HIV infection–those who receive blood from a donor later found to be infected with HIV. The agency is considering a proposal to establish a mandatory look-back program. The proposal would require that blood collection facilities notify the appropriate transfusion facilities as soon as an infected donor is identified and implement a system of followup to ensure that either recipients are notified or that the physician of record determined that notification was inappropriate or was not possible.

Abstract: Acceptable evidence and information exists to show that a subgroup of asthmatics is at moderate to severe risk for a severe reaction upon exposure to sulfites. The agency's primary tool for handling a situation where population subgroups may be at increased risk from a food ingredient that is safe for most people is to use labeling to inform those persons who need or want to avoid the ingredient. The agency issued a final rule, effective January 7, 1987, that requires that when a sulfiting agent is present in a finished food at 10 parts per million or greater, the sulfiting agent must be declared on the label. In addition, FDA issued a final rule, effective August 8, 1986, prohibiting the use of sulfiting agents on raw fruits and vegetables intended to be served or sold raw to consumers (e.g., in salad bars). On December 10, 1987, FDA announced its tentative conclusion that there is no longer a basis to find that the use of sulfiting agents on "fresh" potatoes served or sold unpackaged to consumers is GRAS. On December 19, 1988, FDA proposed to affirm, with specific limitations, that certain other uses of sulfiting agents are GRAS. (cont)

Abstract: Substantial progress has been made in reducing the number of provisionally listed additives and only 1 color additive remains on the provisional list. The agency is presently reviewing petitions to list the color additive permanently. Because FD&C Red No. 3 animal feeding studies have shown a treatment-related increased incidence of tumor bearing animals, the agency considered the use of quantitative risk assessment as a basis for assessing the safety of this color additive in external drugs and cosmetics. As a preliminary step in its consideration of this approach, the agency formed a scientific peer review panel of government scientists to consider whether it is possible to quantify the risk presented by the use of FD&C Red No. 3 based on the scientific data available to the agency and, if so, what level of risk is presented by the use of this color additive. The agency has received the report from the scientific review panel in which the panel estimates the risk of cancer from use of FD&C Red No. 3 in external drugs and cosmetics. Furthermore, for FD&C Red No. 3 the industry has postulated a secondary mechanism for the observed tumorigenic response in the animal feeding (cont)

Abstract: In the FEDERAL REGISTER of August 4, 1987, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) discussed an initiative concerning health-related claims or information on food labeling and the criteria it will apply in evaluating the propriety of such labeling. Consistent with this initiative, FDA proposed to amend certain regulations on food labeling to codify and to clarify its policy on the appropriate use of health-related messages. The agency also announced its intention to form a Public Health Service (PHS) committee that will attempt to develop "health messages" appropriate for use on food labeling.

FDA recognizes that this initiative represents a substantive change in past agency policy, and because of the complexity of the matter and the broad public interest, wishes to proceed cautiously and deliberately in its regulatory approach.

Pending this rulemaking proceeding, the agency will employ the criteria discussed in the preamble to the notice in evaluating the propriety of bringing enforcement action against products bearing health messages on food labeling.

Abstract: In the FEDERAL REGISTER of November 25, 1986, the agency published a proposed rule that would provide a mechanism to allow relevant, truthful, and nonmisleading claims about cholesterol and fatty acid on product labeling for consumers. This proposed rule resulted from the medical and consumer interest in the association between dietary fat and cholesterol and the occurrence of coronary heart disease, the leading cause of death and disability in the United States today. The proposed rule would allow industry voluntarily to provide consumers with cholesterol and fatty acid information currently prohibited by regulations by permitting the use of meaningful descriptors of the cholesterol content of foods as established by regulation (e.g., "cholesterol free," "low cholesterol," and "reduced cholesterol"). Additionally, the proposal would allow the use of comparative claims (e.g., 50 percent less cholesterol than our original product), provided quantitative cholesterol content information is supplied. Public comments submitted in response to the proposed rule are being reviewed.

Abstract: In 1980, FDA published a regulation (21 CFR 102.33) to require the declaration of the percent of juice contained in all diluted juice beverages. This regulation was published to extend the percent juice declaration required for diluted orange juice beverages (21 CFR 102.32) to all other diluted juice beverages. These two regulations were developed to provide consumers with information as to the various amounts of juice in the diluted juice beverages offered for sale. The regulation regarding percentage juice declaration for diluted orange juice beverages had been in effect for several years and functioning well before the regulation addressing all other diluted juice beverages was published. With publication of 21 CFR 102.33, a controversy developed over the applicability of the regulation to diluted cranberry juice beverages. The controversy centered around the fact that cranberry juice is a high acid juice and is not normally consumed as a single strength juice. Due to this unresolved controversy, 21 CFR 102.33 has not been made effective. In the FEDERAL REGISTER of July 16, 1987 (52 FR 26690), the agency proposed to revoke the common or usual (cont)

Abstract: On September 23, 1988 (53 FR 37250), FDA proposed to amend its current regulations governing user labeling for menstrual tampons to require uniform absorbency testing of tampons and to standardize a method of expressing absorbency on tampon package labels. Under the proposal, manufacturers would have been required to include on the package label one of six letters (A-F) corresponding to a specific range of absorbency. After analyzing all the comments received in response to the proposal, FDA decided to repropose the amendments to 21 CFR 801.430 that would replace the letter designation initially proposed with six absorbency terms that are different from currently used terms (e.g., regular, super, and super plus). See 54 FR 25076; June 12, 1989. The new terms (i.e., low, medium, medium-high, high, very high, and highest absorbency), each of which would convey absorbency information, would correspond to the six absorbency ranges set out in the initial proposal. Under the reproposal, FDA would also require that the applicable new term of absorbency be placed on the principal display panel(s) of tampon packages, separate from and more prominent than any (cont)

Abstract: On April 21, 1989 (54 FR 16128), FDA proposed to (1) amend its regulations creating and describing action levels for added poisonous or deleterious substances in food (including animal feed) to make clear that action levels constitute prosecutorial guidance rather than substantive rules, and (2) revoke the provisions for exceptions to action levels in 21 CFR Part 109 (human food) and 21 CFR Part 509 (animal feed) because of a court decision that relied on those regulations in determining that the action levels were substantive rules. Under the proposal, an action level would define a level of contamination at which the agency may regard a food as adulterated. The proposed amendments are intended to make it clear that action levels do not have a present effect and are not binding.

Abstract: On June 1, 1989 (54 FR 23485), FDA proposed to establish a regulatory limit for ceramic food-service pitchers, excluding creamers, that would limit the leaching of lead from the glazes and decorations on the food-contact surface of these pitchers to no more than 0.1 microgram per milliliter (ug/mL) of test solution. FDA also proposed to provide that decorative ceramicware that appears to be suitable for food use will be deemed to be for food use unless it bears a conspicuous, permanent label statement molded or fired onto the ceramic piece that states that the piece is not for food use, or a hole is bored through the possible food-contact surface of the piece. FDA proposed this provision to ensure that decorative pieces are not confused with food-contact ceramicware. Finally, by means of the notice, FDA solicited comments and information on several other matters, including the need to decrease leachable lead from other ceramicware (flatware, cookware, and large and small hollowware other than pitchers) and appropriate measures for achieving any needed decrease.

Abstract: The Food and Drug Administration and the National Institute on Drug Abuse are considering a proposal to revise the conditions for the use of methadone in the maintenance treatment of narcotic addicts. The proposal would allow programs to provide minimum service (interim) maintenance treatment to patients awaiting placement in comprehensive maintenance treatment and require programs to provide counseling on avoidance of human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) transmission. These requirements are being considered in response to the HIV epidemic and are intended to allow more narcotic addicts into treatment more quickly, thereby decreasing the incidence of intravenous drug abuse and the transmission of HIV.

Abstract: In the FEDERAL REGISTER of October 21, 1988 (53 FR 41561), FDA issued an interim rule effective upon date of publication, with opportunity for public comment, that set forth procedures designed to speed the availability of new therapies to desperately ill patients, while preserving appropriate guarantees for safety and effectiveness. These procedures are intended to facilitate the development, evaluation, and marketing of such products, especially where no satisfactory alternative therapies exist. These procedures reflect the recognition that physicians and patients are generally willing to accept greater risks or side effects from products that treat life-threatening and severely-debilitating illness. These procedures also reflect the recognition that the benefits of the drug need to be evaluated in light of the severity of the disease being treated. The procedures apply to life-threatening or severely-debilitating illnesses. The agency is reviewing the public comments submitted in response to the interim rule and preparing a FEDERAL REGISTER document that will respond to these comments.

Legal Authority: PL 100-386; PL 95-626; PL 99-280

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 51c

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation will amend the existing regulations at 42 CFR 51c, Subpart A-E, to bring them into conformance with amendments to Section 330 of the Public Health Service Act which were enacted in 1986 and 1988. These include extension of the program authorization, addition of capital construction authority, and changes regarding program income and services. PL 99-280 requires that the Secretary consult with the Chief Executive Officer and local officials of a State in publishing Medically Underserved Population designation criteria and in designating or de-designating Medically Underserved Populations. The amendment also requires the Secretary to consult with State organizations representing a majority of Community Health Centers in the State.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 216; 42 USC 294 to 294 l

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 60

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend existing regulations governing the HEAL program to establish performance standards against which school, lender, and holder default rates would be measured. These standards would provide schools, lenders, and holders a greater incentive to work to maintain low HEAL default rates and, thus, improve the long-term solvency of the Student Loan Insurance Fund.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 216; 42 USC 295g-7

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 57, Subpart S

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend existing regulations governing section 787 of the PHS Act, by adding statutory changes made by Title VI of Pub. L. 100-607, including: 1) that 10 percent of the amount of funds appropriated during any fiscal year be set aside for community-based programs; 2) that schools not having large enrollments of students from disadvantaged backgrounds increase their enrollments of such students during a period of 3 years by 20 percent over the base year of 1987; and 3) that the amount of grant funds obligated to institutions of higher education be changed from 80 percent to 70 percent. It would also require that an individual complete at least the junior year of high school (or its equivalent) in order to receive educational assistance.

Abstract: The Public Health Service Amendments of 1987, PL 100-177 amends the Public Health Service Act adding a new section at 338B of the Act authorizing the Secretary to establish the NHSC Loan Repayment Program. PL 100-177 also amends the PHS Act by adding a new section 338H authorizing the Secretary to establish a program of matching grants to support state loan repayment programs similar to the Federal Loan Repayment Program. PL 100-177 also establishes a new program which is not part of the PHS Act which provides a time limited opportunity for persons in default of their scholarship obligation as of November 1, 1987 to repay these obligations through service or through a combination of service and monetary payment. The publication of the regulations beyond the statutory date will not have any impact on the funding or implementation of the programs affected by these regulations.

822. REVISION OF INDIAN SELF-DETERMINATION REGULATIONS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 25 USC 450; PL 100-202; PL 100-446; PL 100-472; PL 100-581

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 36; 48 CFR 380.4; 48 CFR 352.280-4

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, May 5, 1989. Final, Statutory, August 5, 1989.

Abstract: Public Law 93-638 passed in 1975, requires the IHS to turn over administrative responsibility to tribes so requesting, using the mechanism of contracting. Public Law 93-638 also authorizes the IHS to make grants to tribe(s) for the planning, development, and/or operations of health programs. Public Law 100-472, enacted October 5, 1988, significantly expands the scope of programs covered beyond those administered by IHS. This Act further provided that all contracting requirements be contained in regulations promulgated in final within ten months of enactment. The Law provides for tribal consultation and participation in the development of the regulations.

Additional Information: This is a procurement-related action for which there is a statutory requirement. There is a paperwork burden associated with this action.

1. The Act (P.L. 100-472) provides that except for construction contracts, the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act and Federal Acquisition Regulations shall not apply to self-determination contracts. Therefore, implementing regulations for the Indian Self-Determination Act amendments will include a subpart on construction contracts, which, unlike other self-determination awards will be made subject to certain procurement rules (e. g., FARS, HSARS, FSARS). 2. There is a statutory requirement to implement P.L. 93-638 regulations. 3. There is a paperwork burden associated with the action. It will be included with the overall clearance package.

Abstract: This rule proposes to establish optional prospective payment rates for routine services furnished by certain skilled nursing facilities. The prospective rate would be on a per diem basis and would include payment for the cost of furnishing general inpatient routine services and associated capital-related costs. Ancillary services will be paid on the basis of reasonable cost. As specified in the Conference Committee Report accompanying PL 99-272, the rates paid to proprietary SNFs would include a component for the routine service portion of the return on equity capital. As specified in section 1861(v)(1)(B) of the Act, the return on equity component would only be included in the rate paid to proprietary SNFs. This rule would propose instructions for determining eligibility for payment under this system, and the methodology for calculating the prospective payment rates. Freestanding SNFs electing to be paid under this prospective payment system may file a simplified cost report.

Abstract: Under this final notice, hospital-based home health agencies accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation for Healthcare Organizations' and home health agencies accredited by the National League for Nursing are considered or "deemed" to meet the Medicare conditions of participation. Thus, these agencies will not ordinarily be subject to an inspection by State survey agencies to determine their compliance with Federal requirements. As a result of the home health agency's deemed status, a State also can choose to permit the agency to participate as a provider under the Medicaid program.

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Medicaid regulations to incorporate changes relating to Medicaid eligibility groups and coverage of services made by the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 (P.L. 100-360), the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Acts of 1987 and 1986, (P.L. 100-203 and P.L. 99-509), and the Homeless Eligibility Clarification Act of the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1986 (P.L. 99-570). This rule would add eligibility groups of pregnant women, infants and children, and aged and disabled individuals with incomes up to a specified percentage of the Federal poverty line; clarify eligibility of homeless individuals; and add provisions for a presumptive eligibility period for pregnant women who, based on preliminary information, appear to meet income requirements under Medicaid.

Abstract: These regulations would conform the Medicaid regulations to the provisions of section 303(b) of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 (P.L. 100-360). Section 303(b) requires that State Medicaid agencies provide individuals who are in long term care or receiving home and community based services with a period of ineligibility for Medicaid coverage of those services for up to 30 months if these individuals made transfers of assets for less than fair market value during a prohibited period. The period of ineligibility applies if the individual made a transfer of assets for less than fair market value at any time during or after he 30 month period immediately before (1) the date the individual became institutionalized, if he or she was entitled to Medicaid on that date, or (2) if not entitled to Medicaid on that date, the date he or she applied for Medicaid while institutionalized. Section 303(b) also exempts certain specific transfers of assets from the period of ineligibility.

Abstract: This proposed rule would clarify the circumstances under which Medicare carriers are to apply the comparable services limitation in making their determination of a reasonable charge for Medicare Part B services. Under section 1842(b)(3)(B) of the Act, carriers are prohibited from making a determination of a reasonable charge that would be higher than the charge upon which they would base payment to their own policyholders for a comparable service under comparable circumstances. Currently, there is a great deal of confusion among the carriers as to what constitutes comparable services and comparable circumstances, the result of which is that very few carriers are applying the comparable services limitation in their reasonable charge determination. We would revise the regulations to more clearly state how the comparable services limitation should be implemented by the carriers.

Regulation must be promulgated containing methodology. Section 1915(d)(5)(B)(iii)

Abstract: This regulation would implement section 1915(d) of the Act. These rules would allow a State to provide skilled nursing facility (SNF), intermediate care facility (ICF), and home and community-based services to individuals 65 years of age and older, in exchange for a "cap" on the amount of money for which Medicaid Federal financial participation would be available. The program would be administered by means of waivers which a State could request. As currently constructed, the statute allows for waivers of statewideness, comparability, and income deeming. Home and community-based services could be made available to individuals age 65 or older who are shown by an evaluation to be likely to require the level of care provided in an SNF or ICF, the cost for which could be paid by Medicaid. For States electing this option, the waiver would replace the home and community-based services waivers available under section 1915(c) of the Act, for individuals in this age category.

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 403.200; 42 CFR 403.206; 42 CFR 403.210; 42 CFR 403.215 to 403.217; 42 CFR 403.220; 42 CFR 403.222; 42 CFR 403.232; 42 CFR 403.239; 42 CFR 403.250 to 403.256

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These proposed regulations would add requirements for certification of Medicare supplemental (Medigap) policies under the Federal voluntary certification program or for approval under State regulatory programs that are deemed to have standards that are equal to or more stringent than those of the Federal program. The new standards would include: required submission of advertising to the State; reporting of actual loss ratio information under both the Federal and State programs; a uniform 30-day free-look standard; and procedural requirements for the direct claim transmittal of bills submitted for services furnished to Part B beneficiaries by participating physicians and suppliers from Medicare carriers to Medigap insurers. Insurers would be required to pay user fees for the transmittal of claims. The regulations also would require conformance with the most recent model standards adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners on September 20, 1988.These regulations would implement sections 4081(b) and (c) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 and section 221 of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988.

887. CLINICAL LABORATORIES - CLIA '88 REQUIREMENTS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1395x; 42 USC 1302; 42 USC 1395hh; 42 USC 263A; PL 100-578

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 74.1 to 74.61; 42 CFR 405.1310 to 405.1317; 42 CFR 482.27

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, January 1, 1990.

Abstract: Amendments to the Clinical Laboratory Improvement Act of 1988 (CLIA) require all clinical laboratories to be regulated regardless of their ownership, location or of how few tests they perform. This proposed rule would set forth provisions of CLIA '88 that are not self-implementing. (The self-implementing provisions are contained in the final regulation "Review of Current Rules Affecting Clinical Laboratories.") This rule would contain requirements for performance standards for laboratories not regulated under CLIA as of December 31, 1988, that may vary depending on the complexity of the testing and a provision that will allow some laboratories that perform only simple examinations and procedures that have a low risk of erroneous results, a waiver from the standards and inspections. The proposed rule will also contain the requirements that would address fees for certified laboratories as well as laboratories issued a certificate of waiver from standards and inspections. The fees would be charged to meet administrative costs, as well as the cost of onsite inspections and ongoing monitoring of laboratory performance.

Abstract: This rule would establish the requirements and options for Medicaid payments to hospitals that serve a disproportionate number of low-income patients with special needs. The Medicaid agency would be required to make payment adjustments to these hospitals when such hospitals have met specified conditions. The rule would also simplify and clarify the rules that apply to these hospitals under the Medicare program, some of which are incorporated by reference in the Medicaid rules.

CFR Citation: 42 CFR 433.123

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposal would eliminate the requirement that HCFA publish in the Federal Register a proposed notice with opportunity for public comment and then a fiscal notice for any changes in MMIS requirements, performance standards and other conditions for approval and reapproval. Instead we would use well established communication arrangements under which States provide input during the development of revisions, and we issue revised manual instructions well in advance of implementation changes. This change will increase the efficiency of the administrative process by eliminating lengthy time frames associated with a formal notice and comment procedure thus allowing an expeditious means of developing and communicating changes.

Abstract: These rules would propose to require States to include in Their State plans payment of Medicare cost-sharing for low income Medicare beneficiaries, Qualified Medicare Beneficiaries (QMB). The territories have the option to do the same. We would define cost-sharing, specify criteria for determining QMB status, propose requirements and options for payment amounts and limitations, and provide for Federal financial participation in State payments for Medicare cost-sharing on behalf of QMBs. The changes would implement provisions of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988 as modified by the Family Support Act of 1988 and the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988. Under the above legislation. These provisions went into effect January 1, 1989.

Abstract: These proposed rules would revise current Medicare regulations relating to beneficiaries enrolled in health maintenance organizations (HMOs), competitive medical plans (CMPs), and health care prepayment plans (HCPPs). This rule would implement a statutory limit on beneficiary out-of-pocket cost sharing expenses for services covered under Part B for beneficiaries enrolled in HMOs, CMPs, and HCPPs and would establish rules for calculating the out-of-pocket expenses incurred by such beneficiaries while they are enrolled in these organizations. The proposed rule would also specify the responsibilities of certain of these organizations to maintain an accounting of expenses incurred by Medicare enrollees, and provide procedures for treatment of out-of-pocket expense after the catastrophic limit amount is reached.

Abstract: This rule revises current Medicaid rules to reflect statutory authority of the Secretary (1) to permit certain health maintenance organizations (HMOs) to exceed the composition of enrollment limit, (2) to allow certain organizations that might not otherwise be permitted to do so, to contract on a risk basis, (3) to permit continuation of benefits to recipients enrolled in certain organizations after they have lost entitlement to Medicaid, and (4) to give a State the option of restricting a Medicaid enrollee's right to disenroll from certain types of risk HMOs and other organizations. These regulations would conform our regulations to incorporate authority provided in section 2364 of Pub.L. 98-369, the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984, as amended by section 9517 of Pub.L. 99-272, the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985.

Abstract: These regulations will implement provisions of section 948 of P.L. 98-499 and section 2307 of P.L. 98-369. This legislation deals with certain problems that have arisen in the Medicare program with respect to payment for physicians in the teaching setting. Specifically addressed by Congress is the problem of distinguishing between the services a physician furnishes to individual patients as a teaching physician and services furnished to the provider, as well as the method of reimbursement for these services. This rule sets forth the conditions under which physicians in teaching settings will be reimbursed on a reasonable cost basis or, alternatively, on a reasonable charge basis. It also describes the methods used to determine the customary charges for the services of those physicians. This rule will also clarify related issues of physician reimbursement.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule revises the regulations governing the Medicaid eligibility quality control (MEQC) program to include more specified program requirements and to establish new time frames for completing and reporting MEQC case findings to HCFA. The final rule also establishes a performance-based threshold for States to meet before HCFA will consider good faith waiver requests of disallowance of Federal financial participation in erroneous Medicaid payments and provides more definitive criteria for evaluating States' good faith efforts to meet the national standard error rate. In addition, the rule makes several technical changes and specifies that States may rebut their quarterly projected error rates when they can present evidence that the projected rates were based on erroneous data. The revisions will strengthen the MEQC program and provide flexibility and incentives to States to produce more accurate Medicaid eligibility determinations.

Abstract: Currently, hospital-based and independent laboratories are subject to varying State Licensure requirements and to Medicare regulations that vary from requirements of private accreditation entities and from regulations governing laboratories performing tests under interstate commerce. One consequence is that the quality of laboratories' services is adjudged using different standards. Inconsistent standards not only create confusion regarding necessary performance levels, but may permit laboratories with substandard performance to continue furnishing covered services. This rule will amend the requirements to improve the quality of laboratory services. It will provide recognition of new technologies in laboratory quality assurance, refine outcome measures of performance and include personnel standards that take into account accepted management and testing practices that contribute to the quality of laboratory services. Also, this rule will provide consistent criteria for an effective proficiency testing program for Medicare, Medicaid, and CLIA laboratories.

Abstract: This rule revises regulations to reflect recent statutory provisions regarding HCFA's right to bring an action directly against certain third parties or to join or intervene in an action against a third party. It would also place certain requirements on hospitals regarding the identification and billing of potential Medicare secondary payer cases. Additionally, it would include requirements regarding timely refunds to Medicare when collections have been made from another insurer. It also clarifies rules for Medicare payment for services furnished to an end-stage renal disease (ESRD) patient who is also covered under an employer group health plan. It would include the changes pertaining to Medicare conditional payments for ESRD beneficiaries made by section 4036(a) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987. It would update policies pertaining to Medicare payment for services covered under a workers' compensation law or plan, or under no-fault or liability insurance. It would make Medicare secondary to all kinds of no-fault insurance, not just automobile no-fault insurance.

Abstract: These regulations make explicit in the regulations HCFA's policy on the relationship between State Medicaid eligibility determinations based on disability and disability determinations by SSA under the Supplemental Security Income Program. The regulations incorporate the conditions under which the State agency must make independent determinations of disability and the effect of determination by SSA of disability for purposes of establishing Medicaid eligibility. The regulations also conform the Medicaid provisions on composition of medical review teams, required information, and the time limit for making determinations more closely to similar provisions used by SSA in making SSI determinations. Because of numerous questions raised and litigation, it is necessary to clarify our policy on the controlling nature of SSI disability determinations on Medicaid eligibility.

Abstract: This final rule will implement sections 9121 and 9122 of PL 99-272 as amended by PL 100-203. Specifically, under section 9121, Medicare participating hospitals with emergency departments would be required to provide upon request medical examinations and treatments for individuals with emergency medical conditions and women in active labor. Hospitals failing to meet those requirements may have their Medicare provider agreements suspended or terminated. In addition, the hospital and the responsible physician may each be subject to a civil money penalty for each such violation. Under section 9122, Medicare participating hospitals would be required to accept CHAMPUS and CHAMPVA payment as payment in full for services provided to CHAMPUS and CHAMPVA beneficiaries. These regulations will also implement section 233 of PL 99-576, which requires Medicare hospitals to admit veterans. They will also implement section 9305(b)(1) of PL 99-509, which requires Medicare hospitals to give patients a notice of their discharge rights.

Abstract: This final rule amends the Medicaid regulations to specify for Medicaid, mandatory categorically needy eligibility for individuals who, although severely impaired, work and demonstrate ability to perform substantial gainful activity and who are considered to be Supplemental Security Income (SSI) beneficiaries by virtue of Section 1619 of the Social Security Act. It also specifies how States electing the option under Section 1902(f) of the Social Security Act to provide Medicaid under criteria more restrictive than SSI, will treat the "1619" individuals. It also specifies how SSI payments made to certain institutionalized individuals are to be disregarded as income under Medicaid for up to two months. The amendments conform the regulations to provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 and the Employment Opportunities for Disabled.

Abstract: The purpose of this final rule is to implement section 9403 of PL 99-272, 9353(c) of PL 99-509,and section 4096(a)(1)(A) of PL 100-203. Under section 9403 of PL 99-272, Peer Review Organizations (PROs) are authorized to deny Medicare payment to a physician or hospital for services furnished that are of substandard quality. The PRO determinations to deny Medicare payment for these services will be made on the basis of criteria that are consistent with guidelines established by the Secretary. Under section 9353(c) of PL 99-509, PROs will conduct an appropriate review of all written complaints from beneficiaries or their representatives about the quality of services not meeting professionally recognized standards of health care. Under PL 100-203 beneficiaries are protected from liability for the cost of physician services where payment is denied because services were of substandard quality.

Abstract: This rule will amend the Medicaid regulations to incorporate numerous eligibility groups for Medicaid coverage: pregnant women; children in adoption and foster care; certain disabled widows and widowers; certain disabled children being cared for at home; and qualified children. The rule will also provide for extended care for pregnant women after termination of pregnancy and add a condition of eligibility relating to third party liability. The amendments will conform the regulations to provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987, the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985, and the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982. States have been informed that these provisions of the statute are self-implementing. Manual instructions containing procedures for States to implement the requirements have been issued.

Abstract: Section 9320 of Pub. L. 99-509 provides for payment on a fee schedule basis for services of certified registered nurse anesthetists (CRNAs) furnished to Medicare beneficiaries on or after January 1, 1989. The payment amount will be equal to the least of 80 percent of a fee schedule established by the Secretary (and adjusted annually by the change in the Medicare economic index), 80 percent of the prevailing charge for an anesthesiologist; or 80 percent of the actual charge. CRNAs will be required to accept assignment for all Medicare services and civil monetary penalties could be imposed for violations of this requirement. Alternatively, the hospital or physician could bill for and receive payment for services of CRNAs where an employment relationship or contract so stipulates. The hospital or physician could not bill more for CRNA services than the amount the CRNA could bill directly.

Abstract: The final rule will describe the conditions under which a Health Insuring Organization (HIO) is subject to certain Medicaid Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) regulations. It would require that an HIO which becomes operational on or after January 1, 1986 and arranges for the delivery of services to recipients be subject to HMO requirements. The regulations would specify that exemptions from certain HMO requirements are permitted for HIOs which began operations on or after January 1, 1986 if the HIOs obtained a section 1915(b) waiver prior to that date, or if an HIO is otherwise identified in the law. The exemptions which are based on section 1915(b) waivers last only until the expiration of the waiver.

Abstract: This rule, issued jointly by HCFA and OIG, will prohibit Medicare payment for nonphysician services furnished to a hospital outpatient by a provider or supplier other than the hospital, unless the services are furnished under an arrangement with the hospital. The hospital will be obligated by its provider agreement to furnish the services directly or under an arrangement. These regulations also authorize OIG to impose a civil money penalty, not to exceed $2,000, against any individual who knowingly and willfully presents, or causes to be presented, a bill or request for payment for a hospital outpatient service under Part B of Medicare in violation of an arrangement. These regulations will implement sections 9343(c)(1), (c)(2), and (c)(3), of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, August 1, 1988.
Effective for services performed on or after 01/01/89.

Abstract: As a result of provisions included in section 4049 of PL 100-203, we are setting forth a fee schedule for radiology services furnished by a board-certified or board eligible radiologist or by a physician whose charges for radiology services account for 50 percent or more of his or her total Medicare charges. These physicians will be paid at 80 percent of the lower of the actual charges or the appropriate fee schedule amount. The fee schedule amount for a nonparticipating physician will be 95 percent of the amount applicable to a participating physician. In addition, a nonparticipating physician's charges to beneficiaries will be capped. The proposed fee schedule will result in overall payment to physicians for radiology of 3 percent less than would have occurred without a fee schedule. The fee schedule will be updated annually in accordance with the annual increase in the Medicare Economic Index.

Under section 4048(b) of PL 100-203 the relative value guide is to be used for physician anesthesia services furnished on or after 01/01/89.

Abstract: This final rule will establish a relative value guide for use in all carrier localities in making payment for anesthesia services furnished by physicians under Medicare Part B. This rule will implement section 4048(b) of PL 100-203. The proposed relative value guide is designed to ensure that payments using the guide do not exceed the amount that would have been made under the current payment system. Although the statute requires that the uniform relative value guide be effective for services furnished on or after January 1, 1989, we are delaying the effective date until March 1, 1989.

Abstract: These regulations require each Medicaid plan to include a program for second surgical opinions for certain surgical procedures. This program is aimed at preventing unnecessary surgery and improving patient awareness of all treatment options, where alternatives to surgery are available. These regulations cannot be published earlier than 180 days after the Secretary's submission of a report to Congress as required by OBRA 86. That report was submitted on June 16, 1989.

Abstract: These regulations conform HCFA rules to certain self-executing provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987. They are needed to make HCFA rules consistent with current provisions of law and to ensure that users of the regulations are not confused by outdated provisions or unclear language. Under the Medicare program's rules changes are made affecting: services of podiatrists; outpatient psychiatric services; SMI premiums; partial hospitalization; and comprehensive outpatient rehabilitative facility services. Under the Medicaid program changes are made affecting; services of dentists; clinic services; and waivers of certain State plan requirements. In additions, we make other conforming and transitional amendments.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule implements section 8424 of the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988, Pub. L. No. 100-647. It removes from Medicare conditions of participation the requirement that providers of outpatient physical therapy and physical therapists in independent practice accept for treatment only patients referred to them by physicians, and that written plans of care be established and reviewed by physicians. It also extends the same exemption to providers of outpatient speech pathology and speech pathologists in independent practice. It affects care provided to non-Medicare patients only. The requirements for physician involvement continue to apply for services provided to Medicare beneficiaries. The purpose of the rule is to relieve providers of outpatient physical therapy and outpatient speech pathology and independent therapists of unnecessary burden imposed by current Federal regulations. States would have the flexibility under State law to establish the most appropriate requirements for non-Medicare patients in need of physical therapy or speech pathology services.

Abstract: This regulation implements certain provisions of the Family Support Act of 1988 (P.L. 100-485). It requires States to use guidelines as a rebuttable presumption in setting support awards; clarifies that the $50 disregard is paid to the family if the support is paid on time; clarifies that State laws and procedures must provide for paternity establishment of any child for whom a paternity action was previously dismissed under a statute of limitations of less than 18 years; provides 90 percent federal funding of laboratory costs in establishing paternity; and requires genetic testing in contested paternity establishment cases upon request by any party.

Abstract: This NPRM rule, which implements section 20 of the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 (Pub. L. 98-378) specifies that in any case where the collection or increased collection of support under title IV-D of the Social Security Act contributes wholly or partly to a family's ineligibility for AFDC, the family is deemed, but only for the purpose of Medicaid eligibility, to be receiving AFDC for a period of four calendar months after the last month of AFDC eligibility. This applies only to families who receive AFDC in three of the six months immediately preceding the month of ineligibility. "Received" includes those individuals denied an AFDC payment solely because the payment amount is under $10, the recoupment of overpayment, or because the payment is determined to be zero as a result of rounding.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Would update current regulations by adding statutory exclusions for certain per capita distributions of Indian judgment funds and other funds held in trust by the Department of Interior, and initial purchases made with such funds. Additionally, would exclude the following types of distributions received from a Native Corporation pursuant to the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. (1) Cash to the extent that it does not in the aggregate, exceed $2,000 per individual per annum; (2) Stocks; (3) A partnership interest; (4) Land or an interest in land; and (5) An interest in a settlement trust. Regulations would reflect the statutes; therefore, no alternatives are being considered. We estimate that the Federal share of the cost of the trust funds exclusions required under PL 97-458 and PL 98-64 would be $698,960 per year, the Federal share of the cost of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act exclusions required under PL 100-241 would be $1,876,108 per year. Therefore, the annual result would be a cost of $3,575,068.

Abstract: Current regulations provide for a number of work and training programs. Some States have designed their own programs. However, since most of these work programs are optional, and State support for these programs have varied, implementation of work and training programs has been uneven among the states. The Family Support Act (Public Law 100-485), which was signed 10/13/88, establishes under title IV-F of the Social Security Act, the Job Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS) training program. JOBS' purpose is to assure that needy families with children obtain the education, training, and employment that will help them avoid long term dependence. The legislation mandates that all States implement a JOBS program by October 1, 1990. The regulation also includes child care and supportive services provisions from Title III of the Family Support Act. These services include services needed by JOBS participants, as well as transitional child care for former AFDC recipients.

Abstract: This rule amends the final rule implementing the State Legalization Impact Assistance Grants (SLIAG), published on March 10, 1988. This action changes the deadline by which Fiscal Year 1990 State SLIAG applications are due from July 15, 1989 to October 1, 1989, and the deadline by which a State's FY 1990 application must be approvable by the Secretary from October 1, 1989 to December 15, 1989. This will give States sufficient time to develop actual cost data which can be used in preparing their FY 1990 applications.

[Docket No. N-89-2039; FR-2690]

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Department of Housing and Urban Development.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, of regulations expected to be issued and under review.

SUMMARY: In accordance with section 5 of Executive Order 12291 "Federal Regulation," the Department is publishing its agenda of proposed regulations already issued or expected to be issued and of currently effective rules that are under review. Also, under section 602 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the Department has prepared a regulatory flexibility agenda of regulations expected to be proposed or promulgated which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. As permitted by Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, the two agendas are combined for publication.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Grady J. Norris, Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Room 10276, 451 Seventh Street SW., Washington, DC 20410, (202) 755-7055. (This is not a toll-free number.)

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 "Federal Regulation," issued on February 17, 1981 (46 FR 13193), requires each agency to publish semiannually an agenda of regulations that the agency has issued or expects to issue and of currently effective regulations that are under agency review.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act, 5 U.S.C. 601-612, requires each agency to publish semiannually a regulatory flexibility agenda of rules expected to be proposed or promulgated which are likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of "small entities," meaning small businesses, small organizations, or small governmental jurisdictions.

Executive Order 12291 and section 605 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act each permit incorporation of the agenda it requires with any other prescribed agenda. Accordingly, the agenda set out below combines the information required by the Executive order and by the Regulatory Flexibility Act. In addition, the agenda contains certain information not required by either the Executive order or by the Act which the Department considers useful, both better to inform the public and to enhance the Department's own inventory control over its body of regulations.

For purposes of Executive Order 12291, "regulation" or "rule" is defined as "an agency statement of general applicability and future effect designed to implement, interpret, or prescribe law or policy or describing the procedure or practice requirements of an agency" subject to certain exceptions. The agenda published below concentrates upon regulatory material contained or expected to be contained in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) (or incorporated therein by reference) following publication in the Federal Register. As appropriate, however, issuances in the nature of general statements of policy may be published in the Federal Register but not for codification in the CFR.

The Department also is subject to certain requirements involving congressional review of rulemaking actions, including publication of an agenda. Section 7(o) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act (42 U.S.C. 3535(o)) requires that the Secretary transmit to the congressional committees having jurisdictional oversight (the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs and the House Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs) a semiannual agenda of all rules or regulations which are under development or review by the Department. A rule appearing on the agenda cannot be published for comment before or during the first 15 calendar days of continuous session of Congress after transmittal of the agenda. If, within such period, either Committee notifies the Secretary that it intends to review any rule or regulation or portion thereof which appears on the agenda, the Secretary must submit to both Committees a copy of the rule or regulation, in the form it is intended to be proposed, at least 15 calendar days of continuous session before it is published for comment. The Semiannual Agenda appearing hereinafter is the agenda transmitted to the Committees in compliance with the foregoing requirement.

The agenda items are divided first by program office. Within each program office, the agenda items are divided into four groups: (i) Prerulemaking actions, (ii) publications or other implementations of notices of proposed rulemaking, (iii) publications or other implementations of final rules, and (iv) completed actions. Within each grouping, rules are listed in chronological order by the part number of the CFR affected. Where a rule affects multiple parts of the CFR, the rule is listed by the first affected part number. Priority rules include all regulations designated for priority development by the Department.

Items listed in this agenda are from the following Offices within the Department: Office of the Secretary; Office of Housing; Office of Public and Indian Housing; Office of Community Planning and Development; Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity; Office of Administration; and Government National Mortgage Association.

Dated: August 23, 1989.

Frank Keating,

General Counsel.

Abstract: This regulation sets forth the policy, procedure and responsibilities of the Department of Housing and Urban Development to implement and enforce Executive Order 11988, Floodplain Management, and Executive Order 11990, the Protection of Wetlands. This regulation replaces a general statement of Departmental policy (44 FR 47623; August 14, 1979) implementing these Executive Orders. In addition, this rule would revise HUD's Minimum Property Standards for One and Two Family Dwellings to accord with Executive Order 11988 and FEMA's regulations for its National Flood Insurance Program.

Abstract: This rule would implement HUD's responsibilities under the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973. It would add a new Part 56 to specify HUD's responsibilities to require that flood insurance be obtained for eligible properties. This part would then be cross-referenced in the rules governing programs involving insurance, loans and grants. This rule would do the following: (1) authorize certain exemptions for the first time; (2) clarify the statutory limitation on the conduct of HUD programs; (3) describe implementation actions to be taken by the approving official and the affected property owner; and (4) correct or remove from Title 24 outdated or inadequate references pertaining to this statutory responsibility.

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, September 30, 1989.
Section 904 statutorily takes effect on September 30, 1989 (although there is an early implementation option in the statute).

Abstract: The regulation implementing section 904 of the McKinney Amendments would require applicants and participants in certain HUD programs to sign consent forms permitting (1) HUD, PHA or owners responsible for determining eligibility for or level of benefits to verify employee income information with previous or current employers, and (2) HUD or the PHA to request wage and claim information from a State unemployment agency. Signing the consent from would be a condition of eligibility or continuing eligibility for the covered program. The rule would provide limitations on the collection, maintenance, use, and dissemination of wage and claim information obtained from a State unemployment agency. Criminal and civil penalties are also specified.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1439

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 791

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rule revises HUD's regulations for the allocation of housing assistance funds to reflect statutory changes made by the Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983. It contains an explicit description of the allocation formula, including some modifications to the factors making up the formula; deletes specific requirements on allocating funds in accordance with approved Housing Assistance Plans; and eliminates the requirements for local consultation in the allocation process. Part 791 would also be amended to consolidate local government submission requirements and HUD criteria for review of applications for housing. The rule tightens the headquarters funding process as well.

Abstract: This rule will implement section 214 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1980, as amended in 1981, 1986, and 1988. That Act prohibits the Secretary from providing financial assistance to substantially all illegal aliens as well as to most classes of aliens admitted for temporary purposes. The restriction applies to the Public and Indian Housing programs, the Section 8 Housing Assistance Payments programs, the Rent Supplement program, the Section 236 program, and the Section 235 homeownership assistance program.

This rule will replace the rule published on April 1, 1988, which was not made effective, but has been withdrawn. This new rule will provide that alien status must be verified with the Immigration and Naturalization Service by the entity responsible for tenant selection (or for approval of a Section 235 mortgage application).

Abstract: This rule will complete the action necessary to implement section 201(a) of the Immigration Reform and Control Act (IRCA) of 1986 (100 Stat. 3394, 3401) for HUD programs. That Act authorized the Attorney General to identify the programs of Federal financial assistance to which the temporary disqualification of certain newly legalized aliens applies. The Attorney General issued a proposed rule in 1987 (52 FR 31784) listing numerous HUD programs. The Attorney General's revised rule on this subject is expected to be published in late 1989, requiring that HUD publish an implementing rule for effect ninety days thereafter.

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1710

CFR Citation: 00 CFR 000

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 1064 of the Stewart N. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments Act of 1988 authorizes HUD to add pre-foreclosure sales to its roster of servicing options, as a means of saving the Department money and of assisting qualified mortgagors to avoid foreclosure of their FHA-insured mortgages. The Department may now pay a claim to a mortgagee to "bridge the gap" between the proceeds of a sale of the property to a third party buyer at current fair market value, and the original owner's indebtedness under the note. Until the Department received the authorization to pay these claims, such pre-foreclosure sales (or "short sales," as they are also known) were impracticable. At this time, implementing regulations are being planned to introduce the pre-foreclosure sale option throughout her Department.

Abstract: This rule would codify HUD policies for implementing section 250(a) and (b) of the National Housing Act, as added by section 433 of the Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983 and amended by section 261 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987. This rule would restrict prepayment of multifamily project mortgages whenever Secretary has prepayment approval responsibilities. Prepayment will not be approved unless project is no longer needed for lower income housing, tenants have been given notice and opportunity to comment, and a relocation assistance plan has been put in place. Similar restrictions will apply to termination of insurance. Where the Secretary is not responsible for approving prepayment and therefore cannot restrict it, priority will be given for additional section 8 and troubled project assistance in order to discourage prepayment. Additional requirements imposed on the prepayment of multifamily project mortgages by Title II, Subtitle B of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 have been implemented by separate rulemaking (FR-2450; H-10-88; RIN: 2502-AE34).

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend HUD regulations to implement section 181 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 and section 1010 of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments of 1988. Section 181 expanded the scope of section 203 of the Housing and Community Development Amendments of 1978 to include projects that are subject to a HUD-held mortgage and are delinquent, under a workout agreement, or being foreclosed upon by HUD. HUD, when it is owner or mortgagee-in-possession, and the owner in other situations now covered by section 203 must, to the greatest extent possible, maintain all such occupied projects in decent, safe, and sanitary condition and maintain full occupancy and must also maintain all such projects for purposes of providing rental or cooperative housing for the longest feasible time. The statute directs HUD to provide not less than one of several specified forms of financial assistance to a purchaser other than HUD at foreclosure, or after sale by the Secretary. Section 1010 further amended section 203 to clarify which units in HUD-held unsubsidized projects (cont)

Abstract: States with a large number of manufacturing facilities have incurred additional expenses in monitoring and inspecting those facilities. As the regulation is now written, the monitoring inspection fee paid by the manufacturers to the Secretary is distributed to the states based on the number of new manufacturer housing units whose first location after leaving the plant is on the premises of a distributor, dealer, or purchaser in that state. 24 CFR 3282.307(b) will be amended to provide a more equitable distribution of the inspection fee proceeds that will take into account the additional expenses incurred by the states in which manufacturing facilities are located.

Abstract: Section 148 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 amended section 8(d)(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 to require the Department to permit a PHA to attach not more than 15 percent of the section 8 Existing Housing Program assistance to existing structures if the owner agrees to rehabilitate the structure other than with assistance under the 1937 Act. Section 1005 of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Amendments Act of 1988 requires the Department to permit PHA's to attach assistance, within the same 15 percent limit, to newly constructed units. This rule would implement these provisions by revising Subpart G to 24 CFR Part 882 for project-based certification.

Abstract: This rule would revise the existing administrative criteria for acceptability of insured 10-year protection Plans (Plans). The Department began this proceeding by publishing a Notice informing the public that HUD intended to revise the criteria. This rule describes, among other things, criteria related to Plan acceptability, insurance and financial backing, Plan coverage, and methods for determining Plan obligations.

HUD acceptance of these Plans is a prerequisite to reduced inspection requirements on a property accepted for mortgage insurance before the commencement of construction. It is also a prerequisite to high loan-to-value insured financing for existing one-to-four family dwellings that are less than one year old and that were not approved and inspected by HUD or the Veterans Administration before the start of construction.

Abstract: This rule would implement section 406 of the Housing & Community Development Act of 1987. Section 406 authorizes HUD (1) to insure single family mortgages under title II of the National Housing Act, or (2) to approve a substitute mortgagor for single family mortgages insured under title II, only if the mortgagor is to occupy the dwelling as a principal or secondary residence, as determined by HUD. Section 406 provides that this occupancy requirement only applies if the mortgage involve a principal obligation that exceeds 75 percent of the loan-to-value or equivalent calculation under the insuring authority involved. The action exempts from the occupancy requirement, mortgagors under the Rehabilitation Loan program under section 203(k) of the National Housing Act, and certain public entity, nonprofit, serviceperson, and other mortgagors under various National Housing Act activities.

Abstract: This rule proposes to implement section 407 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987. Where, as a result of an annual review, the Secretary finds a mortgagee with a higher than normal default and claim rate, the Secretary shall require the mortgagee to submit a report with a plan for corrective action. Failure to submit the report or complete the plan for corrective action within the timeframe required may be cause for suspension of the mortgagee from participation in FHA programs.

Abstract: This final rule will modify the rule for FHA mortgage insurance on Hawaiian Homelands to remove its dependence on the Temporary Mortgage Assistance Payments program rule, because that rule has never been made effective. This rule also (1) makes effective a previously proposed change to the Assignment Program for FHA insured mortgages not on Hawaiian Homelands requiring defaulted mortgagor to have reasonable prospects of repayment of the mortgage to be eligible for assignment and forbearance (to conform the rule to section 230 of the National Housing Act); and (2) adds a limit on the interest rate to be charged in the Assignment Program (to reflect a change made by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987).

Abstract: The regulation implements provisions of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 that provide that mortgages on "eligible low income housing" may be prepaid only in accordance with a "plan of action" approved by the Secretary. The regulation establishes procedures for the submission and negotiation of such plans of action, lists incentives which may be part of the plan of action, and provides standards which the plans of action must meet. The regulation is designed to preserve needed low income housing in cases where the project owner might otherwise prepay its mortgage and convert the project to higher-income use.

Abstract: The rule will implement statutory amendments established by Section 461 of the Housing and Urban Rural Recovery Act of 1983 (Pub. L. 98-181). The amendments address a problem identified as "controlled business" and the manner in which Section 8 of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (12 USC 2607), the kickback prohibition of RESPA, is to be applied to such arrangements. No alternatives are being considered because of the statutory mandate. The rule will also contain miscellaneous changes to clarify and update the existing rule.

Legal Authority: PL 100-242

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 570

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rule would revise the Community Development Block Grant Program rules (24 CFR Part 570) for the entitlement and HUD-administered small cities programs, as necessary to implement certain changes in the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 (Pub. L. 100-242, approved Feb. 5, 1988), and the Department of Housing and Urban Development - Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1989 (Pub. L. 100-404, approved Aug. 19, 1988). The requirements for States will be covered in the State proposed rules.

The proposed rule would address:

1. The new requirements for a citizens participation plan;

2. The circumstances under which a grant recipient may newly construct, or substantially reconstruct, housing where it is clear that such work is needed before the CDBG activity commences; (cont)

HUD—CPD — Final Rule Stage

The 1987 Amendments to the Uniform Act become effective April 2, 1989.

Abstract: The 1987 Amendments to the Uniform Relocation Act (P.L. 100-17) make numerous changes to the Uniform Act. Among the changes is the expansion of coverage to displacement resulting from rehabilitation, demolition or privately undertaken acquisition carried out for a federally assisted project or program. For HUD-assisted community development and housing programs, the expanded coverage will apply to displacements occurring on or after April 2, 1989. The amendments will contain the necessary conforming changes to HUD programs consistent with the final governmentwide rule implementing the 1987 Amendments to the Uniform Act. Legal Authority: PL 100-242, Sec 150(b); PL 100-242, Sec 150(f)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 511

Abstract: This rule will implement sections 150(b) and 150(f) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 which amend sections 17(a)(1)(A)and 17(k)(4), respectively, of the United States Housing Act of 1937. Section 150(b) makes eligible for rehabilitation grant funds property that will be privately owned upon completion of rehabilitation. The previous authorizing legislation and current regulations limit the use of rehabilitation grant funds to properties that are (and continue to be) privately owned. Section 150(f) expands the definition of "privately owned real property to be used primarily for residential rental purposes" (and thus eligible for rehabilitation grant funds) to include housing that is owned by a State or locally chartered, neighborhood based, nonprofit organization the primary purpose of which is the provision and improvement of housing.

Abstract: Proposed new rule would create a consolidated, streamlined program. The redesign would consolidate three funding programs--FHAP, CHRB and FHIP to eliminate duplication of effort and overlapping of voluntary and enforcement activities undertaken by agencies. The major funding component of this program will be formula-driven according to the population of the participating jurisdictions.

Abstract: This rule would implement section 118(a) and 118(d). Section 118(a) requires HUD to amend the Performance Funding System, among other things, to provide for a formal review process for PHAs to obtain a change in allowable expense level to correct inequities in the original base year expense level, to correct for changes in operating circumstances and to reflect the level of economic distress of the locality. Section 118(d) also provides for sharing of the savings between a PHA and HUD for energy conservation improvements, and for preservation of subsidy when several units are rehabilitated and combined into fewer units. In addition, the rule would specify what requirements an insurance company or other risk protection provider must satisfy in order for the coverage to comply with ACC insurance requirements.

Abstract: This rule would establish procedures for the approval and funding of replacement housing for public housing units that have been demolished or disposed of. In addition, this rule would require that HUD may approve an application for demolition if the project is obsolete, making it unusable for housing purposes and if no reasonable program modifications are feasible to return the project to a useful life. The rule would also require HUD, in allocating assistance for public housing acquisition or development or for Section 8 moderate rehabilitation, to give consideration to housing that replaces demolished public housing units in accordance with an approved replacement plan. PHAs would be prohibited from taking any action to demolish or dispose of public housing projects without obtaining HUD's approval and satisfying pertinent statutory requirements.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 100-242, Sec 119

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 968

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 119 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 (Pub. L. 100-242, approved February 5, 1988) began a two-part legislative process designed to develop a Comprehensive Grant Program (CGP) which would provide an improved means of allocating funds for the modernization of public housing for PHAs that own or operate a total of 500 or more units.

Section 119 contemplates the adoption, by the Congress, of a follow-up statute providing for a revised method for allocating assistance under the new program. Until this additional legislation is approved, HUD's current method of allocating funds will continue in effect.

The Department is developing procedural rules to govern administration of the new CGP under the new system outlined in section 119, and published a proposed rule on this subject on October 27, 1988. The proposed rule also proposed simplifying the current CIAP program and limiting it to PHAs that own or operate fewer than 500 units. (cont)

Semiannual Agenda of Rules Scheduled for Review or Development

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Interior.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development.

SUMMARY: This notice provides the semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development between October 1989 and April 1990. An agenda is required by Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

ADDRESS: Unless otherwise indicated, all Agency Contacts are located at the Department of the Interior, 18th and C Streets NW., Washington, DC 20240.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: All comments and inquiries with regard to these rules should be directed to the appropriate Agency Contact. General comments relating to the agenda should be directed to the Division of Directives and Regulatory Management, Office of Management Improvement, Department of the Interior, 18th and C Streets NW., MIB-2242, Washington, DC 20240, or on 202-343-6191.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: With this publication, the Department satisfies the requirement of Executive Order 12291 that the Department publish in April and October of each year an agenda of rules that have been issued or are expected to be issued and currently effective rules that are scheduled for review.

Simultaneously, the Department meets the requirement of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) that an agenda be published in April and October of each year identifying rules which will have significant economic effects on a substantial number of small entities; those rules which will have such effects are specifically identified in the agenda.

This agenda also identifies rules determined to be "significant" under Executive Order 12498 and which are included in this Department's 1989-90 regulatory program. A more comprehensive discussion of this program and the rules are contained in the Regulatory Program of the United States Government, which is published by the Office of Management and Budget.

Dated: August 31, 1989.

Charles E. Kay,

Acting Assistant Secretary, Policy, Budget and Administration.

1123. NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, March 20, 1989.
42 USC 9651(c)(3) requires biennial review and revision as appropriate of the regulations.

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c) (2) (A) calls for the promulgation of simplified assessment procedures. The first type A procedure for coastal and marine environments uses a computer model known as the natural resource damage assessment model for coastal and marine environments (NRDAM/CME). Section 301(c)(3) of CERCLA requires the biennial review of these natural resource damage assessment regulations. Since type A regulations were published as a final rule in 1987, the Department will issue an advance notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM). This ANPRM will ask trustees, other interested parties, and members of the public to draw upon their experience with the type A procedure to advise the Department of areas where revisions to the type A procedure may be appropriate.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory. 42 USC 9651(c)(3) requires biennial review and revision, as appropriate, of the regulations. This ANPRM will begin the review process.

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(B) calls for the promulgation of a set of alternative protocols for the testing, sampling, and determining compensation for natural resource damages, referred to as the type B procedures. Section 301(c)(3) requires the biennial review of these natural resource damage assessment regulations. Since the general process and type B procedures were published as a final rule in 1986, the Department will issue an advance notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) to begin the second biennial review of these regulations. This ANPRM will ask trustees, other interested parties, and members of the public to draw upon their experience with the type B procedures, and the general assessment process, to advise the Department of areas where revisions to the process and the type B procedures may be desired.

1128. NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department has promulgated regulations, codified at 43 CFR Part 11, for the assessment of damages to natural resources injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. The regulations provide two types of assesement procedures: simplified procedures requiring minimal field investigation, referred to as the type A procedures; and alternative protocols for the testing, sampling, and valuing of natural resource damages, referred to as the type B procedures. The type A procedures that have been developed are for use in coastal and marine environments. The Department has stated that, when possible, it would develop additional type A procedures for other environments or natural resources. An advance notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) will be issued by the Department. This ANPRM will solicit suggestions and supporting technical information for possible development of other type A procedures.

Abstract: The Title IX regulation is intended to address the problem of discrimination on the basis of sex in any education program or activity receiving or benefiting from Federal financial assistance administered by the Department of the Interior (DOI). No alternative for addressing problems of discrimination in DOI's education programs can be considered due to the fact that Title IX requires each Federal agency which extends Federal financial assistance to any educational program or activity, to issue rules and regulations implementing Title IX.

DOI's recipients are anticipated to incur expenses in two (2) areas: (1) Data collection and recordkeeping; (2) rectifying areas of noncompliance with Title IX. With respect to DOI, expenses will be incurred in three (3) areas: (1) Development and publication of the Title IX rule; (2) Provision of technical assistance; and (3) Accomplishing compliance reviews and enforcement activities.

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 17, Subpart B

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking will amend the regulation issued by DOI at 43 CFR 17, Subpart B, for enforcement of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, in federally assisted programs or activities to include a cross-reference to the Uniform Federal Accessibility Standards (UFAS). The regulatory amendment is intended to encourage DOI's recipients to follow UFAS for new construction and alteration projects. No alternative exists to issuing this regulation. This amendment was found to be appropriate and necessary, and is being issued by DOI pursuant to directions received from the Civil Rights Division of the Department of Justice under the authority of Executive Order 12250. It has been determined that this rule is nonmajor and that it has no major cost effect. This amendment will promote governmentwide consistency and minimize public confusion by referencing new architectural standards that are presently in use by the Department of Justice and fourteen other Federal agencies.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 16 USC 701 to 718

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service, in coordination with the States, identifies areas of migratory bird hunting where the use of conventional lead shotshells results in lead poisoning of such birds and other wildlife. The Service will review existing nontoxic shot zones for the continued need for inclusion, and propose new areas for consideration as appropriate.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory. Final, Statutory.
In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than 1 year after such proposal.

Abstract: The Service proposes to list the Desert tortoise (Gopherus agassizii) population north and west of the Colorado River as endangered. A fatal disease, currently referred to as Desert Tortoise Respiratory Disease Syndrome, has been identified and has caused significant declines to certain tortoise populations and threatens epidemic conditions to populations already stressed as a result of habitat degradation, predation, and other factors.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1371(a)(5); 16 USC 1536(b)(4)

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 18.27; 50 CFR 402.14(i)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will implement 1986 amendments to the Marine Mammal Protection Act and the Endangered Species Act to allow the incidental take of depleted as well as non-depleted marine mammals, to allow incidental taking and require that the incidental take of endangered or threatened marine mammals not be authorized until authorized under the provisions of the Marine Mammal Protection Act.

1168. PROPOSED DETERMINATION OF EXPERIMENTAL POPULATION STATUS FOR AN INTRODUCED POPULATION OF COLORADO SQUAWFISH

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to introduce Colorado squawfish (Ptychocheilus lucius) into the lower Colorado River in Arizona and to determine the population to be "nonessential experimental" population according to Section 10(j) of the Endangered Species Act. The Service will propose a special rule to allow take in accordance with State law. In the past, Colorado squawfish were more widespread in the State of Arizona, occurring in several river drainages. This action is being taken in an effort to establish an additional population within the species' historic range.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 to 1543

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory. Final, Statutory. Other, Statutory.
In accordance with 16 U.S.C. 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than one year after such proposal.

Abstract: Regulations will be developed which would list, reclassify or delist, as appropriate, certain species of fish, wildlife, and plants under the Endangered Species Act, and where prudent, would identify critical habitat for endangered and threatened species. Such actions are taken upon determination that species are endangered, threatened, or neither and are based solely on the biological information available to the Department.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1371(a)(5)

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 18.27

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under existing regulations implementing the Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA), corporations organized under United States laws, but not controlled by individuals who are U.S. citizens, cannot be issued Letters of Authorization to undertake activities pursuant to any specific regulations authorizing an incidental take of marine mammals. This rule will amend the definition of U.S. citizen in the current regulations to allow corporations subject to U.S. jurisdiction to participate under the MMPA.

1174. HUMANE TRANSPORT OF WILD MAMMALS AND BIRDS AMENDMENTS

Legal Authority: PL 97-79 95 Stat. 073

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 14

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 9(d) of the Lacey Act Amendments of 1981 shifted the authority for prescribing requirements for the humane and healthful transport of wild mammals and birds from the Secretary of the Treasury to the Secretary of the Interior. A final rule promulgating this authority in 50 CFR 14, was published on November 10, 1987 (52 FR 43274). The Service will review the regulations for the purpose of proposing improvements and clarifications.

1176. ● DETERMINATION OF EXPERIMENTAL POPULATION STATUS FOR AN INTRODUCED POPULATION OF GUAM RAILS ON ROTA IN THE COMMONWEALTH OF THE NORTHERN MARIANA ISLANDS

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to introduce captive-bred Guam rails (Rallus owstoni) onto the island of Rota in the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands over a 5-year period. The Rota population will be designated a nonessential experimental population according to section 10(j) of the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended. The species is currently protected at 13 different captive propagation facilities and nonessential status would provide the flexibility in managing the Rota population.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 712

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 21

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service will modify two existing depredation orders (50 CFR 21.43 and 21.44) to prohibit killing of the tricolored blackbird throughout its range and seven species of western meadowlarks, American, Lesser and Lawrence's goldfinches, acorn woodpeckers, Lewis' woodpeckers, and northern flickers. This action is necessary because these species are no longer serious agricultural pests, and some have been declining in numbers such that their continued existence may be in jeopardy without additional protection.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory. Final, Statutory. Other, Statutory.
In accordance with 16 USC 1533, the Service must take action (list, withdraw, or extend the rulemaking for six months) on a proposed listing no later than one year after such proposal.

Abstract: Regulations will be developed which would list, reclassify, or delist, as appropriate certain species of fish, wildlife and plants under the Endangered Species Act, and where prudent, would identify critical habitat for endangered and threatened species. Such actions are taken upon determination that species are endangered, threatened, or neither and are based solely on the biological information available to the Department.

1184. PROPOSED DETERMINATION OF NONESSENTIAL EXPERIMENTAL POPULATION STATUS FOR AN INTRODUCED POPULATION OF THE NASHVILLE CRAYFISH IN TENNESSEE

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service proposes to reintroduce the Nashville Crayfish (Orconectes shoupi), federally listed as an endangered species, into Richland Creek, Davidson County, Tennessee, and to determine this population to be a nonessential experimental population according to Section 10(j) of the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended. Section 10(j) of the Act authorizes nonessential experimental populations to be treated as if they were proposed species for the purposes of Section 7 of the Act. The Nashville crayfish is presently know to inhabit Mill Creek and five of its tributaries in Davidson and Williamson Counties, Tennessee.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1531 et seq

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service is designating critical habitat for the Concho water snake under the authority of the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended. The Concho water snake was listed as a threatened species in September 1986; however, final designation of the proposed critical habitat was postponed at that time. Critical habitat is now being designated in portions of the Concho and Colorado Rivers, Runnels, Tom Green, Concho, Coleman, and McCulloch Counties, Texas.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 7.13

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed regulation will exempt the section of U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park from the prohibition on the use of National Park Service roads by commercial vehicles when such use has in no way a connection with operation of the park; delete the special regulations establishing the speed limit on U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park; and restrict the amount and type of hazardous materials which may be transported on U.S. 191 within Yellowstone National Park. The special regulation establishing the present fee schedule for commercial traffic within Yellowstone will be eliminated and the Superintendent provided the discretion to establish and adjust fees for such use on an annual basis.

These actions will clearly define the management and regulation of commercial traffic on U.S. 191 through Yellowstone and assure a certain measure of protection against hazardous waste spills.

Abstract: Several sections of 36 CFR Part 9, Subpart B contain ambiguous language which has caused confusion in interpreting the existing regulations. The NPS wants to make technical revisions to clarify requirements for both applicants and the Service. Also, the existing regulations exempt two classes of operators from compliance. Because of these exemptions, the regulations apply to only 35% of the existing operations resulting in avoidable impacts to park resources and visitor values from unregulated operations. Finally, the Service intends to revise the existing regulations to incorporate congressionally mandated requirements and timetables governing nonfederal oil and gas development in the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition. Examples of such revisions include: making the regulations applicable to all oil and gas operations within all units of the National Park System; updating terms for consistency with existing policies, practices, and laws; removing the monetary ceiling and floor on bonds and security deposits so that bonds may be calculated and posted commensurate with reclamation costs; revising sections of the regulations to make them consistent with the enabling (cont)

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1 et seq; 31 USC 9701; 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9, Subpart C

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Extensive nonfederal mineral rights exist within units of the National Park System. The Service presently regulates only nonfederal oil and gas activities occurring in those units. Mineral activities, other than those associated with nonfederal oil and gas, are occurring in approximately 13 units of the System. There are also 7 additional units in which nonfederal mineral development is currently proposed or has recently been proposed. The Service is charged by Congress to ensure that the development of nonfederal mineral rights within park boundaries is consistent with the purposes for which the units were established. The proposed regulation would establish procedures and standards governing nonfederal mineral development, other than nonfederal oil and gas, in a manner that protects affected park units until such time that the Service has sufficient funds to acquire the mineral right.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 470 et seq

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 63

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule incorporates certain revisions responding to the National Historic Preservation Act Amendments of 1980. In addition to responding to the new law, these changes update and revise in other minor respects the procedures for determining the eligibility of properties for the National Register. This rule will be consolidated with 36 CFR Part 60. Proposed rule (36 CFR Part 1204) was published May 23, 1980 (45 FR 34909).

1228. MANAGEMENT OF MINERAL DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATED WITH MINING CLAIMS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1901 et seq Mining in the Parks Act of 1976; 16 USC 1 et seq NPS Organic Act; 30 USC 21 et seq Mining Law of 1872

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9, Subpart A

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The existing regulations at 36 CFR Part 9, Subpart A, promulgated in January of 1977, contain several provisions that are either outdated or have proven difficult to understand, enforce and comply with. Most notable is a provision regarding the use of water in connection with mining claims within National Park System units. The current language creates a "catch 22" for miners seeking to use water in connection with their claims. In order to use water in a park, a miner must have perfected water right. However, to obtain a perfected water right, a miner must use water. Herein lies the "catch 22." The National Park Service (NPS) would like to rectify this dilemma through a rule change that would eliminate the perfected water right language while at the same time preserve the Service's ability to protect water quality and quantity. Additional changes sought by the NPS are as follows: Several sections of the regulations refer to a surface disturbance moratorium (mandated by the Mining in the Parks Act of 1976, 16 USC 1901 et seq) which expired in 1980. Other sections include transitional procedures used temporarily in implementing the regulations.

State of Alaska has a similar regulation in place, commonly referred to as the "same-day-airborne" regulation, recent changes to their regulation have allowed exceptions for some species in certain State of Alaska game management units including the National Preserve areas. This exception will allow "land-and-shoot" hunting of wolves in the National Preserves. The proposed National Park Service regulation will prohibit "land-and-shoot" hunting for big game including the following species: All species of Bears, Bison, Caribou, Elk, Mountain Coat, Moose, Musk Oxen, Dall Sheep, Wolf, Wolverine, Coyote, Arctic and Red Fox, and Lynx.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 4.15

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, October 1988.

Abstract: This rulemaking would establish an NPS mandatory seatbelt regulation to apply in park areas that are located within States that do not have a seatbelt law in effect. This regulation would affect 100 park areas in 18 States. The regulation would apply to all of a vehicle's front seat occupants except those that are occupying a seat that was not originally equipped by the manufacturer with a seatbelt and those with a medical condition that prevents restraint by a seatbelt.

1238. LEASING OF RESTRICTED LANDS OF MEMBERS OF FIVE CIVILIZED TRIBES, OKLAHOMA, FOR MINING

Legal Authority: Sec. 2, 35 Stat. 312; Sec. 16, 41 Stat. 426; Sec. 1, 45 Stat. 495; Sec. 1, 47 Stat. 777; 25 USC 356; Secs. 3, 11, 35 Stat. 313, 316; Sec. 8, 47 Stat. 779

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 213

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule is being revised to ensure consistency with existing law and to improve operating procedures. Issues to be addressed include authority to lease inherited restricted land, the processing of lease payments through the Minerals Management Service, and the approval process for division orders. There are no alternatives being considered and the potential cost is unknown.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9; 43 USC 1457

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 115

Abstract: The Individual Indian Money Account program involves funds held in trust status for individuals. Although the rule generally prohibits voluntary accounts, except in circumstances of substantial hardship, the Bureau currently maintains many such accounts in the program. The current regulations will be revised to include specific criteria which must be met by voluntary depositors and which determine cases of "substantial hardship" as required by the regulations.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 25 USC 13; PL 98-473

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau is amending existing Financial Assistance and Social Services Program regulations to further define the adult care services provided to Indian people. These proposed regulations define the extent of the program, establish eligibility requirements, and establish adult care services as a social services program separate and distinct from the general assistance program. The revision is needed to specifically define the Bureau's role in the provision of institutional and in-home care to Indian adults who are mentally or physically handicapped or otherwise disabled. The Bureau is also amending miscellaneous assistance provisions to conform with the congressional directive in Public Law 98-473. Miscellaneous assistance will be revised and defined as burial assistance. Emergency assistance previously provided under miscellaneous assistance was transferred to general assistance by revision of 25 CFR Part 20(c) on September 30, 1985.

1244. SMALL ESTATES - OSAGE

Legal Authority: 92 Stat. 1660

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action would permit the Field Solicitor, Pawhuska, Oklahoma, to determine the heirs, devisees and/or legatees of estates under the jurisdiction of the Osage Agency, consisting of Osage headright interest, real estate on which restrictions against alienation have not been removed, and/or funds on deposit at the Osage Agency, all of which do not exceed a valuation of $10,000 on the date of death of a decedent, when requested in writing by one or more of the heirs, devisees and/or legatees; provided, that a court of competent jurisdiction has not proceeded to administer or probate the estate. The administration of such estates by the Field Solicitor would alleviate the necessity of the employment of an attorney by the beneficiaries, approval of the will pursuant to 25 CFR Part 17, and the filing of administration or probate proceedings in State Court. Because of the size of these estates, it is financially impractical for the beneficiaries to employ attorneys for that purpose.

Abstract: This rulemaking action is to add a new Part 70 to govern the issuance of Certificates of Degree of Indian Blood (CDIB's). There has been a sharp increase in the number of requests for CDIB's over the past few years. More and more programs are requiring individuals to submit CDIB's to document possession of Indian blood. This rulemaking action is intended to clarify the circumstances under which the Bureau will issue CDIB's; the documents and records on which the Bureau will base the issuance of CDIB's; and the procedures that individuals will need to follow, including any documentation requirements, to obtain CDIB's.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, August 5, 1989. Final, Statutory, October 5, 1989.

Abstract: The primary purpose of the amendments to 93 USC 638 is to permit an orderly transition from Federal domination of programs for and services to Indians to effective and meaningful participation by the Indian people in the planning, conduct, and administration of those programs and services while maintaining the Federal Government's unique and continuing relationship with and responsibility to individual Indian tribes and to the Indian people as a whole. In addition to extensive consultation with the tribes and Native American groups, the Bureau of Indian Affairs is examining all of its planning administrative procedures from the perspective of maximizing tribal participation. Due to the broad scope of the review, an estimate of the potential cost and potential benefit is premature. The changes are one of process rather than increases or decreases in budget or program funding. The major potential cost is to the Federal Government in order to meet the insurance requirement of the law. The amount is undetermined to date.

1250. LAW AND ORDER ON INDIAN RESERVATIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9; 25 USC 13

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present regulations contain a very incomplete criminal code that does not cover many areas of the law that are usually in the laws of the State where the reservation is located. The current regulations also contain very sketchy provisions on criminal and civil procedure. It is proposed to update the sections on criminal offenses, and essentially create new sections on criminal procedures, domestic relations, probate proceedings, appellate proceedings and juvenile proceedings.

This will provide the Courts of Indian Offenses with more complete and up to date procedures and rules. Courts will have a six month period from the date of publication of the final rule to the effective date in which to revise their court codes. It is not anticipated that this revision will have any effect on the annual case load for these courts or require additional staffing. Therefore, the initiation of these rules should not result in additional costs.

Additional Information: In May 1962, the District Court for the District of Arizona invalidated the regulation of 25 CFR 167 and ordered the Bureau to publish new regulations. The Bureau published interim regulations on Hopi partitioned lands on September 8, 1962. During the past year several meetings have been held with the Navajo Tribe to obtain concurrence to include Navajo partitioned land in the regulations. The Navajo Tribe expressed the desire for separate regulations and the Bureau has drafted a new regulation for Navajo Partitioned Land within the existing 25 CFR Part 167.

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs proposes to revise the rule concerning the circumstances under which the Bureau of Indian Affairs, in the performance of the Federal Government's trust responsibility to Indian tribes, may, in its discretion, provide Departmental funds to an Indian tribe or other Indian organization for the payment of a private attorney's legal services. The proposed revisions would not change the underlying policy of the current rule which is to pay for private counsel to represent Indian tribes only in exceptional circumstances. The principal changes involve representation in child custody proceedings, services of tribal court personnel, and non-litigation services. The proposed revision would also provide that when trust resources are involved, tribes and individual Indian allottees are eligible to apply for and receive federally appropriated funds under 25 CFR 89.

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs intends to amend several sections of its rights-of-way regulations which impose a variety of specific requirements on grantees of rights-of-way over Indian lands. These requirements were intended to implement public laws enacted around the turn of the century which authorized the Secretary of the Interior to issue rights-of-way for various specific purposes. In 1948 Congress gave the Department comprehensive authority to grant rights-of-way for any purpose or any term of years without the antiquated restrictions of the older statutes. The regulations continue to reflect the old requirements and the result has been inconsistent application of the 1948 Act. The removal or revisions of these sections would end that practice.

Abstract: The rules are being amended to strengthen the management of the Osage mineral estates and relieve the Osage oil lessees from basing the payment of royalties to the Osage Tribe on the offered or posted price of a major purchaser in the Kansas-Oklahoma area. These regulations will improve the management of the Osage mineral estate and will alleviate the economic hardship placed on the oil lessees.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 26, 1988.
One year from date of enactment for completion of the tribal membership roll.

Abstract: This rulemaking action is being taken to amend the regulations contained in 25 CFR Part 61. Part 61 contains general enrollment procedures which can be made specifically applicable in the preparation of a particular roll by the Secretary by amending section 61.4 to include the qualifications for enrollment for that particular roll. Under the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe of Indians Distribution of Judgment Funds Act of 1987, the Secretary has been directed to prepare certain rolls of Cow Creek Indians to be used in the implementation of the Act. The proposed amendment is, therefore, to make the procedures contained in Part 61 applicable to the preparation of the Cow Creek rolls by adding in section 61.4 the qualifications for enrollment for each of the rolls to be prepared.

1263. APPEALS FROM ADMINISTRATIVE ACTIONS

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 2

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present administrative appeal regulations are ambiguous and misleading. It is difficult to tell what issues may be appealed and to whom the appeal should be sent. Most deadlines are uncertain. Those that are certain are often unrealistic. It is also unclear when a final decision will be rendered by the Interior Board of Indian Appeals and when it will be rendered by the Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs. Alternatives will be developed by reviewing the existing appeal regulations of other agencies. Consideration will be given to specifying which types of appeals go to the Assistant Secretary and which to the Board. The alternative of providing for the Assistant Secretary to make a case-by-case decision whether or not to refer the matter to the Board will also be considered. The primary benefit should be reduced frustration for both appellants and the BIA officials who handle the appeals. The greatest cost may be that both appellants and BIA officials may have to comply with more specified procedures and meet more deadlines in order for the system to work.

Abstract: The proposed rule revision will resolve problems encountered with existing regulations published almost ten years ago. Revisions will reduce time and resources required to process petitions, clarify terms and definitions, interpret criteria, add a process whereby groups may withdraw a petition, improve the appeal process and respond to changing conditions. The revised rule will be more cost effective for the Department and Indian groups petitioning for Federal acknowledgment. The proposed revisions will be published taking into consideration ten years of experience with the regulations. Revisions will reflect recommendations received from the Congress, Indian groups and tribes, other Federal agencies and national organizations.

Abstract: The regulations at 30 CFR 228, implementing section 202 of the Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Management Act of 1982, 30 USC 1719, provide that the Federal share of funding of certain cooperative agreement activities with any State or Indian Tribe will be limited to not more than 50 percent of the cost of eligible activities as established under the terms of the cooperative agreement. However, Congress recently passed "The Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act Amendment of 1988," October 5, 1988, PL 100-472, which included amendments to PL 93-638 to require all Bureaus within the Department of the Interior to enter into PL 93-638 contracts with Indian Tribes. Consequently, the cooperative agreements that MMS may enter into in the future with Indian Tribes will be considered PL 93-638 self-determination contracts. Because PL 93-638 entitles an Indian Tribe to Federal reimbursement of 100 percent of the costs of an approved self- determination contract. MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to remove the 50-percent Federal funding limitation.

1269. AIR QUALITY - OFFSHORE CALIFORNIA

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.47

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Amendments to the DOI Air Quality regulation for oil and gas operations will be proposed for Outer Continental Shelf areas adjacent to California. The changes would provide additional safeguards for those pollutants which could be critical to air quality in the region. The costs have been determined to have a net present value of approximately $25M to the regulated industry; the net benefits have not been quantified but would be a reduction in any effect of emissions from OCS operations on the ozone levels in adjacent onshore areas. This may be expected to yield cost reductions in health services and other related areas. The DOI has conducted a conflict assessment to determine the likelihood of the interested and affected parties being able to reach an agreement on an air quality regulatory program. If the affected parties involved can develop a mutually agreeable set of requirements, then DOI will initiate rulemaking based on that agreement.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1339

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 230

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking is needed to add new regulations covering recoupment and refunds of excess payments made under Federal offshore mineral leases which are subject to section 10 of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act of 1953 (OCSLA), 43 USC 1339. This rule would establish requirements and guidelines for crediting (recouping) excess payments of royalties, rentals, bonuses, or other amounts against a current or future payment obligation or refunding such excess payment to any person lawfully entitled to receive a refund or credit for an overpayment made under an offshore lease. The new regulation is intended to lessen confusion on the part of payors, operators, and the Minerals Management Service.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 243

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The MMS regulations at 30 CFR 243.2 address the effectiveness of its Royalty Management Program decisions and orders pending administrative appeal. At the time the rule was issued in 1984, it was MMS's interpretation that most decisions and orders would not be suspended pending appeal. However, in 1986, the Interior Board of Land Appeals (IBLA) determined that unless there were special circumstances, the Director, MMS, was required to stay effectiveness of decisions and orders pending appeal provided the appellant posted adequate surety (Marathon Oil Company, 90 IBLA 236 (1986)). In view of the IBLA decision, an amendment is needed to MMS regulations at 30 CFR 243.2 to reflect clearly that MMS decisions and orders are stayed pending administrative appeal, the types of sureties which would be acceptable to MMS, and related issues.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR Part 250 which govern oil and gas and sulphur operations in the OCS will be revised to address in greater specificity training requirements for personnel engaged in oil, gas, and sulphur drilling, development, and production operations in the OCS. Training requirements were addressed in a proposed rule to consolidate into one document the rules governing oil and gas and sulphur operations in the OCS which was published on March 18, 1986 (51 FR 9316). The training provisions of that proposed rule have been revised, updated, and consolidated under a new Subpart O, Training. Other alternatives considered were not revising the regulations and revising only those regulations identified by industry. Promulgation of the regulation is not expected to result in costs significantly more than those incurred through the unregulated use of good commercial practices.

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR 250 which govern oil and gas and sulphur operations in the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) will be revised to address sulphur exploration, development, and production operations with more specificity. Sulphur operations are currently addressed through rules applicable to oil, gas, and sulphur and through OCS Order No. 10, Sulphur Drilling Procedures, issued by the Gulf of Mexico OCS Region. Comments received as the result of the publication on March 18, 1986 (51 FR 9316), of a proposed rule to consolidate rules governing oil, gas, and sulphur operations in the OCS included recommendations for the development of regulations which treat sulphur operations in the OCS with greater specificity. Abstract: The existing regulations require that the value of certain processed gas that is not sold pursuant to an arm's-length contract shall be the greater of value determined by two different methods. The comparison of the two values is commonly referred to as "dual accounting." The dual accounting requirement results in the inconsistent valuation of gas depending on whether it is sold in an arm's-length or a non-arm's length situation. Regulation amendments are being developed which would eliminate the accounting for comparison requirement except where required by lease terms.

Abstract: The existing regulations provide for the valuation of unprocessed gas, residue gas, or any gas plant product which is not sold pursuant to an arm's-length contract to be determined in accordance with a benchmark method. In the final regulations, MMS adopted as the first benchmark the lessee's gross proceeds received under its non-arm's-length transaction if they were equivalent to the gross proceeds received under comparable arm's-length contracts for like-quality production in the same field or area. The criteria to be considered in defining comparable contracts were also outlined. However, since the adoption of the revised regulations, numerous questions have been raised as to the interpretation of the first benchmark. These questions have identified the need to further clarify MMS's intention in this regard.

1276. AMENDMENTS TO 30 CFR 250.52 TO ADD REQUIREMENTS INTENDED TO PREVENT OCCURRENCE OF ACCIDENTAL FIRES CAUSED BY FALLING SLAG FROM WELDING OR BURNING

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.52

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service proposes to amend 30 CFR 250.52 to add requirements designed to increase personnel safety and minimize property damage by avoiding or preventing the occurrence of accidental fires caused by hot slag from welding or burning activities falling into flammable material floating on the ocean surface beneath Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) facilities. The proposed amendment was prompted by the recommendations of an investigation of a January 6, 1984, accidental fire believed to have been caused by hot welding slag igniting a layer of hydrocarbons floating on the surface of the ocean water beneath an OCS facility. Three men died and nine were burned as a consequence of that fire. The alternative considered was to send lessees advisory notices alerting them of the potential danger of welding slag; however, the alternative was considered less effective because it lacked enforcement. The proposed amendment would not result in increases in cost to lessees or consumers.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule is intended to remove apparent inconsistency in current regulations concerning the release of data and information submitted to MMS on certain MMS forms. Section 250.18 specifies periods of time that certain geological and geophysical data will be protected from disclosure to the public when submitted on specific forms, but release dates for similar data and information on other forms are not mentioned in the regulations. The alternatives of providing guidance through an OCS Order and through a Notice to Lessees and Operators on a region-to-region basis does not ensure that information is uniformly available to the public. This rulemaking does not involve any significant additional costs. Its benefits are the removal of ambiguity in the current regulations and the availability of data and information to the public on a uniform basis in all OCS Regions.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The MMS Auditing and Financial System (AFS) matches and applies each payment received to its corresponding report or bill. If a payment cannot be automatically matched and applied by the AFS because of inadequate or erroneous information, it must be manually matched and applied by MMS personnel. The manual matching of payments to reports and bills results in MMS incurring substantial costs so that the AFS can operate properly to account for and distribute royalties. This situation also delays the payment application process and can result in delay in distribution of royalties and related information to States and Indian Tribes and allottees. To recover the costs, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to add a new assessment amount not to exceed $250 per incident. The new assessment would encourage payors to submit their payment, when required, together with the applicable report or copy of the bill and for the same amount as the report or bill. The new assessment would also encourage payors to adequately identify payments to the report or bill to be paid.

Abstract: The MMS does not currently have regulations which delineate how service of official correspondence, including orders, decisions, demands for payment and notices of noncompliance issued by its Royalty Management Program is effectuated. In the absence of MMS regulations, the Interior Board of Land Appeals (IBLA) (IBLA-87-349) reversed a decision by the Director, MMS that an appeal had not been timely filed and therefore would not be considered. A rule is required that would: 1) establish an "address of record" to which official correspondence will be sent, and 2) define the "date of service" whether the document was physically or constructively delivered. The date of service established in accordance with this rule also would be the beginning date of the 30-day period in 30 CFR Part 290 for the filing of an appeal relative to an order or decision.

1280. ● AMENDMENT TO THE REGULATIONS CONCERNING THE REQUIREMENT FOR SUBMISSION OF A CORPORATE SURETY BOND TO INDEMNIFY THE U.S. FROM DEFAULT BY A LESSEE ON THE CONDITIONS AND TERMS OF AN OCS LEASE

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1335

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 256

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would amend current regulations requiring lessee surety bonds. The monetary value of surety bonds designated in current regulations was established over a decade ago and is seriously inadequate to protect the government from loss due to lessee failure to meet the terms of the OCS lease for royalty payments, proper abandonment of wells, site cleanup, and ongoing lease operations. Bond requirements may be increased on a case-by-case basis, as an alternative to rule change. This might result in inconsistent requirements. The potential costs are whatever increase is incurred in obtaining a higher value bond. Benefits would be a reduced potential for government loss and a greater protection of the public interest.

Abstract: Because royalty payments are a major source of income to many Indian allottees, and the only source in some instances, it has been a longstanding Department of the Interior policy that overpayments made by lessees and other royalty payors to Indians cannot be recovered by refund. This policy was established to prevent an undue financial burden on Indian allottees who may have limited financial means to refund the overpayment. However, the adopted policy permits lessees and payors to recoup overpayments as a credit against future rental or royalty accruals due to Indian tribes or allottees. Lessees and operators were instructed to follow this recoupment policy in "Notice to Lessees and Operators of Indian Oil and Gas Leases No. 1A" (NTL-1A), issued by the Conservation Division of U.S. Geological Survey in 1977. The MMS published revised final oil and gas product valuation regulations at 30 CFR Part 206 on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1184 and 53 FR 1230), effective March 1, 1988. Section 206.150(e)(2) of the revised regulations terminated NTL-1A. Although the Indian lease overpayment recoupment policy has been the same for many years, MMS believes that its (cont)

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) published final revised regulations governing the valuation of gas from Federal leases onshore and on the Outer Continental Shelf and from Indian Tribal and allotted leases in the Federal Register on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1230). The proposed gas valuation provisions of section 206.153, in part, govern the determination of value in situations where the lessee's contract for the sale of gas prior to processing provides for the value to be determined based upon a percentage of the purchases proceeds resulting from processing the gas. However, the inclusion of these percentages-of-proceeds contracts under section 206.153 has created unreasonable burdens on lessees. Consequently, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to provide for the valuation of gas under percentage-of-proceeds contracts to be under the unprocessed gas valuation standards of section 206.152, rather than section 206.153.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.1; 30 CFR 250.126

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR 250.126 on the manufacture of safety and pollution-prevention equipment (i.e., surface and subsurface safety valves) are being amended. The amendment would update the American National Standards Institute/American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ANSI/ASME) SPPE-1 standard from the 1985 edition to the 1988 edition and allow compliance with either the updated version of the ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 quality assurance (QA) program (1988 edition) or the proposed American Petroleum Institute (API) QA program (API Spec Q1 in combination with API Specs 14A and 14b). Other alternatives considered were not to amend the rule and to continue using ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 as the only type of certification for the QA program. The costs to lessees under the API program or the updated ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 program are not expected to be significantly different than the costs under the current program. If there is any cost difference, it is expected to be a reduction in cost since the use of the API program is an option to the use of the ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 program. Lessees would not be expected to choose the use of the more expensive of the approved QA programs.

Abstract: Existing regulations governing the valuation of geothermal resources provide insufficient guidance for the valuation of geothermal resources utilized to generate electricity in a lessee-owned power plant. Consequently, the Minerals Management Service has issued a report entitled "Valuation of Federal Geothermal Resources–Electrical Generation" which describes a "geothermal netback procedure" to value these "no sales" resources. An amendment is needed to the existing regulations to provide regulatory guidance after receipt and consideration of comments from the public to the existing geothermal netback procedure.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1331 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Amendments to the regulations providing for the discretionary release of postlease proprietary data and information will be proposed. The amendments would limit the discretion of the MMS Director to release such data and information by defining more precisely the circumstances under which such releases may be authorized and to whom the data and information may be shown. The alternative to the proposed amendment is the case-by-case determination of whether to release such proprietary data and information based on the existing less specific discretionary authority of the Director. This alternative leaves some degree of uncertainty to the lessee concerning the circumstances under which releases will be authorized, and possible changes in policy.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 218

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing regulations at 30 CFR 218.54, 218.55, and 218.103 govern the rate of interest to be charged on underpayments or late payments of royalty by lessees and other royalty payors, and the rate of interest to be paid on late disbursements of an Indian Tribe's or Allottee's royalty or a State's share of royalty revenues. These regulations reference section 6621 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 for the applicable interest rate in each situation. However, section 6621 was amended by the Tax Reform Act of 1986 to provide for a different interest rate for overpayments and for underpayments. A rule amendment is required to clarify an ambiguity in the existing regulations, created by the amendment to section 6621, as to which of two different rates would apply.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1863; 43 USC 1331 et seq; 42 USC 2000d to 2000e

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 271

Abstract: There are no provisions in current Minerals Management Service regulations which provide a mechanism for remedy of unlawful discrimination in Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) employment. Rules would be developed to provide a process whereby persons who believed they had been denied employment because of unlawful discrimination would have a forum. These rules would implement the purposes of section 604 of the OCS Lands Act Amendment of 1978. Alternatives considered are no action, issuance of a policy statement and no rules, and proposal of extensive affirmative action rules similar to those rescinded in the past. Very few complaints are expected to arise as there has been no evidence of discrimination to date. Therefore, costs are expected to be minimal. Benefits would be the assurance that the requirements of section 604 are being fully carried out.

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) proposes to amend 30 CFR 250.4 and 250.34(j) to implement the authority provided in the Fiscal Year 1987 Department of the Interior Appropriation Act to facilitate preparations of Environmental Impact Statements associated with the approval of certain Development and Production Plans. The alternative of prescribing specific procedures for use of such funds would not allow the flexibility to respond when the use of contractors and private contributions is the most sensible approach. There may be increased cost to some lessees; however, these costs represent a voluntary users fee comparable to the users fee provided in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1952, as amended. No increase in cost or prices would result for any other entity.

Abstract: The proposed regulation is in accordance with a court approved settlement agreement and would provide a method of calculating civil penalties when compliance with section 816.102(a) cannot be accomplished using best technology currently available or where compliance would result in significant harm to the environment and the operation does not qualify for an exemption to total highwall elimination in accordance with 30 CFR 816.102(k).

Abstract: The proposed rule would govern the collection by OSMRE of application fees for permits to conduct surface coal mining and reclamation operations, and for permits to conduct coal exploration, as well as fees for processing mining plans and for midterm review of surface coal mining and reclamation permits. Recipients of these services would be required to reimburse OSMRE for costs incurred in providing the services.

Abstract: This proposed rule would respond to a ruling by the District Court for the District of Columbia which stated that the definition of farming and agricultural activities was not equal as it related to Alluvial Valley Floors as defined in OSM's regulations. The Court ordered that the definition be repromulgated in a manner consistent with congressional intent. Pursuant to the Court ruling, additional guidance would be provided as to what the "essential hydrologic functions" are of AVFs.

Abstract: The existing rules pertaining to the requirements for permit and permit processing, permit applications and civil penalties are to be amended. The proposed revisions expressly establish an affirmative obligation on permittees and permit applicants to pay uncontested penalties and abate uncontested violations. Permittees and applicants for permits must meet these obligations prior to the issuance of a permit and as a condition of continued operation under existing permits.

Abstract: The proposed rule would clarify the applicability of the prohibitions in section 522(e) of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act to the surface impacts of underground mining. The issue of the relationship between section 522(e) and mining related subsidence will be addressed in the proposed rulemaking. The rulemaking will seek to clarify whether OSM's rules have the effect of prohibiting underground mining operations related to the features and facilities within the distance limitations enumerated in section 522(e) of the Act. The proposed rulemaking will address the issue of what is a "Surface Impact" incident to an underground mine.

Additional Information: The Office of Surface Mining has determined that the proposed rulemaking constitutes a major Federal action requiring an EIS to meet the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act. OSM has also made the determination that the proposed rule may be significant within the meaning of EO 12291. Precise cost/price impacts cannot be determined prior to further development of the regulation, but such costs are anticipated to be significant in terms of EO 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act. Therefore, a Preliminary Regulatory Impact Analysis and Small Entity Flexibility Analysis are being prepared.

Abstract: The proposed rule would comply with a court order of the District Court for the District of Columbia which remanded OSM reporting requirements for surface coal exploration. The proposed rule would revise existing requirements to include the filing of a notice by all individuals or operators planning coal exploration, and specify the information required on applications for coal exploration. The obligation to report is a standing requirement of existing regulations. This rule would expand the requirement to report. Because affected States already have the expanded requirement in place, no additional costs or benefits are expected to be associated with the rule.

Abstract: The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement is proposing to revise 30 CFR 778, which specifies what information must be furnished in a surface coal mining permit application. The permit application requirements are being revised in order to conform them to proposed revisions in 30 CFR 773 which govern the issuance of surface coal mining permits. The proposed revisions to 30 CFR 778 will require the submission of more detailed information on the ownership and control of permit applicants. It is not anticipated that the revision will impose a substantial financial burden on those applying for permits.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq; PL 100-34

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 816.74; 30 CFR 817.74

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulations at 30 CFR 816.74/817.74 allow, with the approval of the regulatory authority, the disposal of excess spoil through placement on preexisting benches provided that the standards set forth in sections 816.71/817.71 are met. These standards contain the general requirements for the disposal of excess spoil. Based on the draft study entitled "Encouraging Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation via Remining: A Federal, State and Industry Initiative" and comments received, OSMRE has reviewed these regulations. Based on this review, OSMRE has concluded that excess spoil, when placed on the benches, is similar to backfilling and grading of a highwall and bench. It therefore could be regulated under the backfilling and grading regulations in sections 816.102/817.102, in lieu of the "excess spoil" standards, while maintaining the same environmental and safety standards. The proposed rule would apply the backfilling and grading requirements to disposal of excess spoil on preexisting benches.

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 3828; 43 CFR 3811

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule establishes guidelines for mining in certain military installations under the Mining Law of 1872, as amended, and for assuring the safe, uninterrupted, and unimpeded use of the lands for military purposes. The Military Lands Withdrawal Act of 1986 specifically provided for certain military lands previously withdrawn from mining to be considered for opening to the operation of the Mining Law of 1872, as amended, with certain special restrictions. Military Lands identified as suitable for mining through the Bureau of Land Management's planning system will be opened on the effective date of an opening order that will be published in the Federal Register.

1369. NONDISCRIMINATION ON THE BASIS OF AGE IN PROGRAMS OR ACTIVITIES RECEIVING FEDERAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6103

CFR Citation: 28 CFR 42, Subpart I (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation will implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, as amended, in programs or activities assisted by the Department of Justice (DOJ). The statute, 42 USC 6103(a)(4), requires that Federal agencies providing Federal financial assistance promulgate implementing regulations consistent with the general regulations issued by the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS), and the statute provides that such agency regulations shall not be effective until approved by HHS. In 1980 the proposed rule was published for comment, modified, approved by the DOJ Office of Legal Counsel, and on November 10, 1980 a draft final rule was forwarded to HHS for approval. On July 13, 1984 HHS conditionally approved the draft regulation. On August 12, 1987 DOJ submitted to HHS a draft final regulation.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103; 8 USC 1362

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 292.1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed regulation would amend 8 CFR 292.1 and enable first and second year law students taking part in a clinical program at an accredited law school to represent individuals before the Immigration and Naturalization Service, Board of Immigration Appeals, and Immigration Judges under certain specified circumstances. It will also eliminate the provision allowing law school graduates without bar admission to practice under certain limited circumstances before the Service, Board, and Immigration Judges.

Abstract: The Immigration and Naturalization Service ("the Service") entertains numerous requests for verification of information from INS Service Records, via Form G-641. This form has been misused as a substitute document, while other INS documents are being prepared (i.e., I-94, I-551 or Certificate of Naturalization or Citizenship). Should an applicant need to have his or her status verified while waiting for one of these documents to be processed, and such verification can be satisfied by obtaining a copy of a document (certified if necessary), an FOIA/PA request can be made. If verification is needed to obtain a benefit and a copy will not suffice, the agency needing verification can make a direct request to the INS and it will be handled as appropriate.

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1101(a)(15)(B); 8 USC 1184

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 214.2(b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice announces the intent of the Immigration and Naturalization Service ("the Service") to set forth, in regulatory form, the special requirements for admission, extension and maintenance of status of nonimmigrant alien visitors for business and visitors for pleasure. Much of the Service's written policy relating to this subject is now contained in the Service's Operations Instructions at O.I. 214.2(b). Because it is more appropriate for interpretations and rules to be set forth in regulatory form, this information will become part of 8 CFR 214. In addition, the proposed rulemaking will clarify the criteria for according B-1 classification to members of certain occupations (such as participants in religious programs and members of foreign film crews). By issuing this advance notice, the Service is providing an opportunity to the public to submit comments and make suggestions at an earlier stage of the process. This will result in a proposed rule which is more comprehensive in its scope and more understandable to the public.

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA) imposes sanctions against employers who hire aliens not authorized to work. Since many of the Nation's agricultural employers have become dependent upon such workers to meet production and harvesting needs, Congress created the Special Agricultural Workers (SAW) Program and the Replenishment Agricultural Workers (RAW) Program to provide permanent resident status to certain agricultural workers. To clarify the process through which employers can employ nonimmigrant seasonal and temporary agricultural workers, Congress moved agricultural employment from H-2 classification into a separate H-2A class, and incorporated a labor certification process into the statute. This interim rule establishes special H-2A regulatory criteria. It supplements the Department of Labor's rules covering the temporary agricultural labor certification process. This rule amends Service regulations relating therefore to temporary alien workers seeking classification under section 101(a)(15)(H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Abstract: The regulatory action deals with appeals, precedent decisions, certifications, and motions. It would have a beneficial impact on the public by increasing the time periods for submission of certain appeals and briefs and making requirements easier to understand. It would have a beneficial impact on the Service by increasing the number of complete appeals filed with any supporting briefs and streamlining the Service's review of certain decisions. It would also change the title of the Chief, Administrative Appeals Unit to Director, which would have a negligible impact.

1419. JUDICIAL RECOMMENDATIONS AGAINST DEPORTATION; CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE VIOLATIONS

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103; 8 USC 1251; 8 USC 1252; 8 USC 1357

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 241

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will require additional data to be provided by an alien seeking a judicial recommendation against deportation in order to help identify him/her to the Immigration and Naturalization Service. This change is necessary to ensure that the Service will be given sufficient information necessary to identify the alien who is the subject of a motion for a judicial recommendation against deportation. This change will permit the Service sufficient time to obtain any file relating to the alien and to prepare a response, if desired, to the alien's motion for a judicial recommendation against deportation.

Legal Authority: PL 99-603, Sec 121

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice will serve as an announcement to SAVE participating agencies of GSA's decision to increase their present rate of discount approximately 3.5 percent. The rate change went into effect for FY 89, but due to misinterpretation and irregularities in their notification process, INS is presently negotiating with GSA to waive FY 89 cost increase and appropriately notify SAVE program participants of the new rate. Accordingly, agency managers will have to review their purchase/delivery orders to determine if they have sufficient funds approved to cover the rate increase.

Legal Authority: PL 99-603, sec 121; PL 100-503

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory. Notice must be published by 12/31/89.

Abstract: Agreements between INS and State agencies using an automated "computer-matching" process to access INS's SAVE data base to verify the immigration status of alien applicants for specified entitlement benefits pursuant to Section 121 of IRCA. The Computer Matching Act applies to certain computerized comparisons of information in a Federal agency's automated system of records with the automated records of another organization, and provides procedural requirements and safeguards for any information obtained through any type of information exchange which is defined as a "computer-matching" program under that law. A "matching agreement" between the organizations is also required. Six State agencies were determined to be using as of June 1, 1989 a type of automated access method in conducting SAVE-related verifications that subjects them to the provisions of the Computer Matching Act.

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Labor.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations selected for review or development.

SUMMARY: This document sets forth the Department's semiannual agenda of regulations, which has been selected for review or development during the coming one-year period. The agenda complies with the requirements of both Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

DATES: The agenda includes all regulations which are expected to be under review or development between October 1989 and October 1990.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Roland G. Droitsch, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue NW., Room S-2312, Washington, DC 20210, (202) 523-9058.

Note: Information pertaining to a specific regulation can be obtained from the Agency Contact listed for that particular regulation.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act require the semiannual publication in the Federal Register of an agenda of regulations.

Executive Order 12291 became effective February 17, 1981, and in substance, requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda listing all the regulations it expects to have under active consideration for promulgation, proposal, or review during the coming one-year period. It also requires the Department to conduct a Regulatory Impact Analysis for all "major" regulations being developed.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act became effective on January 1, 1981. It applies only to regulations for which a notice of proposed rulemaking was issued on or after January 1, 1981, and requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda listing all the regulations it expects to propose or promulgate that are likely to have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" (5 U.S.C. 602). For any regulation that will have this impact, the Department must conduct a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis to gauge the economic consequences of the rule and to analyze the availability of more flexible approaches for lightening the rule's regulatory burden on "small entities."

If a proposed regulation will not have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities," the Department of Labor must publish a certification to that effect at the time of the general notice of proposed rulemaking or at the time of the publication of the final rule. That certification must be accompanied by a succinct statement explaining the reasons for the agency's determinations.

As permitted by law, the Department of Labor is combining this publication of its agendas under the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

The regulatory reform process, of which the Unified Agenda is a part, continues to be an extremely valuable aid in the development of better regulations by the Department. We believe that our regulatory reform program has resulted in improved regulatory management, more clearly written regulations, and significantly less burdensome regulations.

Further improvement is certainly needed, and we are constantly seeking new and innovative approaches in pursuit of this goal. All interested members of the public are invited and encouraged to let departmental officials know how our regulatory reform process can be further improved and, of course, to participate in and comment on the review or development of the regulations listed on the agenda.

The Department of Labor's next semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, will be published in April 1990.

Elizabeth Dole,

Secretary of Labor.

CFR Citation: 41 CFR 50 TO 204; 29 CFR 1910 to 1919; 29 CFR 1924; 29 CFR 1925; 30 CFR 1 to 199

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Part 50-204 of 41 CFR contains safety and health standards for Federal supply contracts under the Walsh-Healey Act. These standards, which also apply to Federal contracts for services under the Service Contract Act, were adopted in 1969, and were last revised in 1971. Many of the standards in Part 50-204 are duplicative of standards found in other Department of Labor regulations, primarily those issued under the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) in 29 CFR Parts 1910-1919, and the Mine Safety and Health Act (MSHA) in 30 CFR. In addition, other OSHA and MSHA standards have been revised and updated considerably since 1971, and these changes are not reflected in Part 50-204. Because employers covered by the Walsh-Healey and Service Contracts Acts are also covered by OSHA and MSHA, and thus are already required to comply with the OSHA and MSHA standards, as applicable, the Department of Labor is considering whether or not the Walsh-Healey standards should be revised by deleting redundant provisions and by substituting appropriate references (cont)

This would clarify that the safety and health standards applied to employers under Federal supply and service contracts are the same standards which apply to them under OSHA and MSHA, and that revisions or updates of OSHA and MSHA standards also apply under the Walsh-Healey and Service Contract Acts.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1161

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 503

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, September 30, 1989.

Abstract: Section 210A of the Immigration and Nationality Act requires that the Secretaries of Agriculture and Labor determine the number (if any) of additional aliens who should be admitted to the U.S. or who should otherwise acquire the status of aliens lawfully admitted for temporary residence, to meet a shortage of workers to perform seasonal agricultural services. The "shortage number" so determined is the basis upon which the Immigration and Naturalization Service will admit such workers during fiscal years 1990 through 1993.

Abstract: Section 3(1) of the Fair Labor Standards Act requires the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations with respect to minors between 14 and 16 years of age ensuring that the periods and conditions of their employment do not interfere with their schooling, health, or well-being. The Secretary also is directed to designate occupations that may be particularly hazardous for minors 16 and 17 years of age. Child Labor Regulation No. 3 sets forth the permissible industries and occupations in which 14 and 15 year olds may be employed. In addition, this regulation specifies the number of hours in a day and in a week, and time periods within a day that such minors may be employed. The nonagricultural hazardous occupations orders which prohibit the employment of minors in such occupations are also contained in 29 CFR 570. Changes in technology and job content over the years require a review of the regulations to ensure the safety and health of such minors and at the same time avoid unnecessary restrictions on their employment opportunities. The Department has established a Child (cont)

The recommendations of the committee will be given careful consideration in the review of these regulations. The committee convened on March 9-10, 1988, at which time subcommittees were established to review Hazardous Order (HO) No. 2 (Motor Vehicle Operations), HO No. 10 (Slaughtering and Meat Packing), and Child Labor Regulation No. 3. Since that time, two additional subcommittees were established to review HO No. 11 (Bakery Machines) and HO No. 12 (Paper Products Machines). The full committee last met on May 11, 1989, to receive reports and make recommendations. A complete review of the Advisory Committee recommendations on these issues will be completed by November 1989.

Abstract: These regulations set forth the criteria used in the determination of the application of the Fair Labor Standards Act exemption for "executive," "administrative," "professional" and "outside sales employees" from the minimum wage and overtime requirements of the Act. The existing regulation was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief. A final rule increasing the salary test criteria was published on 01/13/81 (46 FR 3010) and was scheduled to become effective on 02/13/81. On 02/12/81 (46 FR 11972) an indefinite stay of the final rule was published. On 03/27/81 (46 FR 18998) a proposal to suspend the final rule indefinitely was published with comments due by 04/28/81. As a result of numerous comments and petitions received from industry groups regarding the duties and responsibilities tests as set forth in the regulations, as well as recent case law developments, the Department concluded that a more comprehensive review of these regulations was needed and decided to reopen the comment period and broaden the scope of the review to include all aspects of the regulations.

Rules implementing Section 481 of the 1982 JTPA (29 USC 1781). The operational aspects of such rules need to be coordinated with the pending revisions to the Executive Order 11246 program.

Abstract: These regulations cover nondiscrimination and affirmative action obligations of Federal contractors under Executive Order 11246, as amended; the Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974 (38 U.S.C. 2012), as amended; and Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended. An NPRM published 08/25/81 and supplemented on 04/23/82 extended the effective date of a final rule published 12/30/80 and proposed amendments to that rule. OFCCP's review of regulatory options continues, and includes consideration of proposed regulations to integrate the requirements of Section 481 of the Job Training Partnership Act of 1982 (29 U.S.C. 1781) with the Executive Order 11246 program.

Abstract: The Office of Workers' Compensation Programs (OWCP) in 1986 implemented a fee schedule for charges made under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (FECA) by physicians. The fee schedule specifically excluded hospitals, nursing homes and pharmacies from coverage. In the intervening years, it has been shown that some hospitals are performing many of the same services as those which, when performed by physicians are covered by the fee schedule. The result is that different amounts may be paid for exactly the same service. OWCP proposed to end this inequity by extending to hospitals the fee schedule for those services which are similar to those provided by physicians.

1461. EMPLOYMENT OF HOMEWORKERS IN CERTAIN INDUSTRIES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 211

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 530

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation sets forth restrictions on industrial homework and governs the issuance of certificates authorizing the employment of homeworkers in certain industries, pursuant to Section 11(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). As originally issued, these regulations restricted the employment of industrial homework in seven industries: knitted outerwear; women's apparel; jewelry; buttons and buckles; gloves and mittens; handkerchiefs; and embroideries. The ban was removed on homework in the knitted outerwear industry by the Department on 11/9/81, following extensive hearings and public comment. This action was subsequently upheld by the District Court for the District of Columbia. However, on appeal the ban was reimposed 2/29/84 by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. On 3/27/84 the Department published a proposed rule rescinding the ban on homework in the knitted outerwear industry only. In addition to soliciting comments on the proposed rescission, the Department sought comments on various alternatives to such action (49 FR 11786). On 11/5/84, a final rules was published lifting the ban on homework for (cont)

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act regulations to provide an alternative regular dealer definition applicable to information systems integration businesses which bid on contracts to furnish the government fully operational information processing ("ADP") systems. The alternative definition would relieve potential contractors in this industry from having to physically maintain inventories from which sales are made, a custom that is inconsistent with this industry's practices. Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 contains certain labor standards requirements for foreign agricultural workers employed under the H-2A foreign agricultural worker program, as well as for U.S. workers hired by employers who utilize foreign agricultural workers. The standards relate to pay, working conditions, housing, transportation and recruitment. The Employment Standards Administration issued an interim final rule on June 1, 1987 (53 FR 20524). It will issue an amended final rule that incorporates the labor standards issued by the Employment and Training Administration and sets forth procedures for enforcement of these labor standards. Abstract: The Employee Polygraph Protection Act of 1988 (EPPA) was enacted June 27, 1988 and takes effect December 27, 1988. EPPA prohibits most private employers from administering lie detector tests to employees or prospective employees but permits the use of polygraph tests, subject to certain safeguards, under specific circumstances. The Secretary of Labor is authorized to issue rules and regulations to implement EPPA and to enforce it, including authority to conduct investigations, assess civil money penalties for violations, and bring suit in U.S. District Courts to enjoin violations of the Act. An interim final rule was published October 21, 1988 (53 FR 41494), requesting comments by February 27, 1989. The interim final rule became effective on December 27, 1988.

Abstract: These regulations contain the basic standards governing the application of section 3(m) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). This section provides that, under certain conditions, the reasonable cost or fair value of furnishing employees with board, lodging, or other facilities may be applied towards meeting the Act's minimum wage and overtime requirements. Section 3(m) also provides that tips received by certain employees may be credited toward the payment of the statutory minimum wage (up to a maximum of 40 percent). Abstract: These regulations establish the terms and conditions, pursuant to section 14(c) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), under which handicapped workers may be employed, under certificate, at wage rates less than those otherwise required by statute. The 1986 Amendments to the FLSA substantially revised section 14(c) to simplify worker certification by eliminating separate certification for more productive workers, multiple handicapped individuals, and those in evaluation or training and work activities centers. Three affected regulations (29 CFR 524, 525 and 529) were combined into a single proposed new rule which was published for public comments on May 20, 1988. The comment period closed on July 19, 1988. Abstract: This regulation sets out Reed Act requirements for States. It covers: restoration of Reed Act funds used to pay unemployment benefits; appropriation by the States and use of funds for administration; and disposition, reduced usage, and replacement of Reed Act-financed property. The regulation implements P.L. 97-248 and updates existing material issued as manuals. Alternatives being considered include: (1) Issuing a regulation, another type of directive, or nothing; (2) Limiting the scope of the regulation to areas involving compliance with Federal law or not limiting scope; and (3) which rules, if any, should be issued regarding the calculation of Reed Act balances, restorations of Reed Act funds, program income, and sales, other dispositions, and reduced usage of property acquired with Reed Act funds. Issuing a regulation will benefit grantees by reducing their uncertainty as to the applicable rules. No significant additional costs will result.

Abstract: These regulations are being developed to implement the benefit provisions contained in Sec. 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. The Act requires the Secretary of Labor to specify the percentage of prior salary which an "eligible protected employee" would receive as a benefit payment under the Act. An eligible protected employee is a person who has had at least 4 years of employment with a certificated air carrier as of October 24, 1978 and who loses his or her job during the ten years following such date in a bankruptcy or major employment contraction if and only if the Department of Transportation determines that the principal causes of such job loss was deregulation. On May 17, 1984 the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia held that Section 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act was unconstitutional. On July 16, 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals decided that the employee protection provisions of Section 43 were severable from the legislative veto provisions. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled on March 25, 1987 that the legislative veto provisions were unconstitutional but the first right-to-hire provisions were constitutional, therefore, rulemaking can proceed on the (cont)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1321; 42 USC 1322

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 606

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Since 1981, Congress has enacted major changes in the Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA) and Social Security Act (SSA) with respect to advances to States for the payment of unemployment insurance and the repayment of such advances and interest thereon. Promulgation of comprehensive regulations is being undertaken in two phases. The proposed rule will replace instructions contained in several Unemployment Insurance Program Letters approved under OMB No. 1205-0199 expiring October 31, 1990. This action represents the second phase, governing States receiving and voluntarily repaying advances to their unemployment funds and paying interest in such advances. The final rule for the first phase, governing relief from automatic repayment and interest charges, was published in the Federal Register on September 26, 1988 (RIN 1205-AA14).

1474. LABOR CERTIFICATION PROCESS FOR THE PERMANENT EMPLOYMENT OF ALIENS IN THE UNITED STATES

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 656

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Before the Department of State (DOS) and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) may issue visas and admit certain immigrant aliens to work permanently in the United States, the Secretary of Labor pursuant to Section 212(a)(14) of the Immigration and Naturalization Act (INA) must certify to the Secretary of State and to the Attorney General that: (a) There are not sufficient United States workers who are able, willing, qualified and available at the time of the application for a visa and admission into the United States and at the place where the alien is to perform work; and (b) The employment of the alien will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of similarly employed U.S. workers (8 USC 1182(a)(14)). The Department of Labor (DOL) has promulgated regulations at 20 CFR Part 656 pursuant to and to implement section 212(a)(14) of the INA (8 USC 1182(a)(14)). These regulations set forth the fact finding process designed to support the granting or denial of a permanent labor certification. Experience in (cont)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 50 The National Apprenticeship Act; 40 USC 276; 5 USC 3301

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 29 (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: ETA has undertaken a review of the Apprenticeship system to determine the role of apprenticeship in meeting America's future needs for a skilled work force. The Apprenticeship 2000 review, through research, review of existing materials and related programs, is considering alternative ways to strengthen and expand apprenticeship and related training programs. Existing regulations governing apprenticeship programs may be revised to: 1) improve the existing programs ability to produce skilled workers to meet demands in the industries where it is now prevalent; and 2) expand the apprenticeship concept of training to fill the needs for skilled workers in additional industries.

Abstract: Governors are responsible for resolving audits of their JTPA subgrantees and subcontractors. Current ETA policy requires federal review and approval of these resolutions only in cases of fraud, gross mismanagement and abuse. More routine audit resolutions are only reviewed on a sample basis during onsite compliance reviews. However, a recent legal opinion stated that the JTPA regulations as presently written could be construed as requiring federal review and approval of all Governors' audit resolutions. The regulations may have to be amended in order to implement ETA's policy.

Abstract: This proposed rule would replace outdated administrative regulations for the unemployment insurance (UI) program grants to States with reference to more current common administrative requirements for State governments codified elsewhere by the Department of Labor (DOL). Because of certain unique needs of the UI program, this action would also cover UI program exceptions to these requirements and clarifications of Employment and Training Administration (ETA) policy in applying requirements to State grantees. As a result, the proposed rule is expected to aid States in understanding and complying with the requirements.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1101 et seq

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 655

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: As mandated by Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA), DOL published a proposed rule on May 5, 1987 (52 FR 20496) and an interim final rule on June 1, 1987 (52 FR 16770), for administering the H-2A temporary alien agricultural labor certification program created by IRCA. Comments received on the proposed rule were considered by DOL in developing the interim final rule. An additional 60-day comment period led to additional comments. Subsequently, litigation relating to the wage provisions in the June 1 rule, particularly the methodology for establishing adverse effect wage rates (AEWRs) was filed against DOL. In December 1987 the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit remanded the interim final rule to DOL for further explanation of the AEWR methodology. DOL is publishing a proposed rule explaining its intent to adopt the same methodology set forth in the June 1, 1987 rule, based upon an expanded record.

Abstract: The Economic Dislocation and Worker Adjustment Assistance Act (EDWAA) was enacted on August 23, 1988 to amend the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) by substituting a completely new Title III. Title III of JTPA establishes programs of training and employment assistance for dislocated workers. The new program incorporates several important changes. Among these changes are: (1) institutionalizing a State rapid response capability, (2) changing delivery system to mandate the designation of substate grantees, (3) focusing on better resource utilization through reallotment and reallocation provisions, (4) greater emphasis on training by incorporating new features such as certificates of continuing eligibility and needs related payments while in training. In addition, greater emphasis will be placed upon coordination and linkages among major training and employment program components such as the public employment service, the UI and TAA programs.

1495. PROPOSED REGULATION EXEMPTING CERTAIN BROKER-DEALERS AND INVESTMENT ADVISERS FROM BONDING REQUIREMENTS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 29 USC 1135; 29 USC 1112

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 2580

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed regulation is intended to provide an exemption from the bonding requirements of Section 412 (a) of ERISA for certain broker dealers and investment advisers who handle plan assets if the proposed regulation's alternative bonding requirements are met. If adopted, the regulation would permit broker-dealer and their investment adviser affiliates to substitute the fidelity bond required by the self-regulatory organizations of which they are members, subject to a minimum level of coverage, for the bond otherwise required by Section 412 of ERISA.

Section 9342(d) of OBRA 1987 specifically directs the Secretary to issue not later than January 1, 1989, the regulations required to implement this provision.

Abstract: Section 502(c) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) was amended by Section 9342(c) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (OBRA 1987) to authorize the Secretary of Labor to assess a civil penalty of up to $1,000 a day from the date of a plan administrator's failure or refusal to file the complete annual report required to be filed with the Secretary under section 101(b)(4) of ERISA. This regulation would carry out the requirement of OBRA 1987 that the Secretary promulgate regulations implementing the new civil penalty provision relating to a plan administrator's failure or refusal to file a complete annual report.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811; 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 7; 30 CFR 70; 30 CFR 75

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MSHA has an established mining equipment approval program which includes evaluation criteria and corresponding safety standards requiring the use and maintenance of approved equipment. However, existing approval regulations do not generally apply to the diesel-powered equipment now being used in coal mines. In July 1988 an Advisory Committee convened by the Secretary of Labor made recommendations to the Secretary concerning standards for the use of diesel-powered equipment in underground coal mines. Based on those recommendations, MSHA has published a proposed rule that addresses the approval of components of standards for its use. The Advisory Committee also recommended that an approval program be established for equipment safety features beyond the basic engine and power package. These features could include such components as the fuel system, exhaust gas dilution system, electrical system, braking system and fire suppression system. With the proposal, MSHA published an ANPRM requesting comment on what approach should be taken on the recommendations.

Abstract: The problem of hearing impairment among miners has become of increasing concern to MSHA. Many miners are consistently exposed to noise levels that are near maximum levels currently permitted by MSHA. As a result, miners may be suffering hearing impairments, notwithstanding existing MSHA noise standards. MSHA intends to utilize one rulemaking to establish similar noise standards to apply to coal mining and metal/nonmetal mining.

1507. ● APPROVAL REQUIREMENTS FOR DETONATORS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 16

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This standard would establish requirements for the MSHA testing, evaluation and approval of electric detonators for use in underground coal mines and certain metal and nonmetal gassy mines. At the present time there are no industry-wide standards to establish minimum performance requirements for detonators. Regulations governing the technical characteristics and performance of detonators would ensure compatibility for safe use with approved blasting units and approved explosives as required by underground coal mine standards. Some imported detonators that have entered the market during the past few years require an initiating current that exceeds the tested capacity of MSHA approved blasting units making them incompatible with approved blasting units. Other detonators tested by the Bureau of Mines showed reduced no-fire current levels which present a greater sensitivity to stray electrical current and could result in premature detonation.

Abstract: Existing electrical standards for underground coal mines would be substantially reorganized, clarified, and updated. General incorporations by reference of the National Electric Code would be eliminated and replaced with specific standards applicable to underground coal mining operations. The Agency is in the process of developing a proposed rule that addresses the wide range of issues raised by commenters on the Agency's 1986 ANPRM. MSHA is analyzing: (1) accident and injury data to determine the cause and rate of accidents involving electricity and the need to revise standards to prevent future accidents; (2) variances granted to determine whether alternative methods of compliance could be included in the standards; (3) consensus standards in the National Electrical Code for applicability to underground coal mines; and (4) litigation cases related to the Agency's enforcement efforts to determine where clarified standards could improve compliance.

Abstract: On November 16, 1988, the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) published a final rule (53 FR 46768) to revise its safety standards for explosives and blasting in underground coal mines. Prior to the effective date, MSHA stayed 30 CFR 75.1325(b) which restricts blasting to only one face in a working place to allow further review of single versus multiple face blasting. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957; 30 USC 813(d)

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 50

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory. This regulatory requirement is a Federal statutory provision. It implements Sections 103(d)(h) and (j) of the Mine Act.

Abstract: In response to concerns raised by members of Congress and the mining community about the nature and accuracy of existing reporting obligations, MSHA established an intra-agency task force to review its requirements for reports of accidents, injuries and illnesses in coal and metal and nonmetal mines. The Agency focused on several aspects of the reporting requirements including the definition of an occupational injury or illness, and an expanded audit program. The Agency has determined that the existing regulations in Part 50 should be clarified and improved through the rulemaking process. MSHA will clarify the definitions of reportable injuries and illnesses and solicit suggestions from the public in this effort.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 56; 30 CFR 57

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On August 25, 1988 the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) amended its standard addressing the use of berms and guardrails on elevated roadways at metal and nonmetal mines. However, MSHA stayed the provision which allows an alternative to the use of berms or guardrails on elevated roadways for infrequently traveled roadways used by service or maintenance vehicles. This rulemaking will be limited to addressing which safety requirements are necessary for such limited use roadways when berms or guardrails are not used.

1517. APPROVAL OF ELECTRIC CABLES AND SPLICE KITS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 18; 30 CFR 7

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MSHA proposes to revise existing Part 18 specifications and test requirements for the approval of electric cables and incorporate a new requirement for the approval of cable splice kits as a subpart to 30 CFR Part 7. Under Part 7, testing would be done by the applicant or a third party, subject to agency requirements and approval. MSHA's review will update the existing approval criteria, establish minimum standards for the material used to repair cables, and allow the introduction of new technology, where appropriate.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.204(a); 30 CFR 75.204(b); 30 CFR 75.213

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, February 15, 1990.

Abstract: On January 27, 1988, the Mine Safety and Health Administration published a final rule for safety standards for roof, face and rib support in underground mines. Three of the final standards were challenged by the United Mine Workers of America (UMWA), International Union, Petitioner, v. Secretary of Labor, et al, No. 88-1238 (D.C. Cir., March 10, 1989). On March 10, 1989, the U.S. Court of Appeals (D.C. Cir.) upheld one of the new standards and invalidated two, 30 CFR 75.204(a) and (b) and 30 CFR 75.213. On May 17, 1989, the Court issued an Order which, effective February 15, 1990, would vacate the two invalidated standards. These two remanded standards relate to roof bolts and roof support removal. MSHA had submitted that rulemaking with respect to these two standards could be completed in 9 months. MSHA is reopening rulemaking procedures on these standards.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 18; 30 CFR 7

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Conveyor belts are the leading cause of fires in underground coal mines. These mines often use many miles of conveyor belts. The remote location of the belts can allow fires to start and spread to the coal before they are detected. Application of recent improvements in the flammability of belt material would make belts more difficult to burn, resulting in fewer belt fires. The Agency is developing higher flame-resistivity approval requirements and a less complicated approval test to allow manufacturer or third party testing of conveyor belts for use in underground coal mines.

Abstract: These proposed rules would reduce the information collection burden imposed by the Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) on mine operators or other affected parties by revising reporting and recordkeeping requirements. In most cases, paperwork requirements would be replaced with certification provisions. This rulemaking would examine whether recordkeeping burdens could be reduced in 30 CFR 49.6(b) which requires records of monthly inspections and tests of mine operators and equipment to be kept for one year; in 30 CFR 75.1714-3 which requires records of quarterly inspections and tests of self-contained self-rescue devices; in 30 CFR 75.1101-23(c)(1) which requires records of the participation of coal miners in quarterly fire drills and in 30 CFR 75.1713-3 and 77.1703 in which mine operators are required to conduct first-aid training courses for selected supervisory employees, and report in writing to the District Manager the names and job titles of all supervisory employees within 60 days, and the date on which such employees satisfactorily completed the first-aid training course.

1525. PATTERN OF VIOLATIONS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 814(e); 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 104

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would implement section 104(e) of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977 which addresses mines with a pattern of repeated, significant and substantial violations. In 1985 MSHA issued an ANPRM which outlined new procedures for implementing the statutory provision for pattern of violations. The Agency reviewed comments and has been working to develop both appropriate criteria and a meaningful procedure for identifying operators who are potential pattern violators. The costs of the regulations would primarily bear upon individual mine operators receiving issuances notices. Any costs that the mine operator would incur to comply with other Federal standards would be attributed to those standards. The primary benefit of the pattern of violators provision would accrue to workers at mines where the mine operator has shown a disregard for their safety and health by allowing the same work hazards to repeatedly occur without addressing the underlying problems.

1526. UNDERGROUND COAL MINE VENTILATION

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

Abstract: The Agency published a proposed rule concerning ventilation in underground mines which included provisions for the introduction of new technology for systematic monitoring of explosive methane gas, as well as gases that may indicate a mine fire. Other important issues include ventilation of worked-out areas: timeframes for tests for methane; and using intake air that has been used to ventilate a belt conveyor entry. The existing escapeway standards contained in 30 CFR Part 75.1704 are incorporated into the proposal.

Abstract: MSHA is reviewing its radiation standards for underground metal and nonmetal mines and has identified certain issues with respect to regulatory action. The Agency published a proposal in December 1986 revising its existing ionizing radiation standards. Public hearings were held in August 1987. Extensive testimony was presented during the public hearings. Abstract: Under the 1977 Mine Act, MSHA and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) jointly approve respirators for use in hazardous atmospheres. New technology has been developed which has not been accommodated by the existing regulations. In addition, questions have been raised about laboratory testing and field performance of respirators. The decision has been made for NIOSH to have the lead in approval of respirators. MSHA will be involved with the devices which are uniquely adapted or required for mining. A proposed rule to remove MSHA's regulations upon completion of a concurrent NIOSH rulemaking was published in August 1987. However, further rulemaking is contingent upon NIOSH's timetables.

Abstract: On July 10, 1987, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia invalidated the Agency's existing interim relief regulation based in part, on procedural defects, holding that it was contrary to Congressional intent. (INT. UNION v. MSHA, 823 F. 2d 608 (D.C. Cir. 1987)). Therefore, MSHA has issued a proposal addressing interim relief in situations where enforcement of a mandatory standard would result in a diminution of safety to affected miners or in emergency situations.

Abstract: This rulemaking would examine whether recordkeeping could be reduced in 30 CFR 75.1101-23(c)(1) which requires records of the participation of coal miners in quarterly fire drills. Currently, the records must include the number of persons participating, the area of the mine involved, the procedures followed and the equipment used.

Abstract: The Nation's number one injury problem is back injuries. These injuries account for one of five compensation claims and one of four dollars expended for compensation. The purpose of the proposed request for comments and information is to enable OSHA to determine a course of action--possibly either rulemaking or informal guidance-aimed at reducing the number of back-related injuries which result from improper manual lifting. The request will identify a number of approaches to improving manual lifting, and invite public comments and suggestions. Specific engineering and administrative controls should reduce the pain, suffering, and lost time of the workforce as well as reduce the associated economic costs.

Abstract: On January 19, 1989, OSHA modified (54 FR 2332) the Z table permissible exposure limits of 29 CFR 1910.1000 in response to current scientific data. Section 6(b) of the Act requires where appropriate, provision for medical surveillance in each 6(b) rulemaking for a harmful substance. A generic standard for medical surveillance would satisfy the requirements of the Act thus enabling the Agency to deal directly with the narrower issues of the revision of the tables. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on September 27, 1988, (53 FR 37595) to acquire additional information. OSHA also intends to review its compliance experience with medical surveillance provisions and seek experienced medical opinion in the form of a symposium or other public discussion.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 653; 29 USC 655; 29 USC 657

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1990

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Carcinogen Policy describes the criteria and procedures OSHA will use to identify, classify, and then regulate carcinogens. The Policy also establishes a process for screening chemicals and for setting priorities for potential rulemaking activities. The Carcinogen Policy explicitly recognizes that periodic revisions are necessary in order to incorporate the latest scientific advances and techniques into the regulatory process. Hence, it is time for OSHA to review and modernize the carcinogen policy. The original standard was issued in 1980 before the Supreme Court "benzene" decision on significant risk. Thereafter, a final rule deleting provisions of the Carcinogen Policy that were inconsistent with the benzene decision was published on 1/19/81 (46 FR 4889). A proposal was published on 1/23/81 (46 FR 7402) to permit alternatives to the risk analysis section of the carcinogen policy to be addressed. The proposal was withdrawn on 3/27/81 (46 FR 19000). An advance notice of proposed rulemaking was published on 1/5/82 (47 FR 187) with comments due by 4/5/82. That document (cont)

Abstract: On June 17, 1986, OSHA issued revised standards governing occupational exposure to asbestos, tremolite, anthophyllite, and actinolite in general industry and in the construction industry. These standards replaced OSHA's previous asbestos standard promulgated in 1972. Since the issuance of the revised standards OSHA has received letters and petitions, from both rulemaking participants and nonparticipants, that contain additional comments, assertions and information that the rulemaking record may not fully reflect. These letters and petitions concern the appropriateness of regulating nonasbestiform tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite as presenting the same health risk as asbestos. OSHA has granted a temporary stay of the effective dates of the current standards as they apply to nonasbestiform varieties of tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite. This action was taken, in part, to enable the Agency to review letters and memoranda from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health as well as submissions by the R.T. 1550. METHODS OF COMPLIANCE

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1000(e); 29 CFR 1910.134(a)(1)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: OSHA's policy concerning the use of engineering controls and respirators was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief in 1981. Current OSHA regulations require that employers implement feasible engineering controls to maintain air contaminant concentrations in the workplace at or below the prescribed permissible exposure limits. The use of respirators is permitted only in those cases where engineering controls are not feasible, not yet installed, or not adequate. This policy has been criticized as being inflexible, not cost-effective, and often unnecessary for employee health protection. OSHA believes that any changes to the policy for use of engineering controls must be closely coordinated with revisions in the respiratory protection regulations (29 CFR 1910.134). This rulemaking does not address the assessment and reduction of any absolute existing risks, but rather addresses the possible change in risk abatement associated with the use of respirators instead of engineering controls.

Abstract: Employees in oil and gas well drilling and servicing are exposed to a variety of safety hazards which are not specifically covered by present OSHA safety standards. It has proved difficult to apply the existing general industry standards to control the unique nature of this industry. Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1000, (Table Z-2); 29 CFR 1910.1028

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: OSHA has amended its standard for occupational exposure to benzene by reducing the permissible exposure limit from 10 parts benzene per million parts of air (10 ppm) to an eight-hour time-weighted average of 1 ppm and by adding appropriate industrial hygiene and medical surveillance provisions necessary for the protection of employee health. This action is based on OSHA's determination that the amendments are needed to reduce the risk of leukemia and other adverse health effects associated with occupational exposure to benzene. OSHA published its final amendment to the standard on September 11, 1987. Due to technical problems associated with the completion of a detailed study of feasibility in barge and tanker cleaning and repair operations, however, OSHA exempted these operations from certain provisions of the standard. OSHA intends to issue a proposal to amend the benzene standard which will address the factors specific to the barge and tanker cleaning and repair industry.

Abstract: The purpose of this regulatory action would be to update and revise a standard first issued in 1960. The current language in many instances addresses the hazards of cargo handling involving methods long since abandoned, and fails to address the serious hazards of newer methods. Because much of the current standard is out of date, there are problems with compliance. These revised requirements will provide both employers and employees with a blueprint for effective and safe workpractices in the cargo handling industry. No alternative other than revision is contemplated. The annual cost of the revision is expected to be minimal -- less than five million dollars.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing standards for eye, face, head, and foot protection reference outdated national consensus standards which have been updated and improved. Consequently, criteria for personal protective equipment for eye, face, head, and foot would be revised to reflect improved developments in these types of equipment. This would allow the use of better personal protective equipment and would result in improved employee protection from eye, face, head, and foot hazards.

Abstract: OSHA proposes to revise and update its existing Subpart Q covering welding, cutting and brazing operations, and to develop performance-oriented standards designed to reduce the number of deaths and injuries due to unsafe equipment and unsafe operations. There has been no substantial revision to Subpart Q since its adoption in 1971. A complete and comprehensive revision is needed at this time to bring the standard into line with the current state-of-the art and updated consensus standards.

Abstract: The present occupational health standard for formaldehyde was published on December 4, 1987 (52 FR 46168). In this standard, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) required hazard warning labels to be placed on containers of all products composed of greater than 0.1 percent formaldehyde or capable of releasing formaldehyde into the air under any normal condition of use at concentrations reaching or exceeding 0.1 ppm. Material safety data sheets, prepared in accordance with paragraph (g) of the Hazard Communication Standard (29 CFR 1910.1200), were also required. On December 2, 1987, the Formaldehyde Institute filed an Application for Administrative Stay of the Formaldehyde Standard's cancer labeling requirement. On November 8, 1988, OSHA requested comments on whether to grant a petition for administrative stay of these provisions and whether to institute additional rulemaking. Based primarily on the comments received, OSHA stayed the provision at 29 CFR 1910.1048 (m)(l)(i) through (m)(4)(ii) for a period of (cont)

Abstract: On October 10, 1985, EPA referred 1,3-butadiene (BD) to OSHA for possible regulatory action under section 9(a) of the Toxic Substance Control Act. On April 11, 1986, OSHA responded to the EPA referral indicating that the Agency has preliminarily concluded that BD poses risk to the occupationally exposed population at the current OSHA permissible exposure limit and that the risk can be reduced or prevented through the promulgation of a revised standard. On October 1, 1986 (51 FR 35003), OSHA published an ANPRM initiating regulatory action within the meaning of section 9(a) of TSCA. Comments were submitted to OSHA by December 30, 1986.

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1000

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On May 20, 1986, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued a report to OSHA, under Section

9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, stating that EPA has reasonable basis to conclude that the risk of injury to worker health from exposure to four glycol ethers during their manufacture, processing and use is unreasonable, and that this risk may be prevented or reduced to a significant extent by OSHA regulatory action. EPA gave OSHA 180 days in which to respond to its report. OSHA published its response on December 11, 1986, stating that OSHA had preliminarily concluded that occupational exposures to the subject glycol ethers at the current OSHA permissible exposure limits may present significant risks to the health of workers. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) on April 2, 1987, (52 FR 10586). OSHA will use the information received in response to the ANPRM, as well as other information and analysis, to prepare a proposed standard.

Abstract: In its May 7, 1987, Federal Register notice the Agency requested information to assist in the possible revision of 29 CFR Part 1919. Part 1919, entitled "Gear Certification," implements requirements located in each of OSHA's maritime standards which cover work carried out within the Federal maritime jurisdiction. Changes in the design and composition of cargo handling gear which have evolved since these rules were last amended (1969) provided questions as to the efficacy of the current rules. Additionally, the Agency sought comments that would suggest ways in which the administrative function of the accreditation program could be improved. Comment period ended: August 5, 1987.

Abstract: In July 1985, OSHA was petitioned by the United Automobile, Aerospace and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW) to issue a hazard alert; issue an emergency temporary standard; and to begin work on a new permanent standard for methylene chloride (DCM). This request was based on information obtained from the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Toxicology Program indicating that DCM is an animal carcinogen and may have the potential to cause cancer in humans. In November 1986, OSHA notified the UAW that its petition had been granted, in part, and denied, in part. Specifically, OSHA issued a set of guidelines for controlling occupational exposure to DCM and OSHA denied that portion of the petition requesting the issuance of an emergency temporary standard. OSHA published an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on November 24, 1986 (51 FR 42257).

1566. CADMIUM

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910, (Table Z-2)

Abstract: On June 18, 1986, the International Chemical Workers Union and the Public Citizen Health Research Group petitioned OSHA to issue an emergency temporary standard reducing the permissible exposure limit for cadmium to one microgram of cadmium per cubic meter of air. On June 25, 1987 the union and HRG filed a petition with the Court of Appeals requesting the Court to order OSHA to promulgate an ETS. In its July 1, 1987, response to the petitioners, OSHA stated that issuance of an emergency standard was not warranted, but that exposure to cadmium at levels permitted under the current standard represented a significant risk to worker health which would be addressed through section 6(b) rulemaking procedures. On September 26, 1988, OSHA published guidelines for controlling exposure to cadmium and recommended reduced exposure levels significantly below the permissible exposure limit.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910, (Subpart H)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Standards in 29 CFR Part 1910, Subpart H, which address the storage, handling and use of hazardous materials, such as compressed gases, acetylene, hydrogen, oxygen, liquified petroleum gases, and flammable and combustible liquids, will be revised. This regulatory action will provide a new approach to the revision of Subpart H and will occur in three phases in an expanded timeframe. The three phases will be (1) Process Hazards Management, (2) Flammable and Compressed Gases, and, (3) Hazardous Liquids. The first phase of the proposed action is intended to better protect employees from unexpected releases of significant quantities of dangerous substances. The remaining phases are intended to simplify, clarify and consolidate standards on hazardous materials and assist employers and employees in general industry to better understand and better focus on the hazards inherent in the use, handling, and storage of such materials.

Abstract: This regulatory action will complete the consolidation and updating of Parts 1915 and 1910 by providing shipyard employees with coverage under one comprehensive OSHA standard. This revision will involve the promulgation of 16 maritime subparts and their 1910 counterparts. Its completion will relieve shipyard owners from the burden of having to comply with two sets of rules that are complex, prescriptive, confusing and, in some cases, conflicting. OSHA has established an Advisory Committee to assist the agency in reviewing and revising these subparts. Experts from government, industry, unions and the states will be asked to work with OSHA on this project. A previously identified project, Surface Preparation and Preservation (RIN: 1218-AA96), will be included in this project.

DOL—OSHA — Proposed Rule Stage

1569. ● PEL UPDATE PROPOSAL FOR CONSTRUCTION, MARITIME AND AGRICULTURE

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Not Yet Determined

CFR Citation: 29 CFR Not Yet Determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The permissible exposure limits (PELS) promulgated by OSHA in 1971 do not reflect current knowledge of the health effects of many toxic substances. OSHA published a proposal on June 7, 1988 (53 FR 20960) to amend and expand the PELs for general industry. On January 19, 1989 OSHA set new PELs for the toxic substances originally covered in 1971 and covered new substances in a single rulemaking that applied to general industry. OSHA now plans to update the old PELs for construction, maritime, and agricultural sectors not covered by the general industry proceeding. The PELs for these sectors are outdated: the construction industry (29 CFR 1926) references the 1970 ACGIH TLVs; the maritime industry cites three different references--29 CFR 1918 (longshoring), "dangerous gaseous contaminants not immediately dangerous to life" and "heavy concentrations of dusts." In addition, in the agricultural section, OSHA will consider chemicals and pesticides that are currently regulated by EPA. As a result of this rulemaking, OSHA expects that a unified table of PELs for toxic substances will be adopted for all industries.

Abstract: Public Law 99-499 requires the Secretary of Labor to promulgate a final standard for Hazardous Waste Operations and Emergency Response. The final standard was issued on March 6, 1989. Section 126 of Public Law 99-499 was amended by Congress on December 22, 1987 to require the Secretary of Labor to include in the final rule a training course certification program at least as comprehensive as the EPA's model program for asbestos abatement in public buildings. This proposed revision would add criteria and requirements for training course certification of training for workers involved in hazardous waste operations.

Abstract: OSHA currently has no general regulation requiring that employers train their employees in the safe operation of motor vehicles on the job, including the required use of seat belts, although motor vehicle crashes are the single largest cause of occupational fatalities. On-the-job motor vehicle crashes, in both on-road and off-road vehicles, caused over 30 percent of traumatic work-related fatalities in 1987. In the manufacturing sector, which is the primary target of most OSHA regulations, more workers are killed by motor vehicles than by fixed machinery. The hazards faced by workers operating automobiles and trucks, both on public highways and at private facilities, could be greatly reduced by requiring employers to train their employees in safe driving techniques, including the required use of seat belts. OSHA plans to proceed with a single NPRM that would regulate all employers covered by the OSH Act. The approach will be to develop a generic, performance-oriented standard. Significance: Regulatory Program

Abstract: Existing OSHA standards are designed to protect employees who are engaged in work involving exposure to only a few toxic chemicals during relatively standardized, continuous or repetitive processes. In contrast, laboratory workers are exposed to a multitude of toxic substances under frequently changing or unpredictable conditions. During this rulemaking, OSHA will examine whether prudent work practices and protective equipment, chosen for the specific facility and task, are more effective, feasible and economical for laboratory work than adhering to OSHA's current substance-specific standards. Accordingly, OSHA has proposed a special performance-oriented work practices standard that, if promulgated, would apply to laboratory workers and would contain provisions specifically designed for laboratory conditions.

Abstract: Recent scientific studies have reported that ethylene dibromide causes cancer when administered orally, by inhalation and by skin application in laboratory animals. In addition, other studies have shown the chemical to be a mutagen, teratogen and testicular toxin in experimental animals. On the basis of these reports, OSHA has determined that its current permissible exposure limit of 20 ppm does not provide exposed workers adequate protection against cancer and other adverse health effects. A proposed standard for ethylene dibromide was published 10/07/83 (43 FR 45956). Public hearings were held in February 1984. OSHA is currently in the process of decisionmaking on the provisions to be included in the final standard.

Abstract: Standards are currently under review for the second part (Subpart S of Part 1910) of OSHA's electrical standard which would establish a performance-oriented standard for electrical safety-related related work practices to complement the existing electrical installation standards. The proposed standard includes requirements for work performed on or near exposed energized and deenergized parts of electrical equipment and includes requirements for both the safe use of the electrical equipment as well as the use of personal protection devices.

Abstract: This rule prescribes the minimum measures to be taken to protect employees from injury during excavation work. A revision of the existing rule was proposed because trench and excavation sidewall failures that have resulted in death and injury to workers continue in significant numbers. Claims that the existing standards are ambiguous and too restrictive, especially with respect to the type of soil involved, have also been made.

Abstract: The existing standard has been proposed for revision because it is poorly formatted, contains unnecessary and restrictive provisions, and does not properly address the fall protection needs of certain areas and operations. The proposal raises several significant issues including (1) when fall protection systems must be installed, (2) whether work surface inspections are necessary to insure adequate structural integrity before commencing work, and (3) whether body belt systems or body harness systems are appropriate for use as fall protection. Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.266, (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Logging is a very hazardous industry. It has an incidence rate nearly twice that of manufacturing, and reflecting the seriousness of the injuries incurred, a lost workday rate nearly four times as high. The purpose of the standard will be to protect workers from the ever-present hazards of chain saw operation, falling objects (trees, branches), rolling or sliding logs, falls from trees, and materials handling accidents. At present there is no OSHA standard specifically applicable to logging in general. There is a standard, 29 CFR 1910.266, applicable only to pulpwood logging; however, pulpwood logging is estimated to account for less than half of the logging activity in the United States. Development of a national OSHA standard addressing all types of logging will provide coverage for those loggers not now protected. The new regulation will provide coverage where there is no approved state regulation and will set a minimum safety level for those states that chose to develop a state regulation.

Abstract: 4,4'-Methylenedianiline (MDA) is a chemical used primarily to manufacture methylenediphenyl diisocyanate, which is used to make polyurethane foams and elastomers. Recent scientific data indicate that MDA is a carcinogen in animals and a potential carcinogen in humans. In 1983, OSHA and the Environmental Protection Agency participated in a joint effort to publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking to solicit information on MDA production and use, estimates of environmental and occupational exposure, and studies of its toxic and carcinogenic effects. EPA evaluated the data received in response to the advance notice and concluded that the chemical presents an unreasonable risk of injury to the health of exposed workers. Under the provisions of section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, EPA referred MDA to OSHA for action. OSHA responded to the EPA referral on 2/26/86. OSHA established a mediated rulemaking advisory committee composed of interested parties from labor, industry and government to assist the agency in developing a proposed standard. The Committee completed its work in June 1987 (cont)

Abstract: A major area of coverage not addressed in the current OSHA electrical standards for general industry (29 CFR 1910) involves the maintenance and operation practices associated with electrical transmission and distribution lines, substations and generating stations. It is intended that the proposed standard fill this void by establishing minimum requirements for electrical safety work practices for qualified employees working on or near installations whose purpose is the generation and distribution of electricity.The proposal also revises the standards for electrical protective equipment, which is used routine for electrical power work.

Abstract: OSHA promulgated a final rule on August 24, 1987, that extended the protections of its Hazard Communication Standard (HCS) from the manufacturing sector to all other workplaces where employees are exposed to hazardous chemicals. The HCS requires covered employers to establish hazard communication programs for their employees, including labels on containers, material safety data sheets, and training programs. On August 8, 1988, OSHA published a NPRM to modify the final rule, and provide an opportunity for public comment. Public comments have been received, hearings have been held, and OSHA will prepare a final rule based on the public record for this standard, including the record developed in earlier rulemakings.

Abstract: Many health-care workers are exposed to blood and body fluids from patients who have active bloodborne infections or are carriers of these infections. Such exposure presents a potential risk of disease for the health-care worker. One such disease, Hepatitis B, has been shown to present a substantially increased risk for health-care workers. Hepatitis B is a serious disease that may require hospitalization and, in a small percentage of cases, is fatal. Another bloodborne disease, Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is also of great concern to health- care workers. Only a very small number of infections, however, have been documented to have resulted from occupational exposure to the virus that causes AIDS. About half of the nation's 6 million health-care workers are at increased risk from exposure to bloodborne infectious diseases. (cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: Some examples of health-care workers at highest risk are emergency room workers, dialysis unit workers, operating room personnel, intensive care unit workers, and blood bank employees. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has no standard specifically regulating occupational exposure to bloodborne infectious diseases. In 1983, the Agency issued guidelines for reducing the occupational risk of Hepatitis B infection (OSHA Instruction CPL 2-2.36). These guidelines are voluntary, however. In September 1986, OSHA was petitioned by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and other unions for the issuance of an emergency temporary standard to protect workers from occupational exposure to bloodborne infectious diseases, such as hepatitis B and AIDS. On May 30, 1989, OSHA published its proposal in the Federal Register (54 FR 23042). Public comment on the proposed standard will assist OSHA in determining the appropriate scope and provisions of the final rule.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.66

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present standard, which requires positive engagement of a powered platform with a building face to provide stabilization, may need to be revised because many variance designs have been submitted which do not provide positive engagement of the platform, yet claim equal stability. The agency believes there may be merit to this claim. The proposal provides flexibility in compliance through performance-oriented provisions as alternatives to positive engagement. It would also expand the scope of the current standard to include requirements covering additional suspension equipment, fall protection, and employee training.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b); 40 USC 333

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1926.800

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The existing standards were revised to update the treatment of hazards of construction in underground locations such as tunnels, shafts, chambers, passageways and covered excavations. In some cases, the existing standards were too restrictive. In addition, existing language was rewritten to clarify the requirements.

1593. CONTROL OF HAZARDOUS ENERGY SOURCES (LOCKOUT/TAGOUT) (PART 1910)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.147, (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed standard will fill a major gap in our current regulations which now depend for enforcement on the general duty clause, 5(a)(1). It will apply to those situations where the unexpected energization, start up or the release of stored energy could cause injury to employees. Providing comprehensive and uniform control procedures is also expected to reduce significantly the potential for injury and death of employees because the hazards targeted for control exist in virtually every workplace. Further, the proposed standard will respond to the concerns of organized labor who petitioned OSHA in 1979 and again in 1982 for regulatory action to protect employees and to the American National Standards Institute's petition for OSHA to adopt its consensus standard ANSI Z244.1-1982. Regulatory options involve developing a comprehensive standard covering all potentially hazardous energy sources or limiting the scope and application to those certain machines or industries that are causing most of the injuries.

1594. LEAD (RECONSIDERATION OF THE FEASIBILITY OF COMPLIANCE IN NINE INDUSTRY SECTORS)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seq

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1025

Legal Deadline: Final, Judicial, June 28, 1989.

Abstract: On December 11, 1981 (46 FR 60758), OSHA published a Revised Statement of Reasons concerning the feasibility of compliance with paragraph (e)(1) of the standard for occupational exposure to lead, which had been promulgated in 1978. In this revised statement, OSHA stated that it could not reach a conclusion regarding feasibility, on the basis of the existing rulemaking record, for eight specific industry sectors: lead chromate pigments, lead chemicals, nonferrous foundries, brass and bronze ingot production, secondary copper smelting leaded steel, shipbuilding and ship repair, stevedoring, and battery breaking separate from secondary smelting, and that in addition, it wished to reexamine the applicability of the lead standard to the stevedoring industry. OSHA requested that the record (which was under review by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit) be remanded for supplementary administrative proceedings. The Court granted OSHA's December 1981 request on March 31, 1987, and remanded the record to OSHA for further administrative proceedings to determine the feasibility of section (e)(1) for the nine industry sectors OSHA had (cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT: listed. The Court further ordered OSHA to return the record on or before October 1, 1987. On June 17, 1987, OSHA filed with the Court a motion requesting a 90-day extension to January 1, 1988. On July 31, 1987 the Court granted OSHA's motion. OSHA published in the Federal Register on August 3, 1987, a notice of a limited reopening of the rulemaking record (limited to the issue of feasibility) and specified September 2, 1987 for the receipt of comments from the public and September 15, 1987 for public hearings. Thereafter, at the request of industry and labor, OSHA deferred the relevant dates for the rulemaking until September 16 and 20, 1987, respectively.OSHA requested, and was granted by the Court, an extension for final action until July 15, 1988.Because of the complexity of the issues, OSHA petitioned the court on July 15 for an extension of time for the return of the record until the end of November 1988. OSHA published a final standard on July 11, 1989.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 38 USC Chapter 41; PL 100-323

CFR Citation: 20 CFR Chapter IX

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: To revise new Chapter IX of Title 20, CFR, titled Office of the Assistant Secretary for Veterans' Employment and Training, to fully describe the authority and responsibilities for provision of services to veterans through administration of programs and activities carried out through the Veterans' Employment and Training Service (VETS). Revisions are to bring regulations into conformity with 38 U.S.C. Chapter 41,42, and 43, as amended by P.L. 100-323. Previous rulemaking will establish the new 20 CFR Chapter IX, Parts 1000-1099, which are hereby revised. According to PL 100-323, several major provisions must be added to the regulations as follows: a) expand responsibilities of Assistant Secretary for Veterans' Employment and Training; (b) establish position of Regional Administrator for Veterans' Employment and Training; (c) expand duties of Disabled Veterans' Outreach Program Specialists; (d) establish assignment formula and duties for local Veterans; employment Representatives; (cont)

1600. INTERNATIONAL TRAFFIC IN ARMS REGULATIONS (ITAR)

Legal Authority: 22 USC 2778

CFR Citation: 22 CFR 120 to 130

Legal Deadline: None
Statutory deadline applies only to one proposed Notice; the remainder of the proposals are not subject to a legal deadline.

Abstract: The ITAR was first published in their current form in 1955 and have been periodically amended to reflect statutory enactments and to implement foreign policy. The last substantial revision occurred in December 1984; other amendments have been effected since this date. For example, on April 4, 1988, the ITAR was amended to implement an amendment to the Arms Export Control Act (AECA) that was designed primarily to ensure that individuals or firms convicted of certain offenses or debarred by U.S. Government agencies are denied export privileges. The Office of Munitions Control is continually seeking ways to improve the administration of its export control function by seeking to clarify or amend the ITAR, as necessary. During the next few months, the Department intends to amend the ITAR to include an exemption for certain temporary imports and re-exports of defense articles. The Department also intends to publish more comprehensive changes to the ITAR, which would first be the subject comment.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 22 USC 2658; 40 USC 486(c); 22 USC 4343

CFR Citation: 48 CFR 625

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, June 20, 1988.
Interim final rule at 22 CFR Part 136 made effective on June 20, 1988, the effective date of that section of the statute (PL 100-204).

Abstract: This action will amend the DOSAR to prescribe regulations covering disposition of personal property abroad by certain U.S. Government contractors. The regulation implements a general regulation at 22 CFR Part 136 (see 53 FR 23118, June 20, 1988), which was promulgated pursuant to section 186 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1988 and 1989. The DOSAR coverage will be issued as an interim final rule pending adoption on a government-wide basis, as the statute covers all contractors that enjoy importation or tax privileges in a foreign country because of their contractual relationship to the U.S. Government. The purpose of the statute is to ensure that contractors do not profit from transactions with persons not entitled to exemptions from import restrictions, duties, or taxes.

Agenda

Background

Improvement of Government regulations is a prime goal of the Bush Administration. There should be no more regulations than necessary, and those that are issued should be simpler, more comprehensible, and less burdensome. Regulations should not be issued without appropriate involvement of the public; once issued, they should be periodically reviewed and revised, as needed, to assure that they continue to meet the needs for which they originally were designed.

To help the Department of Transportation ("Department") achieve these goals and in accordance with Executive Order 12291 "Federal Regulation" (46 FR 13193; February 19, 1981) and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures (44 FR 11034; February 26, 1979), the Department prepares a semiannual regulations agenda for publication in the Federal Register. The agenda summarizes all current and projected rulemaking, reviews of existing regulations and completed actions of the Department. These are matters on which action has begun or is projected during the succeeding twelve months or such longer period as may be anticipated or for which action has been completed since the last agenda.

The agendas are based on reports submitted by the initiating offices in January and July each year. After these reports are consolidated for and reviewed by the Department Regulations Council, the Department's regulations agenda is prepared and published in the Federal Register. The Department's last agenda was published in the Federal Register on April 24, 1989 (54 FR 16889). The next one is scheduled for publication in the Federal Register in April 1990.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

In 1980, Congress passed the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA), Pub. L. 96-354, which requires the designation of those regulations for which a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared; i.e., those regulations that would have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. A Regulatory Flexibility Analysis is required for a rulemaking which, in the heading "Small Entities Affected," indicates an effect on small businesses, governmental jurisdictions, or organizations. If a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared for a particular rulemaking, that fact also will be noted under the heading "Analysis."

The RFA also requires that, each year, the Department publish a list of those regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and are to be reviewed under the Act during the succeeding twelve months. The agenda includes those regulations to be reviewed under the RFA or those for which review has been concluded since the last agenda. However, it should be noted that, after a preliminary assessment of the regulations listed for RFA review, it may be found that the regulations, in fact, do not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, and a full RFA review will be unnecessary.

Regulatory Impact Analysis

A preliminary and final Regulatory Impact Analysis is required for each proposed and final regulation, respectively, that

(1)is likely to result in:

(a)An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;

DOT

(b)a major effect on the general economy in terms of costs, consumer prices, or production;

(c)a major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, State, or local government agencies; or geographic regions;

(d)significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets; or

(2)the Secretary or head of the initiating office has determined requires such an analysis.

Definitions

The agenda covers all rules and regulations of the Department, including those that establish conditions for financial assistance. The following definitions are provided for ease in understanding the information in this document.

(1) Initiating office means an operating administration or other organizational element within the Department, the head of which is authorized by law or delegation to issue regulations or to formulate regulations for issuance by the Secretary.

(2) Significant regulation means a regulation that is not an emergency regulation and that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office or the Secretary or the Deputy Secretary,

(a) is a major regulation;

(b) concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest or controversy;

(c) has a major impact on another operating administration or other parts of the Department or other Federal agency;

(d) has a substantial effect on State and local governments;

(e) has a substantial impact on a major transportation safety problem;

(f) initiates a substantial regulatory program or change in policy;

(g) is substantially different from international requirements or standards; or

(h) otherwise involves important Department policy.

(3) Major regulation means a significant regulation for which a Regulatory Impact Analysis is required to be prepared.

(4) Emergency regulation means (a) a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, circumstances require to be issued without notice and opportunity for public comment or made effective in less than 30 days after publication in the Federal Register or (b) is governed by short-term statutory or judicial deadlines.

(5) Nonsignificant regulation means a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, is neither a significant nor an emergency regulation.

Explanation of Information on the Agenda

The format for this agenda is required by Office of Management and Budget Bulletin No. 86-16 (July 2, 1986).

First, the agenda is divided by initiating offices. Then, in accordance with the OMB Bulletin, for each initiating office, the agenda is divided into four categories: (1) Prerule stage, (2) proposed rule stage, (3) final rule stage, and (4) completed actions. For each entry, the agenda provides the following information: (1) The "significance" of the action (i.e., whether it is significant because it is on the Regulatory Program or because of agency priority or whether it is nonsignificant or routine and frequent); (2) a short descriptive title; (3) the legal basis for the action being taken or the regulation being reviewed; (4) the related regulatory citation in the Code of Federal Regulations; (5) an indication of any legal deadline and, if so, for what type of action (e.g., NPRM, final rule); (6) an abstract of the review or the proposed or final regulation; (7) a timetable, including the earliest expected date for a decision on whether to issue the proposed or final regulation or complete the review and determine the corrective action to be taken. (The action taken can be revocation or revision of the regulation, or it can be a determination that no regulatory action is necessary because the regulation is found to be achieving its goals and the goals and objectives of Executive Order 12291 and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures.); (8) an indication as to whether the rulemaking will affect small entities and/or levels of government and which categories of small entities or governments will be impacted; (9) if there is information that does not fit in the other categories, it will be included under a separate heading entitled, "Additional Information"; (10) a listing, where determined, of any analyses an initiating office will prepare or has prepared for the rulemaking document; e.g., a Regulatory Impact Analysis or Evaluation, an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis, or an Urban Impact Analysis. (It should be noted that, even though a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not required for some items on the agenda, the Department requires an economic analysis for all of its regulations. This economic analysis is contained in the Regulatory Evaluation if a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not prepared.); (11) an agency contact office or official who can provide further information, including advice on how to obtain documents referenced in the agenda; and (12) a Regulation Identifier Number (RIN) assigned to identify an individual rulemaking in the agenda and facilitate tracing further action on the issue in the Federal Register which may occur between agenda publications. (Departmental rulemaking documents published in the Federal Register now contain RIN numbers.)

For nonsignificant regulations issued routinely and frequently as a part of an established body of technical requirements (such as the Federal Aviation Administration's Airspace Rules) to keep those requirements operationally current, only the general category of the regulations, the identity of a contact office or official, and an indication of the expected number of regulations are included; individual regulations are not listed.

If a regulatory docket number has already been established, it may be provided under the "Additional Information" heading. If a member of the public desires further information regarding a particular proposal or regulation, reference should be made to this docket number.

In the "Timetable" column, abbreviations are used to indicate the particular documents being considered for issuance by that date. ANPRM stands for Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, SNPRM for Supplemental Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, NPRM for Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and FR for Final Rule. Listing a future date in this column is not an indication that a proposed or a final rule will be issued on that date; it is the earliest date on which a decision is expected to be made on whether to issue the document listed. Submittal of any proposed or final rule to the Office of Management and Budget for review, under Executive Order 12291, must follow such a decision. For major rules, this review could take 60 days or more. If any document is issued, publication in the Federal Register would follow within a few days. In addition, these dates are based on current schedules. Information received subsequent to the issuance of this agenda could result in a decision not to take regulatory action or in changes to proposed publication dates. For example, the need for further evaluation could result in a later publication date; evidence of a greater need for the regulation could result in an earlier publication date.

Finally, a dot (●) preceding an entry indicates that the entry appears in the agenda for the first time.

Mailing Lists for Regulatory Documents

To assist the public in obtaining regulatory documents issued within the Department of Transportation, an Appendix A has been included in this document. The appendix contains instructions on how to be placed on mailing lists for or to obtain copies of regulatory documents, including the Department's semiannual regulations agenda issued by the operating administrations of the Department and the Office of the Secretary. There is no charge for this service; however, because of the costs involved, the number of copies of a document forwarded to an individual requestor may be limited. Persons already on mailing lists for particular documents within the Department will remain on those lists and should not reapply.

By following the instructions specified in the appendix, a person can be placed on a mailing list for future copies of the Department's regulations agenda, which will be updated and published in the Federal Register every year during April and October. By using the agenda, individuals can determine which Notice or Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, to be issued by elements of the Department, is of interest to them. Then, using the instructions in the appendix, such persons also can be placed on a mailing list to ensure that, after the document of interest is issued, a copy will be mailed to them for their review and comment. In this way, individuals will be relieved of the burden of having to review the Federal Register, perhaps on a daily basis. The Department expects that this process will ensure that those people placed on mailing lists will receive early notice so that their views on the document can be adequately prepared and presented within the established comment period.

General Rulemaking Contact Persons

To assist persons desiring to obtain general information concerning the rulemaking process within the Department's operating administrations, an Appendix B has been added to the agenda. This appendix sets forth the addresses and the telephone numbers of the persons who can respond quickly to requests for general rulemaking information. Please note, however, that questions related to particular rulemaking actions should still be referred to the contact person listed with the particular rulemaking on the agenda.

Public Rulemaking Dockets

To facilitate the inspection of docket files and the submission of comments by the public, an Appendix C sets forth the addresses and working hours for the Rules Docket for each operating administration.

Request for Comments

Agenda

Our agenda is intended primarily for the use of the public. Since its inception, we have made modifications and refinements that we believe provide the public with more helpful information, as well as make the agenda easier to use. We would also like you, the public, to make suggestions or comments on how the agenda could be further improved. For example, do you find the information presented in an easily understandable manner? Do you find it easy to follow a regulation's development from agenda to agenda? Do you find that the format for setting out the information enables you to use the agenda easily? Do you find that the presentation of the information in the agenda is clearly explained in the preamble to the agenda? Your responses to these questions or any other comments or suggestions you may have should be sent to Neil R. Eisner, whose address appears above.

Reviews

In an effort to comply further with the spirit of Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, we are also seeking suggestions on existing regulations that should be included in our review of existing regulations; that is, which existing regulations issued by an operating administration of the Department or the Office of the Secretary do you believe need to be reviewed to determine whether they should be revised or revoked? The Department is particularly interested in obtaining information on requirements that have a "significant economic impact on small entities" and, therefore, must be reviewed under the Regulatory Flexibility Act. If you have any suggested regulations, please send them, along with your explanation of why they should be reviewed, to the concerned operating administration or the Office of the Secretary at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, comments are specifically invited on regulations that are targeted for review under the RFA. Those comments should be addressed to the "contact" person of the operating administration involved at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

Purpose

The Department is publishing this regulations agenda in the Federal Register to share with interested members of the public the Department's preliminary expectations regarding its future regulatory actions. This should enable the public to be more aware of the Department's regulatory activity. Knowledge of the nature and scope of this activity, as well as the specific proposals and reviews being considered, should result in more effective public participation in the Department's regulatory activity. For example, awareness of the dates when notices may be issued seeking public comment should allow appropriate planning and more efficient use of the comment period. By providing the expected date for a decision on whether to issue a final rule, the Department expects that more appropriate planning by those concerned with the regulation will also be possible. This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department or any of the offices within the Department, with regard to any specific item on the agenda. Regulatory action, in addition to the items listed, is not precluded. If further information is desired on any of the items listed in the agenda, the public is encouraged to contact the individual listed for the particular item. Additional information concerning the agenda, in general, or the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures may be obtained from Neil R. Eisner, whose address and telephone number appear above.

Issued in Washington, DC, on September 25, 1989.

Samuel K. Skinner,

Secretary of Transportation.

Appendix A - Instructions for Obtaining Copies of Regulatory Documents

Some Administrations within the Department differ in procedures or as to inclusion on a mailing list. For the offices listed below, persons desiring to obtain a copy of any regulatory document to be issued that is listed in this agenda should communicate, either by telephone or by letter, with the contact person listed with the regulation at the following addresses:

United States Coast Guard (USCG)

(Name of contact person), United States Coast Guard, 2100 Second Street SW., Washington, DC 20593.

Federal Highway Administration (FHWA)

(Name of contact person), Federal Highway Administration, 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590.

Federal Railroad Administration (FRA)

(Name of contact person), Federal Railroad Administration, 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590.

National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA)

(Name of contact person), National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590.

Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA)

(Name of contact person), Urban Mass Transit Administration, 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590.

Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation (SLSDC)

(Name of contact person), Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, 400 7th Street SW., Room 5424, Washington, DC 20590.

Research and Special Programs Administration (RSPA)

David A. Watson, Training Unit, DHM-51, OHMT/RSPA, 400 7th Street SW., Washington, DC 20590.

Maritime Administration (MARAD)

James Saari, Secretary, Maritime Administration, 400 Seventh Street SW., Room 7300B, Washington, DC 20590, (202) 366-5746.

Federal Aviation Administration (FAA)

The FAA has a mailing list system for Notices and Advance Notices of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRMs and ANPRMs). Persons interested in obtaining future copies of all of those documents to be issued by the FAA or only of those concerning certain parts of the Federal Aviation Regulations should request a copy of Advisory Circular No. 11-2, which describes the application procedure, by calling 202-267-3479 or by writing to: Federal Aviation Administration, Office of Public Affairs, Attention: Public Information Center, APA-200, 800 Independence Avenue SW., Washington, DC 20591.

Office of the Secretary (OST)

Persons desiring to receive future copies of the Department's regulations agenda should submit their request to: Assistant General Counsel for Regulation and Enforcement, C-50; Office of the General Counsel, Department of Transportation, Washington, DC 20590; (202) 366-4723.

Persons who have an interest in specific regulatory documents to be issued by the Office of the Secretary should forward requests for copies of those documents to the same address. These requests should fully identify the document desired. Persons interested in a rulemaking document on an aviation matter (of the kind formerly handled by the CAB) will be placed on a mailing list for all OST aviation-related rulemakings if they so request.

Appendix B - General Rulemaking Contact Persons

The following is a list of persons who can be contacted within the Department for general information concerning the rulemaking process within the various operating administrations.

USCG - Bruce Novak, Marine Safety Council, USCG Headquarters Building, Room 3600, 2100 Second Street SW., Washington, DC 20593; telephone: 202/267-1477.

FAA - John H. Cassady, Office of Chief Counsel, Regulations and Enforcement Division, 800 Independence Ave. SW., Room 915A, Washington, DC 20591; telephone: 202/267-3073.

FHWA - Michael J. Laska, Office of the Chief Counsel, 400 7th Street SW., Room 4223, Washington, DC 20590; telephone: 202/366-1383.

FRA - Mike Haley, Office of Chief Counsel, 400 7th Street SW., Room 6201, Washington, DC 20590; telephone: 202/366-0767.

NHTSA - Steve Kratzke, Office of Chief Counsel, 400 7th Street SW., Room 5219, Washington, DC 20590; telephone: 202/366-2992.

UMTA - Linda Hart, Office of Chief Counsel, 400 7th Street SW., Room 9316, Washington, DC 20590; telephone: 202/366-4011.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: After the sunset of the Civil Aeronautics Board on January 1, 1985, the Department became responsible for overseeing the consumer protection regulations applicable to airline passengers. The Department established a task force to review the current regulations and pending rulemaking proceedings to determine what, if any, actions should be taken. The internal analysis was completed and it was determined that no comprehensive report is necessary. In the next year, the Department expects to address the pending rulemaking petitions and either terminate old rulemaking proceedings or issue supplemental notices of proposed rulemakings to update information for rulemakings in which final rules are expected to issue. This entry is terminated because the comprehensive review of the consumer protection rules is now complete.

Abstract: The DOT rules cited above state that any price stated for air transportation, a tour or a tour component must be the entire price for that transportation, tour or component. In this petition, Mr. Donald Pevsner complains that some tour operators advertise prices which do not include additional features which must be purchased and which cost extra. He asks that the rules be amended to state that such additional features may only be priced separately if they may be purchased separately, i.e., if they are optional rather than mandatory.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 98-575; PL 100-656, Sec 15(c) to 16 Commercial Space Launch Act

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Persons authorized to conduct commercial launch activities by a license issued by the Office of Commercial Space Transportation (OCST) are required to obtain liability insurance or demonstrate financial responsibility, in amounts and on terms prescribed by OCST, to protect against third-party or government property damage claims resulting from the licensed activities. In addition, persons engaged in commercial launch operations must provide proof of financial responsibility, or offer other assurances, adequate to protect the Government when its property or personnel are involved in such operations. The rulemaking sets out the procedures by which OCST would set the appropriate levels and terms of insurance and financial responsibility required to be carried by persons subject to its authority. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: The Department is reviewing its regulation establishing a minority business enterprise (MBE) program in its financial assistance programs (49 CFR Part 23). This regulation has been controversial, is of interest to most DOT grant recipients and contractors, and affects the operations of all DOT financial assistance programs. Section 106(c) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA) extended and modified the program as applied to FHWA and UMTA; similar legislation applied the same requirements to the FAA. The Department issued a final rule to make the STURAA changes in October 1987; a similar rule for FAA programs was published in May 1988. The Department intends subsequently to issue an NPRM that would propose further changes in the regulation.

Abstract: This rulemaking is necessitated by an en banc ruling of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit in ADAPT v. Skinner. The court directed DOT to revise its existing rule on this subject consistent with its opinion that provisions of the present rule were inconsistent with the Department's statutory authority. This rulemaking will incorporate an existing rulemaking concerning nondiscrimination on the basis of handicap in Federally assisted commuter rail programs. (RIN 2105-AB23). Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Section 404(c) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, January 30, 1987.

Abstract: The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) had a regulation providing protection of the rights of handicapped air travellers. Based on recent Congressional action, DOT began enforcing this regulation on January 1, 1985. The Supreme Court's decision in U.S. Department of Transportation v. Paralyzed Veterans of America held that Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 does not apply to nonsubsidized air carriers. This decision left the existing regulation intact. The Air Carrier Access Act of 1986 directed DOT to publish new regulations prohibiting disability-based discrimination in air travel. The Department will use comments received in response to its August 1986 information notice on issues affecting blind passengers as part of the record for this rulemaking. The Department convened an advisory committee to pursue the rulemaking through a negotiated process. The negotiations have concluded and an NPRM has been published. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1324; 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1372; 49 USC 1381; 49 USC 1386

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 207; 14 CFR 208; 14 CFR 212; 14 CFR 298; 14 CFR 380

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The CAB proposed new charter rules for direct and indirect air carriers. The proposed rules retain the financial protections of existing rules for direct air carriers while eliminating rules restricting the types of groups (such as "affinity" or "single-entity") to whom charters may be sold. The proposal would also retain a security instrument and depository system for indirect air carriers, along with contract rules for public protection. The proposal also highlights depository bank and travel agent responsibilities in handling passenger funds. The proposal replaces one made earlier. DOT is considering what action should be taken. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399.80; 14 CFR 399.85

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department is proposing to provide formal notice to the public of its enforcement policy concerning the rebating of international air fares by adopting that policy as a Policy Statement in the regulations. No change in the substance of that policy is intended. The Department also proposes to revoke an existing Policy Statement on the advertising of rebates that is contrary to DOT's current enforcement policy. The proposal responds to a request for such action by the American Society of Travel Agents. The proposed regulation is significant because it involves important departmental policies and substantial industry interest.

Abstract: Because of the shortfall in FY 1989 appropriations, an NPRM was issued to request comments on various alternatives being considered for reducing essential-service subsidy. Abstract: The DOT currently prohibits fares or rates based upon units of time. This proposal would remove these restrictions. The comment period on the NPRM closed on December 13, 1982. In view of the elapsed time, we intend to issue a SNPRM to determine whether there is additional information that should be considered before the Department issues a final rule.

1632. DIRECT AIR CARRIER RESPONSIBILITY FOR RETURNING STRANDED CHARTER PASSENGERS

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1324; 49 USC 1371

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 207; 14 CFR 208

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would make direct air carriers responsible for returning charter passengers stranded by strikes or other interruptions of their services by eliminating the force majeure clause from charter contracts. However, the Department is considering a comprehensive proposal (RIN 2105-AA41 in this agenda) to revise and simplify air charter rules. The Department's final action in this proceeding will be consistent with the comprehensive review of the charter rule.

1633. AIR TRAVELERS: AGE DISCRIMINATION

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6102

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 376, (Proposed)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will prohibit discrimination against air travelers on the basis of age and implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975. A final rule was adopted by the CAB on April 10, 1980, and was forwarded to the Secretary of HHS for approval, as required by the Age Discrimination Act. The rule was approved by HHS on July 13, 1984, with changes. However, these changes have not been incorporated. DOT is considering combining this rulemaking with a broader DOT age discrimination rule on which work is now under way.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Abstract: This rule will set out Department policies for regulation of the rates, routes, and services of airlines that have interstate authority. The CAB concluded that under section 105 of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 it, not the States, was responsible for economic regulation (or deregulation, as the case may be) of all the routes, rates, or services of any airline holding either (i) a certificate of public convenience and necessity to provide interstate air transportation, or (ii) an exemption under section 416 of the Act from the requirement for such a certificate.

Abstract: This proposed rulemaking would have increased the minimum aircraft accident liability insurance limits for U.S. and Canadian on-demand air-taxi operators from $75,000 to $150,000 per person. (The minimum liability per person for other types of air carriers is $300,000.) The NPRM also included alternative proposals. Commenters alleged that small carriers would be adversely affected by the premiums necessary to pay for the proposed higher coverage. As the currently effective rule has not created significant controversy or complaint in recent years, it was determined no alteration to the current rule is necessary, and the proposal will be withdrawn.

Abstract: The CAB proposed to amend its rules requiring notice of contract terms for domestic travel to require that actual notice be given passengers of terms absolving carriers from any responsibility to transport a passenger to the destination named on the ticket, or to reimburse the passenger for expenses in reaching the airport noted on the ticket when a flight is diverted to another airport in the same metropolitan area. Alternatively, the Board proposed to declare it to be an unfair and deceptive practice to divert a passenger without arranging and paying for alternate transportation to the destination airport named on the passenger's ticket. The Board considered a final rule but did not decide what action to take. DOT is now considering what action to take.

Abstract: The American Association of Airport Executives, the Airport Operators Council International and the Air Transport Association of America petitioned the CAB to simplify its counter-sign requirements. Presently, airlines are required to display four different consumer protection notices on their ticket counters. The petitioners alleged that the current notices are hard to read and, therefore, do not provide much notice to passengers. They proposed replacing the four notices with one simplified counter sign. The CAB adopted an NPRM that proposed a number of alternatives, such as a long and/or short notice, where the notices would be required to be posted and whether a smoking notice should be included. DOT is now considering what action to take in response to the notice and comments filed.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1372; 49 USC 1381

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Transamerica petitioned the CAB to investigate ways to protect consumers against service defaults by scheduled air carriers in domestic, overseas, and foreign air transportation. A congressionally mandated study of methods for protecting airline passengers from carrier bankruptcies was released in January 1988. It concluded that facts did not support the need for any mandatory government-imposed system of default protection: Sixty-two percent of tickets are credit card purchases generally refundable under credit laws; some other tickets are protected by private default plans and insurance; nearly half of all tickets are for business rather than personal travel; other airlines frequently honor default-carrier tickets on a standby basis; and airline defaults have declined since 1984. Consistent with the 1988 study findings, Transamerica's petition was denied.

Abstract: This project examined whether conversion from a paper document system to a computerized system of filing and monitoring air carrier tariffs would reduce paper flow, speed up processing, and allow the industry to utilize computers and technology to communicate with DOT. As a result of discussions with an advisory committee, the Department decided to experiment with existing data base and electronic mail systems, to determine their feasibility to meet requirements. The final rule permitted those carriers choosing to file their fares electronically with DOT the option to do so. This rule was considered significant because it involved important departmental policies and was of substantial interest to the industry.

Abstract: Part 252 guarantees airline passengers a right to a seat in the no-smoking section if they check in on time. The Civil Aeronautics Board proposed to require a notice on airline tickets advising passengers about this right. The Department of Transportation (the Board's successor) has terminated this proceeding because subsequent events have greatly reduced the need for such a notice: a recent ban on smoking on flights of two hours or less, as well as greater public awareness concerning the rights of nonsmokers on airline flights.

Abstract: Final rule simplifies the procedure for determining State compliance with Federal law regarding maximum speed limits and determining the amount and timing of any reduction of Federal-aid highway funds to noncomplying States. It also updates the current regulation to reflect statutory changes, describes the reservation of obligational authority if final determination on a State's compliance is not made by the date subsequent apportionments are made, and clarifies provisions as to apportionment of withheld funds to States subsequently in compliance. Significance: Agency Priority

Abstract: A petition, filed by Mr. Theodore Harris, addressed the problem of airline passengers whose airline goes bankrupt after they bought their ticket but before they use it. The petitioner asked that airlines be required to protect such "unearned revenue" by escrowing it or by posting a bond in an amount equal to 150% of average unearned revenue. Exemptions could be granted to airlines which file evidence of ticket insurance plans or which enter into agreements with other airlines to accept the tickets of bankrupt carriers. This rulemaking was considered significant because of substantial public interest. However, a congressionally mandated study of methods for protecting airline passengers from carrier bankruptcies was released in January 1988. 1652. OVERSEAS MILITARY PERSONNEL AIR-CHARTER TARIFFS

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373; 49 USC 1386

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 372

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: When it "sunsetted," the Civil Aeronautics Board was considering whether to rescind the requirement for operators of Overseas Military Personnel Charters (OMPCs) to file tariffs. This project transferred to DOT. Since Congress eliminated all domestic tariffs effective 1983, this issue is now limited to international service only. OMPC tariff filings have slowed to practically nothing, perhaps as other forms of charters have become more acceptable to foreign governments. There is no immediate need for change in the rule, and this action is being terminated. To the extent the Department considers change to the OMPC charter form itself or to charters in general in the future, the OMPC tariff provision will be dealt with in that broader context.

Abstract: In the past, the CAB had held that a foreign air carrier's permit or exemption authority continues after the underlying bilateral Service Agreement expired, by virtue of section 558(c) of the Administrative Procedure Act. Further review has determined the contemplated change is unwarranted. This contemplated action was withdrawn.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1378; 49 USC 1381

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Two enforcement policy statements refer to fare discounts not in a carrier's filed tariff. However, the filing of tariffs for domestic fares ended in 1983. DOT considered amending the policy statements to limit them to foreign air transportation, but has now proposed to eliminate them as inconsistent with current rebating enforcement policy, and to replace them with another policy statement described in RIN 2105-AB39. Therefore, RIN AA70 is terminated.

1655. CARGO RATE CHANGES ON 30 DAYS' NOTICE

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221.160

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department considered amending the regulations to allow cargo tariffs which are within the zones established under 14 CFR 399.41 to be filed on 30 days' notice. There were two alternatives: either maintain the status quo (60 days' notice) or change cargo tariff filing regulations to 30 days' notice to be consistent with passenger tariff-filing requirements. However, in reviewing the existing liberal pricing policies the Department has implemented to stimulate competition in the marketplace, whereby most changes in fares and rates are made on as little as one day's notice, no need was found to amend the existing rule. Therefore, action on the proposal was terminated.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 29 USC 704; 49 USC 1612(d)

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 27

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department was considering whether or not to eliminate a provision in its rule concerning mass transit services for disabled persons, which permits incremental expenditures by recipients for the off-peak, reduced-fare program for elderly and handicapped passengers on mainline mass transit services to be counted in the calculation of the three-percent limit on required expenditures. Final action determined that disallowing half-fare program costs in calculating the Part 27 cost gap is more consistent with the Part's intent than continuing to allow these costs. Therefore, the provision was eliminated.

Abstract: Current regulations require installation of ARPA on certain ships to improve vessel and waterway safety. Training in the use of this equipment is necessary to ensure its proper application and maximum benefit. A very small percentage of licensed personnel (those manning vessels of 10,000 GT or larger) would be required to complete an ARPA training course. The course is expected to take 5 days and cost about $800.00 per student.

Abstract: Various laws, international agreements, and Coast Guard regulations require the posting of specific certificates, licenses, plans, operating instructions, and warnings onboard vessels. Some of these contain essential operational data which must be accessible at all times; others are primarily informational. This rulemaking project will seek to reduce posting requirements for nonessential operational data to reduce the burden on the public. Alternatives such as having items readily available rather than being posted are being considered.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1221

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 126; 33 CFR 127

Abstract: This proposal would clarify the scope and applicability of Part 63, increase safety by preventing an increase in the air flow to a boiler's furnace immediately after an emergency trip, and substitute an industry consensus standard for existing requirements where an equivalent level of safety is provided. The time required for design approvals will be reduced by eliminating several administrative and plan review procedures. The end result should be an overall reduction in costs without compromising safety.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 33 USC 2602

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 151

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, June 15, 1989.
See discussion above.

Abstract: The Shore Protection Act of 1988 (33 USC 2501 et seq.) prohibits vessels from transporting municipal and commercial waste unless they have a permit and display a number. The Act requires the permit and number 240 days after enactment. This interim rule implements these provisions of the Act and requests comments.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 33 USC 2071

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 84; 33 CFR 87

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposal would amend the Annexes to the Inland Navigation Rules. The proposed changes would conform the regulations to the International Rules (72 COLREGS) which become effective on November 19, 1989. The changes are minor. They clarify the proper location for measuring the vertical positioning of lights and allow use of optional radio systems in distress situations.

PL 100-710 has staggered requirements, several are effective in January 1989 while others are effective in January, 1990.

Abstract: The objective of this project is to bring existing regulations into conformity with law. PL 100-710 requires certain changes to existing regulations, such as eliminating requirements to present the vessel document for endorsement of mortgages. These changes are unequivocal and were effective on January 1, 1989. In addition, this proposal would implement requirements of the law which become effective in 1990.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1223; 33 USC 1224

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 166; 33 CFR 167

Abstract: The Coast Guard has conducted the Port Access Route Study mandated by the Ports and Waterways Safety Act. As a result of the study, the Coast Guard has preliminarily determined that potential conflicts between oil drilling and shipping require creation of a fairway system off the coast of California from the vicinity of San Francisco to Los Angeles/Long Beach and changes to the San Francisco and Santa Barbara channel traffic-separation schemes. No structures would be permitted in the fairway. This project is considered significant because of public interest.

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 179.01 to 179.19

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would require marine dealers to furnish boat and engine manufacturers with serial numbers of new boats and engines sold and the names and addresses of retail first purchasers of those products. Manufacturers would use the information to locate purchasers of boats and engines recalled for defects which create a substantial risk of personal injury to the public and for failures to comply with applicable regulations. Currently many manufacturers cannot obtain sufficient first-purchaser information and their attempts to notify during recalls are inadequate.

Additional Information: As a result of a substantial number of negative comments on the SNPRM and a substantially larger estimated annual burden on the public, the Coast Guard is looking for other ways to accomplish the objectives of the regulatory project. The next action will consist of a third SNPRM or initiation of a new regulatory project. Future action on the proposal is now dependent upon Coast Guard implementation of the Vessel Identification System under Public Law 100-710. The former title of this project was Defect Notification and First-Purchaser Information.

Abstract: This action would update Title 46, Subchapter F - Marine Engineering. Some facets of these regulations for shipboard piping systems have become obsolete as a result of technological developments and changes in cited codes and standards. An SNPRM was issued to include clarifying language and to delete the manufacturers' affidavit system.

Abstract: Limited visibility from the navigation bridge of vessels has been identified as a factor in vessel casualties and near-misses. This action would establish standards for acceptable limits of visibility based on existing international guidelines. Significance: Nonsignificant

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Coast Guard is proposing to amend the regulations concerning the reinspection of offshore supply vessels (OSVs) in foreign ports. Currently OSVs holding two year certificates of inspection are reinspected between the 10th and 14th month of the certificate's period. In recent years, more OSVs have been based overseas in remote locations. Vessel owners must reimburse the Coast Guard for inspector travel and per diem costs in connection with foreign inspections. This action would propose an alternative to the traditional Coast Guard mid-period reinspection. The benefits would be flexibility and financial savings to the OSV industry and more effective use of Coast Guard resources.

Section 6079 of the Act (Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988, PL 100-690) provides that regulations shall be prescribed by not later than 90 days after enactment of the act.

Abstract: Section 6079 of the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988 (PL 100-690) requires the Secretary of Transportation to prescribe joint regulations with the Secretary of the Treasury which would provide for issuance of a summons to appear in lieu of seizure of a commercial fishing-industry vessel for violations involving the possession of personal-use quantities of a controlled substance. This proposal would implement that requirement.

Abstract: On November 21, 1988 (53 FR 47064) the Coast Guard published regulations which require marine employers to implement pre-employment drug testing. On June 21, 1989, the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia requested a voluntary suspension of the pre-employment drug testing portion of the rule. This action delayed implementation of pre-employment drug testing by those employers having more than 50 employees until July 21, 1989. Abstract: This project was to revise the existing equipment approval requirements for the oil discharge monitoring and control system to bring the U.S. requirements in line with the more stringent International Maritime Organization Resolution A.586(14) "Revised Guidelines and Specifications for Oil Discharge Monitoring and Control Systems for Oil Tankers." This project was terminated because the Coast Guard is awaiting IMO action on the effect of detergents. It is expected to be reinstituted when firmer data on this issue are available.

Abstract: Current repair station rules were developed during the infancy of the aviation industry. Very few changes were made to those rules since they were adopted in 1952. This rulemaking project proposes to review foreign repair-station requirements and update the rules to reflect the current international and domestic environment and needs. The FAA plans to hold four public meetings to solicit information and views to review the existing regulations and to explore alternatives in revising the rules of this part. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action would propose changes to the airworthiness standards to improve the crash resistance of fuel systems on normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes. The FAA has determined that improved crash resistance of these fuel systems is necessary to prevent deaths and injuries due to fire in survivable crashes. The proposed design changes would limit fuel spillage near ignition sources and would provide additional time for the survivors to evacuate the airplane. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action would adopt certain recommendations of the National Airspace Review concerning changes to regulations and procedures dealing with airspace classification. These changes are intended to: (1) simplify airspace designations; (2) achieve international commonality of airspace designations; (3) increase standardization of equipment requirements for operations in the various classifications of airspace; and (4) associate appropriate pilot certification requirements, visual flight rules visibility and distance from clouds rules, and air traffic services offered in each proposed class of airspace. Abstract: This notice will propose to revise the current requirements for passenger emergency exits and to adopt two new exit types into the regulations. These proposals are intended to provide more consistent standards with respect to exit types and quantities required for passenger seating configurations while retaining the same level of safety. This notice also will propose to reduce the maximum inflation time of an escape slide to reflect the current state of the art. These proposals resulted from the Public Technical Conference on Emergency Evacuation of Transport Airplanes held in Seattle, Washington on September 3-6, 1985. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves an important cabin-safety issue.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355 to 1357; 49 USC 1401; 49 USC 1421 to 1430; 49 USC 1472; 49 USC 1485; 49 USC 1502; 49 USC 106(g); PL 97-449

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice will propose to modify the procedures for conducting an emergency evacuation demonstration by requiring that the flight crew take no active role in the demonstration and changing the age/sex distribution requirement for demonstration participants. This notice also proposes to standardize the illumination requirements for the handles of the various types of passenger emergency exits. In addition, it is proposed to add a requirement for a "push to talk" switch to the public address system. These proposals are intended to enhance the provisions of transport category airplanes for egress of occupants during emergency conditions. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action would establish a Terminal Control Area (TCA) in the greater Baltimore/Washington, DC, area. Because the TCA would serve airports located in three different areas (Washington, DC, Maryland, and Virginia) the TCA would be established as the Washington Tri-Area TCA. The TCA would encompass four major airports: Andrews Air Force Base, Baltimore-Washington International, Dulles International, and Washington National. The TCA would consist of airspace from the surface or higher within a 20-mile radius of each airport up to and including 10,000 feet above mean sea level. This action is intended to increase the capability of the air traffic control system to separate all aircraft in the terminal airspace around these airports and to substantially increase safety while accommodating the legitimate concerns of airspace users. Abstract: This action would revise the requirements for Ground Proximity Warning Systems for certificate holders operating under Part 135 by requiring that: (1) all turbine-powered airplanes with 10 or more seats have these systems, and (2) Ground Proximity Warning Systems meet the applicable Technical Standard Order requirements. This proposal would change the existing rule by expanding the requirement for Ground Proximity Warning Systems, now applicable only to turbojet airplanes, to also include turboprop airplanes. This proposal would also require that only Ground Proximity Warning Systems, not alternate warning systems, be installed on airplanes which currently do not have those systems. Abstract: This action would amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to require the servicing of airplane tires with nitrogen, in lieu of air, as the need to fill or service the tires occurs. This action is prompted by three confirmed, and other suspected, cases in which the oxygen in air-filled tires combined with volatile gases given off by a severely overheated tire, and exploded upon reaching autoignition temperature. A tire explosion in the wheel well during flight is suspected in the catastrophic loss of one airplane and severe damage to two others. An Airworthiness Directive has been adopted which affects current large transport category airplanes. The changes proposed in this rulemaking would extend the provisions of the Airworthiness Directive to future transport category airplanes. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations specify the medical standards which must be met before a medical certificate is issued to an airman. For example, a medical certificate is required before a person can obtain a pilot license. During rulemaking involving these regulations, a considerable number of commenters expressed the belief that the current standards should and could be revised to state, in generally applicable objective terms, all those circumstances in which the FAA will issue medical certificates. In the past, some certificates have been issued on a case-by-case basis, with appropriate limitations, under exemption and waiver provisions where strict compliance with the existing standards was not essential in the interest of safety. A comprehensive review of these regulations is necessary to determine if the commenters' arguments are correct. If they are and the requested regulatory changes are possible, it could greatly reduce burdens, both on the FAA and airmen, associated with the processing of medical certificates.

Abstract: This notice will propose to amend the regulations that deal with passenger information, safe passenger egress, child restraint, and emergency equipment. The proposals would prohibit smoking at any time in any location displaying a "no smoking" sign or placard. They would require that passengers wear safety belts at any time a "fasten seatbelts" sign is turned on. They would require that the "fasten seatbelts" sign be turned on during taxi. They would clearly establish a requirement for an assisting means of egress and the stowage of passenger service equipment prior to taxi. They would make the pilot in command or, in the case of operations under Part 121, the certificate holder responsible for informing the passengers that they may be liable for a civil penalty should they fail to comply with FAA regulations. They would require that supplementary child restraint devices be accepted by a certificate holder when requested by the child's attendant.

Abstract: This notice proposes changes to the type certification requirements for both normal and transport category rotorcraft. The changes would revise airworthiness standards for systems, propulsion, and airframes and would introduce safety improvements, clarify existing regulations, and standardize terminology. The changes are based on some of the proposals that were submitted to the FAA by the European Joint Airworthiness Requirements 29 group. These proposals are intended to encourage the European community's acceptance of the Federal Aviation Regulations' rotorcraft type certification requirements and to obviate the development of a new and different European standard. Adoption of these changes will achieve increased commonality of airworthiness standards among the respective countries.

Abstract: This notice proposes to amend the airworthiness standards for transport category airplane landing gear aural warning systems and the operating rules for air carrier and air taxi operators of transport airplanes by updating the present requirements to make them more functionally oriented. This proposal is prompted by reports of nuisance or inappropriate aural warnings which have occurred in modern transport airplanes when strictly adhering to the present regulations. It is intended to enhance flight safety while decreasing the regulatory burden associated with making an equivalent level of safety finding or exemption, for those systems that do not meet the existing requirements. This proposal will not affect existing certified airplanes.

Abstract: This action would propose changes to the airframe and flight airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes that are based on a number of recommendations discussed at the Small Airplane Airworthiness Review Conference held on October 22-26, 1984. This action arises from the recognition that updated safety standards are needed for an acceptable level of safety in the design requirements for small airplanes used in both private and commercial operations. This action will include design requirements applicable to advancements in technology being incorporated in current designs and will reduce the regulatory burden in showing compliance with some requirements while maintaining an acceptable level of safety.

Abstract: The Aerospace Industries Association of America, Inc., petitioned for amendments to the Federal Aviation Regulations to provide new one-engine-inoperative ratings for rotorcraft engines and their application to rotorcraft. This notice would respond to that petition and propose to define and establish type certification standards for new one-engine-inoperative ratings for rotorcraft engines in Parts 1 and 33.

Abstract: This action would propose changes to the powerplant and equipment airworthiness standards for normal, utility, acrobatic, and commuter category airplanes that are based on certain proposals and recommendations discussed at the Small Airplane Airworthiness Review Conference held in St. Louis, Missouri, on October 22-26, 1984. These proposals arise from the recognition, by both government and industry, that updated safety standards are needed to maintain an acceptable level of safety in the design requirements for small airplanes that are used in both private and commercial operations. These proposals, if adopted, will include design requirements applicable to advancements in technology being incorporated in current designs and reduce the regulatory burden in showing compliance with some requirements while maintaining an acceptable level of safety.

Abstract: This action would revise the structural requirements for transport category airplanes concerning flutter, divergence, vibration, and buffet. It would clarify the requirement to consider flutter and divergence when treating certain damage and failure conditions required by other sections of Part 25. It would revise the required safety margins by slightly reducing the safety margin concerning airplane speed for normal configurations and providing a minimum safety margin concerning airplane speed for damage and failure configurations. These changes are intended to provide consistency with other sections of Part 25, to relieve a design burden which is now unnecessary as a result of advances in technology, and to improve certain safety margins as a result of the evolution in the design of transport airplanes.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the Federal Aviation Regulations by upgrading the standards for protecting transport category airplanes from bird impact damage by requiring that airplanes be designed such that: (1) only minor damage would result from impact with a 4-pound bird and (2) the airplane would be capable of continued safe flight and landing after impact with an 8-pound bird. These standards are needed because of possible vulnerability of new technology flight controls, flight instruments, and flight structures to bird strike damage. These proposed changes are based on research and service experience and are intended to improve survivability of the airplane by providing better protection of critical structures and systems.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The low speed stalling features of some transport category airplanes are not characterized by the nose-down pitching that has traditionally identified the stall. As a result, the stall speed can be demonstrated to an artificially low level by continuing to decrease speed to the point that the airplane load factor is substantially less than one. The maximum usable power level may vary considerably with flight conditions. To correct this problem, this action would propose the use of a 1-G stall speed in all areas of Parts 25 and 36.

Abstract: This action proposes new requirements for water survival equipment carried aboard airplanes and rotorcraft. The requirements would apply, after specified dates, to US-certificate holders that conduct common-carriage operations with airplanes and rotorcraft. This proposal is in response to the Airport and Airway Safety and Capacity Enhancement Act of 1987 (PL 100-223) and relates to safety recommendations by the National Transportation Safety Board. The proposed requirements are intended to increase the likelihood of aircraft passengers surviving a crash landing in water and, thus, this rulemaking is significant because of the safety implications.

Abstract: The FAA proposes to require that all seats of transport category airplanes used in air carrier operations and transport category airplanes used in scheduled intrastate service comply with improved crashworthiness standards. The Airport and Airways Safety and Capacity Expansion Act of 1987 directs the Secretary of Transportation to initiate a rulemaking proceeding to consider requiring all seats onboard all air carrier aircraft to meet improved crashworthiness standards based upon the best available testing standards. The intended effect of this action is to increase passenger protection and survivability in survivable impact accidents. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its safety implications and statutory requirements.

Abstract: This proposed Special Federal Aviation Regulation (SFAR) would establish a voluntary alternative method for meeting the training, evaluation, certification, and qualification requirements for flight crewmembers, flight attendants, aircraft dispatchers, instructors, evaluators, and other operations personnel subject to the training requirements of 14 CFR Part 121 and Part 135. The FAA has developed this alternative method in response to recommendations made by a task force composed of representatives from the Government, airlines, aircrew professional organizations, and airline industry organizations. The proposed SFAR is designed to improve aircrew performance and would allow certificate holders that are subject to the training requirements of Part 121 and Part 135 to develop innovative training programs that incorporate the most recent advances in training methods and techniques. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would revise the type certification standards for transport category rotorcraft by adding flaw tolerance requirements to the requirements for fatigue evaluation of structures. This action would also extend the requirements for fatigue evaluations from flight structures only to all critical structures, including landing gear, and would require consideration of operations having a high number of power cycles per hour. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves important safety issues.

Abstract: This notice proposes amendments to the FAR which would provide for improved cabin fire protection for transport category airplanes by requiring: (1) each lavatory to be equipped with a smoke detector system which provides warning to the cockpit or to the passenger cabin crew; (2) each lavatory trash receptacle to be equipped with a fire extinguisher which discharges automatically upon the occurrence of a fire within the receptacle; (3) the number of hand fire extinguishers in the cabins of airplanes with passenger seating capacities greater than 200 to be increased; (4) a specified number of the hand fire extinguishers in the cabin to contain Hallon 1211 or equivalent as the extinguishing agent. These safety protections are currently required for operation of airplanes used in air carrier service, but not for the full range of transport category airplanes such as those used for executive transportation. This notice also proposes to require each transport category (cont)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 27; 14 CFR 29

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This project proposes to amend the rotorcraft airworthiness standards in Parts 27 and 29 of the FAR. These proposals would add two dynamic crash-impact design requirement conditions for seat and occupant restraint systems, increase the static design load factors for seating devices and items of mass in the cabin or adjacent to the cabin as prescribed, prescribe a shoulder harness for each occupant, and add human impact injury criteria for the dynamic crash-impact conditions. These proposals are intended to significantly improve occupant protection levels in a survivable emergency landing impact. This rulemaking is significant because of the obvious safety improvements in crash situations, but also because of industry and operator concerns as to incurred costs due to increased weight and design effort.

Abstract: This proposed rule was designed to alleviate increased delays throughout the air-traffic system, and was significant because of its involvement with important departmental policy. Abstract: This action would amend the regulations to require an independent power source for the public address (PA) system in certain transport category airplanes. The requirement would be applicable to future type certification of airplanes that are required to have PA systems for use in air carrier service and to such airplanes manufactured after a specified date, regardless of the date of application for type certificate. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves an important cabin-safety issue.

Abstract: The current regulations need to be revised to account for the changed operational practices stemming from airline economic deregulation. This proposal would clarify or change the number of flight attendants required when passengers are on board an airplane, including at stops. This proposal includes two new requirements: (1) a revision of the reduced number of flight attendants which, under certain conditions, a carrier is permitted to have on board a passenger-carrying airplane during stops; and (2) a requirement for a demonstration of competency by the other authorized persons who may be permitted to be substituted for required flight attendants when passengers are on board the airplane during stops. This proposal would change the current rule by clarifying and specifying the training required to be completed by these other authorized persons. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This notice proposes rules under which two or more alcohol- or drug-related motor vehicle convictions or related State administrative actions would be grounds for certificate action against a pilot. This notice also proposes rules under which a pilot's medical certificate would expire, requiring that the pilot apply for a new medical certificate, after an alcohol- or drug-related motor vehicle action. The notice proposes to require pilots to report alcohol- or drug-related motor vehicle actions to the FAA and proposes to add an express consent provision to facilitate FAA access to information reported to the National Driver Register. The proposed rules are needed to prohibit a pilot from operating an aircraft after multiple alcohol- or drug-related motor vehicle actions. This rulemaking is a significant FAA initiative based on the Department of Transportation/ Inspector General Report of February 17, 1987, entitled "Report on Audit of Airmen Medical Certification Program."

Abstract: This action would require that the fuel tank access covers on transport category airplanes be designed to minimize penetration by likely foreign objects and be fire resistant. This proposed change is based on service experience and is intended to reduce the hazards associated with the loss of access panels. This action also proposes to require that the panels of all turbine powered airplanes operated in air carrier service after a specified date meet these standards. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves an important crashworthiness safety issue.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 31, 1988.

Abstract: This rulemaking would prescribe benefit-cost based criteria for establishment and discontinuance of visual flight rule (VFR) airport traffic control tower facilities. It considers traffic density (number of aircraft operations without consideration of aircraft size), passengers served, and aircraft operating efficiencies along with the cost of establishing and maintaining or decommissioning a tower. The FAA utilizes these criteria to assess benefits and costs associated with establishing or decommissioning an airport traffic control tower at an airport as a part of its mission to maximize safety and efficiency throughout the airport and airway system consistent with available resources. This regulation, if promulgated, would implement the requirements of recent legislation requiring the publication of criteria for navigational aids and airport traffic control towers as a Federal regulation. This rulemaking is significant because of statutory requirements.

1861. ● + AIRBORNE LOW-ALTITUDE WINDSHEAR EQUIPMENT AND TRAINING REQUIREMENTS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1356; 49 USC 1357; 49 USC 1401; 49 USC 1421 to 1430; 49 USC 1472; 49 USC 1485; 49 USC 1502; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposed to amend the airborne low-altitude windshear equipment rule to (1) remove the requirement that windshear flight guidance be installed on older technology airplanes, (2) amend the provision allowing for an extended compliance period based on a phased airplane retrofit schedule, and (3) provide for acceptance of alternative airplane equipment in the form of an approved airborne windshear detection and avoidance system.

This action is the result of information received in a petition for rulemaking submitted by the Air Transport Association (ATA) requesting that the FAA amend the windshear equipment rule to repeal the requirement that older airplanes be retrofitted with the flight guidance system.

This action solicited comments on the ATA petition and on the FAA's intention to (1) standardize windshear terminology and (2) allow the use of alternative predictive windshear detection and avoidance systems, when such technology is available.

This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action would amend various sections of the regulations. Some of the amendments are clarifying or editorial in nature or correct improper or obsolete references. Others relax certain existing requirements. Others allow issuance of special flight permits for an additional purpose, relax a requirement for passenger information signs, and eliminate the bulk erasure device on cockpit voice recorders. This action is in response to numerous complaints, suggestions, and petitions for exemption concerning several regulatory requirements received from users of the National Airspace System. These users state that these sections contain obsolete references and vague, complex, and inadequate language and that, in some instances, the cost of compliance is not justified by the benefits derived.

Abstract: This action would adopt fatigue requirements for empennage, canard, tandem wing, and winglet/tip fin structures for airplanes certificated in the normal, utility, acrobatic, or commuter category. Service history, airworthiness directives, and field reports related to unsafe, or potentially unsafe, fatigue failures of empennage structural components on airplanes of these types have shown the need to consider empennage fatigue strength during type certification.

Abstract: This proposal would establish standard visibility and cloud clearance minimums for night-visual flight rules operations. This rulemaking effort is the result of a recommendation of a nongovernmental aviation safety panel. This panel's recommendation sought to reduce the incidence of fatal aircraft accidents associated with night-visual flight rules flights in instrument flight rules conditions while in uncontrolled airspace.

Abstract: The FAA proposes to update and clarify the certification and operations specifications requirements for persons who operate aircraft for compensation or hire by (1) codifying the Special Federal Aviation Regulation pertaining to the certification requirements and (2) consolidating into one part the certification and operations specifications requirements for persons who operate under Part 121 or Part 135. The proposal responds to the termination of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and to changes in the air transportation industry since the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. The proposal would provide a guide enabling persons who operate aircraft for compensation or hire to determine the certification and operations requirements with which they must comply.

Abstract: This notice is one of a series of notices that proposes to adopt new and amended airworthiness standards for small airplanes. It also proposes to amend the flight instrument requirements in the general operating rules and the operating rules for air taxi and commercial operators. This particular notice proposes amended design requirements for complex systems critical for safety in small airplanes and amended requirements for locating certain instruments, including new technology electronic display indicators. It proposes to add a new airworthiness standard for electronic display instruments. It also includes related changes to the general and air taxi operating rules to allow a third attitude indicator in lieu of a rate-of-turn indicator.

Abstract: This notice is one of a series of notices that proposes to adopt new and amended airworthiness standards for small airplanes which are based on certain proposals discussed at the Small Airplane Airworthiness Review Conference held on October 22-26, 1984, in St. Louis, Missouri. These new and amended airworthiness standards result in the need for new definitions to be added to the regulations, and this notice also proposes the addition of those definitions. The proposals in this notice reflect advancements in technology being incorporated in current designs, permit type certification of spin resistant airplanes, and reduce the regulatory burden in showing compliance with some of the requirements while maintaining the standards governing the design and type certification of small airplanes as may be required in the interest of safety.

1877. IMPROVED STRUCTURAL REQUIREMENTS FOR PRESSURIZED CABINS AND COMPARTMENTS IN TRANSPORT CATEGORY AIRPLANES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1344; 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1424; 49 USC 1425; 49 USC 1428; 49 USC 1429; 49 USC 1430; 49 USC 106(g); PL 97-449

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend Part 25 of the Federal Aviation Regulations (FAR) to upgrade the structural requirements for transport category airplane pressurized cabins by (1) amending the criteria for evaluation of the secondary effects of openings in the pressure vessel, and (2) extending the area of consideration to include openings anywhere within the pressure vessel. The required opening sizes to be considered would not be changed. The proposal is the result of an FAA review of the pressurized cabin load requirements and is intended to make the pressurized cabin load requirements less design-dependent and more objective. It would require evaluation of openings in any pressurized compartment and examination of the effects of differential pressure loads on any critical structure inside or outside of the pressurized cabin.

Abstract: This notice proposes to amend the regulations to provide for the acceptance of maintenance, preventive maintenance, and alterations accomplished on U.S. civil aeronautical products and components in Canada. This proposal is prompted by the airworthiness maintenance provisions contained in the U.S.-Canadian Bilateral Airworthiness Agreement and the Schedule of Implementation Procedures between the United States and Canada. The proposed amendment would provide for acceptance by the FAA of maintenance, preventive maintenance, and alterations performed on aircraft, engines, propellers, appliances, materials, parts, and other components which are transported from the United States to Canada and which are for installation on U.S.-registered aircraft.

Abstract: On November 21, 1988, the FAA published a final rule requiring specified aviation employers and operators to submit and to implement anti-drug programs for personnel performing sensitive safety- and security-related functions. This final rule extends certain compliance dates and revises the method by which certain entities may be covered by anti-drug programs approved by the FAA. This document also makes minor editorial changes and clarifications to the final anti-drug rule to aid an employer's development of a program and implementation of an approved anti-drug program. These issues were addressed in the prior rulemaking actions that lead to promulgation of the final anti-drug rule. This rulemaking action is necessary to facilitate implementation of the final rule published on November 21, 1988. This rulemaking action is intended to clarify the requirements of the final anti-drug rule and to improve administration of the rule. Comments on this final rule were invited through May 15, 1989. A response to those comments will be published in the Federal Register. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 313(a); 49 USC 1355 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 314; 49 USC 1421 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 601; 49 USC 1422 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 602

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 61

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule establishes a recreational pilot certificate. The recreational pilot certificate is intended to provide a lower cost alternative to the private pilot certificate by requiring less training than is currently required for private pilot certification. The recreational pilot certificate is intended for those persons interested in flying basic, experimental, or homebuilt aircraft in close proximity to a home airport while in airspace in which communication with air traffic control facilities is not required. The rule also establishes an annual flight review requirement for non-instrument-rated private pilots with fewer than 400 flight hours. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest and safety implications.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 313(a); 49 USC 1421(a) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 601(a); 49 USC 1423 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 603; 49 USC 1431(b) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 611(b); 49 USC 1421 et seq National Environmental Policy Act, Title I; EO 11514; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule revises noise certification standards to ensure that aircraft certificated within certain noise level groups or "stages" remain within those stages. This rule applies to large transport category aircraft and to turbojet powered aircraft regardless of category and prohibits modification of individual airplanes and whole airplane types which result in increased noise beyond the limits of an airplane's certificated stage. While the rule does not restrict airplane changes that result in decreased noise, it does prohibit any remodification of an airplane which would return it to its original noise level. This rulemaking is significant because of intense public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1431

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Although this project was considered significant due to public interest, the FAA has decided, after consideration of the public comments submitted in response to ANPRM No. 87-2, to discontinue this rulemaking. The ANPRM sought public comments on the need for modifications to current noise and emission standards as they apply to the emerging generation of advanced turboprop (propfan) engines and the aircraft powered by them. At this time, further rulemaking action is inappropriate. Before the FAA can determine whether any additional standards and regulations are necessary to govern the noise characteristics of the advanced turboprop (propfan) engines, the agency must first conduct the analysis required by Sections 611(b)(2) and (d) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958. Only after this analysis has been performed will the FAA be able to determine whether additional noise standards are necessary or appropriate. In order to perform this analysis in a timely manner, the FAA will seek to enter into a joint research effort with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and industry. The results of this research will be made available for public comment.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21; 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule establishes a new standard that limits the distance between emergency exits on transport category airplanes. This rule prohibits airplane manufacturers and air carriers from increasing the distance between emergency exits to more than 60 feet. Existing regulations do not limit the distance. This rule is intended to ensure an opportunity for safe passenger evacuation during an emergency, and for this reason, this rule is considered significant.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On October 14, 1988, the FAA published a final rule on TCA Classification and TCA Pilot and Navigational Equipment Requirements. That final rule required, among other things, all aircraft operating in a TCA to be equipped with Very High Frequency Omnidirectional Range (VOR) or Tactical Air Navigation (TACAN) equipment, eliminating the previous exclusion for helicopters effective July 1, 1989. This action delays the effective date of the navigational equipment requirement for helicopter operations in a TCA until January 1, 1990. The FAA by separate action intends to propose to amend the regulations requiring VOR or TACAN navigational equipment only for aircraft conducting operations under IFR. Consequently, the FAA is delaying the effective date of the TCA navigational equipment requirement for 180 days. This delay is necessary to allow interested parties to comment on the related equipment proposal and to delay purchase of equipment should that proposal be adopted.

Abstract: This final rule requires foreign air carriers that land or take off in the United States to submit to the Administrator for approval a written security program that describes the procedures, facilities, and equipment used by foreign air carriers to provide for the protection of persons and property traveling in air transportation against acts of criminal violence and air piracy. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: The FAA amends its regulations to require digital flight data recorders and cockpit voice recorders (CVR) to be installed in a broad category of airplanes and rotorcraft operated by air carriers and commuters, as well as in selected aircraft operated in general aviation. The amendments are in response to legislation which mandates the FAA to amend its flight recorder and CVR requirements in accordance with recommendations from the National Transportation Safety Board. The intent of this rulemaking is to provide more information to accident investigators in determining the causes of accidents and the measures needed to correct the causes. In addition, the FAA requested comments on the general aviation requirements. A disposition of those comments was published in the Federal Register. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, June 30, 1988.

Abstract: This rulemaking requires a transponder and automatic altitude reporting equipment in terminal airspace of certain airports where air traffic control radar service is provided. Implementation will be in two phases: Phase I, effective June 1, 1989, requires a transponder with Mode C at and above 10,000 feet MSL, and within 30 miles of TCA primary airports. Balloons, gliders, and aircraft without an electrical system are excluded when operating outside a TCA below the altitude of the TCA ceiling and when operating between 10,000 and 18,000 feet MSL. Phase II, effective December 30, 1990, implements a transponder with Mode C requirement in and above the airspace of an ARSA up to 10,000 feet. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial public interest and statutory requirement.

Additional Information: This final rule was published on June 21, 1988. On June 30, 1989, the FAA published a policy statement which allows operators flexibility while transitioning to this rule. This policy statement was necessary because many pilots delayed their decision to purchase the required equipment pending the outcome of the FAA's decision on a petition for rulemaking which would affect this final rule. Considering that the petition was denied only 14 days prior to the implementation date of this final rule, the FAA believed it was necessary to issue the policy statement.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121; 14 CFR 135

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, April 23, 1988.

Abstract: This rule requires the "no smoking" sign to be turned on at all times on scheduled airline flights, except for flights between the United States and other countries, which are scheduled to be two hours or less in duration. This rule carries out a ban on smoking on such flights mandated by PL 100-202. This rule also makes minor changes in other related sections of Parts 121 and 135 which affect smoking aboard air carrier aircraft during flights not covered by a total ban. Smoking in lavatories is prohibited on all air carrier flights. Also, the required passenger briefing must include more detailed instructions on smoking, including all of these changes and the new statutory ban on tampering with smoke alarms in aircraft lavatories. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial public interest.

Therefore, post-effective date comments were invited from the public. As mandated by PL 100-457.

Abstract: This final rule makes several technical amendments to the regulations pertaining to allocation and transfer of air carrier and commuter operator slots (i.e., allocated instrument flight rules take-off and landing reservations) at Kennedy International Airport, LaGuardia Airport, O'Hare International Airport, and Washington National Airport. It provides that slots generally will not be withdrawn from carriers holding eight or fewer slots if the holding carrier itself operates the slots. It also changes the maximum passenger seating capacity for operations in "scheduled commuter" slots from less that 56 seats to less than 75 seats, and changes the definition of "summer" and "winter" season to conform to the current legal definition of Daylight Savings Time and Local Standard Time. This rulemaking was significant because of congressional interest.

Abstract: This action responded to a petition filed by the Experimental Aircraft Association, Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, and Helicopter Association International concerning Mode S and Mode C transponder requirements. Abstract: This amendment reorganized and realigned the general operating and flight rules to make them more understandable and easier to use. Also, several changes were made to provide more flexibility for certain operations. These changes resulted from comments received from the general public and aviation industry in response to a request for specific comments to help identify substantive areas needing review.

Abstract: This proposed action would amend the regulations to allow the flight engineers' normal procedure practical test to be conducted in an approved flight simulator in lieu of conducting it, in flight, in an airplane.

This Project is being removed from the agenda until the FAA's Regulatory Review Board, which establishes priorities and sets timetables for rulemaking projects, designates this project as an agency top priority and establishes a timetable for a rulemaking action. CFR Citation: 14 CFR 135

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed action would revise several sections of Part 135 dealing with instrument flight rules. The proposed rule would: (1) permit IFR operations enroute with a VFR buffer zone underneath the cloud ceiling by permitting an IFR approach at destination; (2) change IFR takeoff minimums at U.S. military airports to be compatible with U.S. civil airport requirements; and (3) provide driftdown standards during enroute operations in IFR conditions in multiengine aircraft.

This project is being removed from the agenda until the FAA's Regulatory Review Board, which establishes priorities and sets timetables for rulemaking projects, designates this project as an agency priority and establishes a timetable for a rulemaking action. Abstract: On June 3, 1987, the FAA published a final rule which amended the regulations applicable to protective breathing equipment (PBE). This final rule amends the compliance date for installing PBE and for training air carrier crewmembers in the use of PBE. The compliance date is extended from July 6, 1989, to January 31, 1990. This rule is necessary due to technical problems and delays in the certification of PBE and production problems experienced by several manufacturers of PBE. By extending the compliance date, air carriers will not be penalized for the supply problems caused by the delayed certification and production of PBE units.

Abstract: This is a recodification of 14 CFR Parts 47 and 49 in order to modernize these parts, making them compatible with modern business practices, in keeping with FAA policy.

The potential costs have not yet been assessed, but are considered to be negligible as the impact will be procedural and not substantive.

The potential benefits are the clarification of regulatory language and facilitation of procedures for registration of aircraft and recordation of conveyances affecting ownership of or interest in U.S. civil aircraft.

This project is being removed from the agenda until the FAA's Regulatory Review Board, which establishes priorities and sets timetables for rulemaking projects, designates this project as an agency top priority and establishes a timetable for a rulemaking action. Abstract: On June 02, 1988, the FAA published a final rule for the operation of aircraft in the airspace above the Grand Canyon up to an altitude of 14,500 feet above mean sea level, with an effective date of September 22, 1988. The regulations were adopted to comply with recent legislation requiring additional flight regulations based on the recommendations of the U.S. Department of the Interior. The FAA requested comments on the final rule at the time it was published. This action establishes a corridor into the airport on the Hualapai Indian Reservation and simplifies the configuration of a flight corridor in the vicinity of Dragon Butte in the central canyon.

Abstract: Subpart E was implemented to segregate aircraft departing/arriving Luke Air Force Base Federal Airway Victor 16 (V-16) from uncontrolled aircraft operating along that airway. The United States Air Force has recently established a military approach control unit at Luke Air Force Base. Petitioner believes there is no longer a valid reason to retain this part of the regulation since the Luke Air Force Base approach control exercises control over the subject airspace and is aware of all activity in that area. Petitioner believes that safety has, therefore, been enhanced. This project is being removed from the Agenda until the FAA's Regulatory Review Board, which establishes the priorities and sets timetables for rulemaking projects, designates this project as an emergency top priority and establishes a timetable for a rulemaking action. 1925. QUALIFICATION OF DRIVERS; DIABETES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102; 49 USC App 2505; 23 USC 315

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 391.41(b)(3)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action responds to a petition filed by the American Diabetes Association (ADA) and others. The current diabetic rule prohibits insulin-using diabetics from driving in interstate or foreign commerce. The ADA has petitioned to change the regulation to provide for exemptions. The purpose of this action is to consider the proposed exemption program. A supplemental ANPRM is being issued to request comments on the development of medical evaluation procedures and risk assessment procedures for insulin dependent diabetics.

1926. ● TRUCK LENGTH AND WIDTH EXCLUSIVE DEVICES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 23 USC 315; PL 97-424, Sec 411; PL 97-424, Sec 416

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 658

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA is requesting public comment on how, under Section 411(h) and 416(b) of the Surface Transportation Act of 1982 (STAA) (Pub. L. 97-424, 96 Stat. 2097), the Secretary may determine which safety or efficiency-enhancing devices are to be excluded when measuring the length and width of vehicles for compliance with federally mandated dimensions. The present system of employing rulemaking proceedings is too time-consuming and cumbersome to meet the needs of industry and is needlessly burdensome for FHWA. Therefore, a new approach will be proposed.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA has requested information and comments on the existing FHWA regulation governing reasonable access by commercial vehicles with lengths and widths authorized by the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA) as amended. A Supplemental NPRM will be published to request public comment on a report released by the Transportation Research Board (TRB) concerning issues relating to reasonable access. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 100-202, Sec 9105

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 383

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will develop improved identification systems for truck and bus drivers as identified by the Congress in the Truck and Bus Regulatory Reform Act of 1988. Such high technology "unique" identifiers, when and if incorporated into the Commercial Driver's License Information System and the related State information systems, would reduce still further the opportunities for a driver to fraudulently obtain multiple licenses and to conceal disqualifying offenses. Alternatives under consideration include, but will not be limited to, retinal eye scans and advanced fingerprint technologies. Potential costs will accrue to the States for startup and operation of the upgraded identification methods, and to drivers and/or employers for incremental licensing costs passed on to them by the States. Safety benefits are expected to flow from the more accurate identification of CDL applicants and tracking of CDL holders' offenses. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102; 49 USC App 2503; 49 USC App 2505

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 390

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking document proposes revisions to the current requirements contained in 49 CFR 390.21 concerning the marking of motor vehicles. Three areas are being considered for possible revision: (1) the applicability of the marking requirements to all commercial motor vehicles operated in interstate commerce, (2) postcard type registration of motor carriers, and (3) the treatment of rental vehicles. The third area of concern is being considered in response to a request for interpretation filed by the Truck Rental and Leasing Association (TRALA). This rulemaking is considered significant because of the public interest in commercial motor-carrier safety.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA and NHTSA are considering the establishment of an advisory committee to develop a report which includes a recommended rulemaking proposal concerning a uniform system for handicapped parking. The committee would develop its recommendation using a negotiation process. The committee would be comprised of persons who represent the interests affected by handicapped parking regulations. The regulations would address: the use of the International Symbol of Access on Handicapped plates and placards; fees for plates and placards; and the recognition of out-of-State handicapped plates and placards. It is intended that the problems facing the handicapped traveler would be greatly reduced. Due to the nationwide interest in this issue, this rulemaking action is considered significant.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Sections 207-209 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 establish a process whereby any State law or regulation pertaining to commercial motor vehicle safety in interstate commerce will be reviewed and analyzed by the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Regulatory Review Panel (Safety Panel). The Safety Panel is to determine if such law or regulation has the same effect as, is less stringent than, or is additional to or more stringent than the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations. Based on the determination of the Safety Panel, the Secretary is to initiate a rulemaking proceeding to determine if such a law or regulation may remain in effect and enforced. This notice of proposed rulemaking is the initial rulemaking action for any possible preemptive action by the Secretary. It will contain alternatives for comment on ways the Secretary may satisfy the requirements of section 206 of the Act. Section 9109 of the Truck and Bus Safety and Regulatory Reform Act of 1988 extends the deadline for Secretarial preemption under certain conditions until no later than 10/30/91.

1938. ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT AND RELATED PROCEDURES; CONSTRUCTIVE USE

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 23 USC 315; 49 USC 303

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 771

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The need for rulemaking in this area has been caused by recent court decisions. The courts have delayed or halted several important Federal-aid highway projects on the grounds that the proximate effects or impacts from a given highway would constructively use land from a park or historic site. In each instance the FHWA had determined that there existed no constructive use. This determination was based on an analysis of proximity impacts and whether the impacts would substantially impair the functions or values which qualified the property for protection under Section 4(f) of the DOT Act. The FHWA has been operating under an informal policy directive on constructive use since 11/12/85. This rulemaking action would formalize existing policy on constructive use, and future court decisions would address the regulation rather than be based on ad hoc interpretations of specific project facts.

Abstract: This rulemaking action is intended to implement section 213(b) of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 by adding a penalty schedule to 49 CFR Part 386 applicable to failure to comply with notices and orders issued under the authority of section 521(b) of Title 49, United States Code. These penalties would apply in addition to other civil forfeiture assessments for violations of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR) charged in a Notice of Claim or Notice of Investigation.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 23 USC 127; 49 USC App 2311 to 2313; 49 USC App 2316; 23 USC 315

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 658

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking document proposed to amend current regulations to include dromedary decks and plates under the dromedary box provisions. This would preempt inconsistent State laws and regulations to permit truck tractors equipped with dromedary decks or plates having the capacity to carry cargo that were in legal use on December 1, 1982, to continue to operate throughout their useful lives. Proof of such legal use would continue to rest with the operator of the equipment.

Abstract: In response to a petition from the National Automobile Transporters Association (NATA) and its member companies dated 9/7/88, the FHWA proposes to amend 23 CFR 658.5 and 658.13 to regulate the overall length of driveaway saddlemount combinations and driveaway saddlemount and fullmount combinations. The proposed changes would increase the overall length limit from 65 to 75 feet and clarify that both saddlemount and saddlemount with fullmount automobile transporters are specialized equipment.

Abstract: This rulemaking action responds to Section 9112 of the Truck and Bus Safety and Regulatory Reform Act of 1988. Section 9112 states that the Secretary may issue regulations which permit foreign motor carriers and foreign private motor carriers providing transportation of property to meet the minimum levels of financial responsibility only during periods in which these carriers are providing transportation of property in the United States, rather than on a continuous basis.

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing revisions to the requirements for private motor carriers of passengers and the drivers of private motor vehicles of passengers. The proposed revisions would require private motor carriers of passengers and drivers of private motor vehicles of passengers to operate under the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR). However, the paperwork burden of these requirements will be minimized and several parts of the FMCSR will not apply to either private motor carriers of passengers or to drivers of such vehicles. This rulemaking is significant in that it is controversial, involving bringing new carriers under the regulatory scheme.

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing to amend Parts 383 and 391 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR's) to address certain questions that were posed in the final rule (Docket MC-125; Notice No. 87-06) published in the Federal Register on June 1, 1987. Specifically, in this document the FHWA proposes to define "excessive speeding," "reckless driving" and "other serious traffic violations." The FHWA also proposes to amend the subject parts to clarify or make minor revisions. Because of the public interest in the issue of commercial motor vehicle safety and the expected benefits of improved transportation safety, this action is considered significant under the regulatory policies and procedures of the Department of Transportation.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation proposes to consolidate and amend existing air quality requirements for transportation projects into a single amended air quality regulation. The amended regulation is intended to streamline and simplify (1) the process of determining which highway projects are exempt from the Federal assistance limitations of section 176(a) of the Clean Air Act (CAA), and (2) the conformity and priority procedures contained in 23 CFR 770. The amendments are also intended to provide more authority and flexibility to States and to meet the objectives of the CAA in the most cost-effective and expeditious manner. The amendments are significant because they involve important departmental policy.

1953. COMPLIANCE WITH MOTOR CARRIER NOISE STANDARDS

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 325

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA considered amending the noise emission standards to add a new minimum distance of 31 feet from which to measure highway noise. FHWA also considered eliminating the correction factor which allowed a variance for noise tests taken at hard sites, e.g., asphalt, compared to those taken at soft sites, e.g., grassy areas. Based upon a further review, the FHWA has determined that no further action is required at this time. Therefore, the NPRM will be withdrawn.

Abstract: The FHWA is revising its regulations relating to the advance construction of Federal-aid highway projects. The revisions incorporate new provisions mandated by section 113 of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA). The procedures allow States to advance the construction of Federal-aid highway projects without requiring that Federal funds be obligated at the time the FHWA approves the project.

Abstract: The FHWA is amending Parts 390, 391, and 393 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSRs). This action amends the intracity zone exemption to make it consistent with Truck and Bus Safety and Regulatory Reform Act of 1988 (the Act) (Title IX, Subtitle B of PL 100-690, 102 Stat. 4181). It also exempts certain foreign motor carriers from the provisions of 49 CFR Part 393 for a period of one year from the date of enactment of the Act (i.e., 11/18/89). The Act also requires the Secretary to report to Congress on the effects of the delayed application and recommend "on the extent to which foreign motor carriers may or should comply with all or any of the requirements of Part 393." To comply with the Congressional mandate, the FHWA is requesting comments from all interested parties on this issue.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 23 USC 109; 23 USC 315; 23 USC 402

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 625

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) is requesting comments on a proposed amendment to the design standards which apply to Interstate highway construction and reconstruction projects eligible to receive funding under the Federal-aid highway program. A revised publication approved by the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO) entitled "A Policy on Design Standards--Interstate System, AASHTO 1988" would be substituted for the previous version of these standards last revised June 20, 1967. If the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) adopts the 1988 document, the new AASHTO publication would constitute the FHWA's policy on geometric design for all federally-assisted construction and reconstruction projects on the Interstate highway system.

Abstract: This rulemaking action amends the Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices (MUTCD) to revise the definition of short-term pavement markings to provide the States with flexibility in providing temporary pavement markings in construction and maintenance areas. The MUTCD is incorporated by reference in 23 CFR 655, Subpart F and is recognized as the national standard for traffic control devices on all public roads. Abstract: Due to amendments to the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSRs) which have occurred in the past few years, certain information and terminology currently found in the written examinations for drivers is no longer correct. Consequently, the FHWA is amending the written examination, which is given to driver applicants by motor carriers subject to the jurisdiction of the FHWA, to correct the examination's information and terminology. While the revisions are nonsubstantive in nature, they will improve the usefulness of the written examination.

1966. + CERTIFICATION OF SPEED LIMIT ENFORCEMENT

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 23 USC 141; 23 USC 154; 23 USC 315; PL 100-17, Sec 174

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 659

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) have amended the regulations on certification of speed limit enforcement in order to streamline the sanction process and to take into account the provisions mandated by section 174 of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA). Section 174 of STURAA amended 23 U.S.C. 154 by giving the States the authority to increase, without loss of Federal-aid funds, the maximum speed limit to no more than 65 miles per hour (mph) on certain Interstate System highways. A notice of proposed rulemaking was issued proposing revisions to the sanction process contained in 23 CFR Part 659. A separate final rulemaking action has been issued in order to provide the States the authority to adjust the speed sampling and analysis plan required for determining the level of 55 mph noncompliance.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 23 USC 127; 23 USC 315; 49 USC 2311; 49 USC 2313; 49 USC App 2316

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 658

Abstract: The FHWA was proposing to modify the National Network for commercial motor vehicles by deleting a certain route in South Carolina. The National Network was established by the final rule on Truck Size and Weight published at 49 FR 23302 on June 5, 1984. It is maintained under 23 CFR 658, Appendix A, as amended. However, the State then requested that the route not be deleted. Rulemaking was therefore terminated on April 24, 1989 at 54 FR 16372. This rulemaking was considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Additional Information: The NPRM was published as part of the entry under RIN 2125-AC10. Since additional information and data was needed to resolve the issue of deleting the route in South Carolina, the FHWA has separated the action on South Carolina from those actions that addressed routes in Iowa and Kentucky. Also, since the NPRM addressed routes in the States of Iowa and Kentucky, the NPRM was not withdrawn.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 23 USC 140; 23 USC 315; PL 97-424, Sec 129

Abstract: This revision was intended to expedite the processing of Federal-aid highways projects by promoting wider use of the findings and recommendations of the demonstration project carried out under section 141 of the 1976 Federal-Aid Highway Act. Upon further review, it has been determined that no further action was required. Therefore, the ANPRM was withdrawn by final notice on June 1, 1989 (54 FR 23489).

Additional Information: An interim policy statement was published 6/6/83 (48 FR 25181) to implement acceleration methods for selected projects within existing regulations. Initially, FHWA had considered issuing a new regulation as a vehicle for accelerating Federal-aid projects pursuant to Section 129 of the STAA of 1982. However, it has been determined that the objectives of Section 129 can be best implemented by revisions to existing regulations. Therefore, separate regulations will not be issued regarding the acceleration program. This approach received the concurrence of Deputy Administrator Lamm on April 11, 1984. This regulation has been withdrawn.

1973. FEDERAL MOTOR CARRIER SAFETY REGULATIONS; GENERAL; RENTAL VEHICLE LEASING

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2905

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 390

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action responds to a petition filed by the Truck Rental and Leasing Association (TRALA). The FHWA is proposing to amend its commercial motor vehicle marking requirements to allow certain "rental vehicles" to be marked with the name and address of the rental company and the U.S. DOT identification number issued to the rental company in lieu of requiring the renting motor carrier to display its required identification information on the sides of the rental vehicle. This action will enhance the uniform identification of commercial motor vehicles operated on the nation's highways and aid enforcement officers in carrying out their duties. This rulemaking action has been merged with the rulemaking action entitled: "Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations; General; Motor Vehicle Marking" (RIN #2125-AC28), in the prerule section of the Agenda.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102; 49 USC App 2505; PL 99-570, Title IX

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 383

Abstract: This rulemaking document technically amended 49 CFR 383 by inserting into the regulatory text the Federal Highway Administrator's determination that commercial drivers' licenses issued by Canadian jurisdictions under the Canadian National Safety Code meet the commercial driver testing and licensing standards contained in 49 CFR Part 383. Accordingly, a commercial driver's license issued by a Canadian jurisdiction in conformity with the Canadian National Safety Code is considered to be the single commercial driver's license for operation in the United States by Canadian drivers. Also, a Canadian driver is prohibited from obtaining any driver's license from a State or other licensing jurisdiction of the United States. Abstract: Petitions for reconsideration have raised the question of whether the Part 572(E) dummy's chest deflection limit of 2 in. is appropriate for belt restraints. The rulemaking will address the petitioner's issues. The intention is to upgrade the chest-deflection injury criteria for unrestrained occupants when vehicles are tested for the Standard compliance with the Hybrid III Dummy. The Final Rule stated that the agency will have to resolve this issue by September 1, 1990. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401; 15 USC 1403; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.105

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Petitions from R. Grabowsky and American Trucking Association (ATA) requesting initiation of rulemaking concerning brake linings (all vehicles and aftermarket). Mr. Grabowsky petitioned relative to stability, friction level, fade, wear, and identification of linings. ATA petitioned relative to friction level and identification of linings for heavy vehicles only. Petitions concerned both performance levels and test procedures, and are presently under consideration.

Prerule Stage

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, October 24, 1990.

The Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act (P.L. 98-547) requires a Report to Congress five years after promulgation of the Federal Motor Vehicle Theft Prevention Standard.

Abstract: This standard, which applies to passenger cars, requires identifying numbers or symbols to be placed on major parts of high theft passenger motor vehicles. A comprehensive evaluation will be performed to determine the effectiveness of the regulation in reducing the incidence of motor vehicle thefts and to estimate the costs of manufacturing and applying the identifying information. The evaluation of the regulation is required by the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act and calls for a Report to Congress five years after promulgation of the standard.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.105

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This standard regulates the performance of antilock brake systems for passenger cars and other vehicles with hydraulic brakes. The purpose of antilock brakes is to enhance the driver's control of the vehicle during emergency braking. Antilock brakes are currently available on some passenger cars. The standard, at this time, does not require them for all cars. The regulation was selected for review because of public interest in the costs and benefits of antilock brakes.

Abstract: Accidents involving heavy trucks have a disproportionate (higher) fatality rate than all other motor vehicles. This rulemaking proposes to reinstate stopping distance performance requirements in Standard 121 so as to help improve heavy vehicle braking performance and hence reduce the number of accidents involving these vehicles. Although a court decision found that Standard 121, as it then existed, was unenforceable, additional accident data and technical review have persuaded NHTSA that the court's requirements can now be met.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 533

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, March 31, 1990.

Light truck fuel economy standards are required to be set at least 18 months prior to the beginning of the Model Year.

Abstract: In accordance with the mandatory requirements of Section 502(b) of the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act, this rulemaking will establish light truck average fuel economy standards for Model Year 1992 and later years. This action is considered significant because of the impact on manufacturers, the interest shown by consumers, and the potential significant effects on the automotive marketplace.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392 National Traffic & Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966; 15 USC 1407 National Traffic & Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.121; 49 CFR 571.105

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Proposed action would establish a new brake standard for all trucks, buses, and trailers with a Gross Vehicle Weight Rating (GVWR) over 10,000 pounds. This standard would replace Standard No. 121, Air Brake Systems, and that portion of Standard No. 105, Hydraulic Brake Systems, that applies to vehicles with a GVWR over 10,000 pounds. It would also establish new requirements for heavy trailers having other than air-actuated brakes. In developing the standard, the agency will consider compatibility with international regulations. Research programs in support of this new standard and possible future upgradings of the standard will investigate such long-term advanced braking system concepts as antilock systems, automatic brake adjustors, load-sensing proportioning values, air driers, and retarders for heavy trucks, buses, and trailers. This rule is considered significant because of the level of public and Congressional interest. It is necessary to prevent and reduce the severity of accidents involving heavy vehicles by providing increased accident avoidance capability.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.105; 49 CFR 571.135

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Action proposes a New Standard No. 135, "Passenger Car Brake System," which would replace Standard No. 105, "Hydraulic Brake System," as it applies to that vehicle type. New Standard would differ from the existing one primarily in that it contains a revised and shortened test procedure based on a draft harmonized international procedure developed by the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (ECE). This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest; in light of comments received, a second SNPRM will be issued.

Abstract: The purpose of this notice is to announce that the NHTSA is considering the proposal of requirements for light trucks, vans, and, multipurpose passenger vehicles intended to reduce the risk of fatalities and injuries in side impacts and other crashes where the side protection of the vehicle is a relevant factor, and to request comments to assist the agency in developing the proposal. The contemplated requirements would be part of the agency's efforts to address the serious problem of side impacts. As another part of those efforts, the agency proposed requirements for passenger cars intended to reduce the risk of injuries to the thorax and pelvis in side impact crashes between vehicles. (RIN 2127-AB86.) This rulemaking is considered significant because of the public safety implications.

Abstract: Many injuries occur to school age children when drivers of other vehicles do not see the children or the school bus as the children are approaching or leaving a school bus. An average of 13 fatalities per year were reported resulting from pedestrians being struck by vehicles other than the school bus as they are approaching or leaving the school bus. The objective of this proposed project is to develop a new motor vehicle safety standard that will require installation of stop signal arms on all new school buses as recommended in the National Research Council's report "Improving School Bus Safety." Stop signal arms are stop signs with flashing red lights that extend from the left side of the school bus when it stops to load or unload students. This will probably necessitate additional equipment and possibly more training for some drivers. This action is significant because of substantial public interest, and possible Federalism implications.

Abstract: This action is designed to help prevent school buses from running over children by improving mirrors and other items. This will probably necessitate more mirrors on the school buses, resulting in added cost for this additional equipment. Some drivers will need additional training. This is significant because of of substantial public interest, and possible Federalism implications.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 23 USC 401

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 1325

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation will implement an improved National Driver Register (NDR), the purpose of which is to assist chief driver licensing officials of participating States in exchanging information regarding the motor vehicle driving records of individuals. The objective is to prevent the issuance of driver's licenses to individuals whose licenses to operate a motor vehicle have been withdrawn or denied, especially those convicted of drunk driving. By participating in the NDR, State Driver licensing officials may better identify problem drivers and deny them access to the nation's highways, thus making them safer. Annual cost to the Government will be between $5 and $7 million. This action is considered significant because of the impact on transportation safety.

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard (FMVSS) No. 301 specifies requirements for the integrity of motor vehicle fuel systems so that fires that result from fuel spillage during and after motor vehicle crashes may be reduced. This standard applies to passenger cars and school buses, and to multipurpose passenger vehicles, trucks, and buses that have a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less. The California Highway Patrol (CHP) petitioned the agency to specify requirements in FMVSS No. 301 to reduce fuel spills from the fuel tank or fuel lines on heavy trucks and truck tractors over 10,000 pounds. The fuel spills, according to the CHP, are due to damage caused by road debris. On May 2, 1988, the agency published a grant of petition for rulemaking in the Federal Register for the CHP petition. However, the agency is granting the petition pending the results of its forthcoming investigation of fuel-tank fires in over-the-road trucks.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401; 15 USC 1403; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.105

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 105 requires vehicles to have a brake failure indicator lamp which illuminates upon a failure within the brake system. This failure may be the result of a gross loss of pressure (Par. S5.3.1(a)) or a drop in the level of brake fluid in any master cylinder reservoir compartment to less than a specified safe level (S5.3.1(b)). The standard does not specify which mode of failure must be specified. This mode selection is left to the choice of the manufacturers. A petition from Mr. Sinclair Buckstaff, Transamerica Consultant Engineers (Buckstaff) requests that a loss of pressure indicator be made mandatory with a fluid level loss indicator to be optional (preferably mandatory) also, along with the pressure failure indicator. Buckstaff maintains a master cylinder internal failure can occur wherein no failure indication would ever occur if only a fluid level loss indicator were installed on the vehicle.

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 106 requires hoses, end fittings, and hose assemblies, except under limited circumstances, to be marked in a manner providing source identification for the hose, fitting, or assembly. Paragraphs S12 and S13 provide two exceptions. Paragraph S12 exempts "assemblies" from individual labelling of the "components." The "assembly" must still be labeled as specified in the appropriate paragraphs S5.2, S7.2, and S9.2. Paragraph S13 exempts hoses, fittings, and assemblies, if each or all are installed in a vehicle to which the standard applies (i.e., new vehicles, factory assemblies) from the individual requirements for labelling these components or assemblies. Rulemaking is to be initiated to clarify these requirements as they apply to the labelling of components or assemblies which use "reusable" fittings. A conflict may exist as to whether these materials with "reusable" components are considered to be "assemblies."

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401; 15 USC 1403; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.116

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 106 requires that brake fluids classified as type DOT-5 be colored purple. Mr. Frank Haynes, Bendix-France (Haynes) and others have petitioned for rulemaking concerning the requirements as to color coding, pH value, and chemical stability for DOT-5 nonsilicone brake fluids. Petitioners requested these new types be differentiated from the silicone fluids.

2045. ● STANDARD 216; ROOF CRUSH RESISTANCE - LIGHT TRUCKS, VANS, AND MULTIPURPOSE PASSENGER VEHICLES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 1.50; 49 CFR 571.216

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The purpose of this notice is to announce that the agency is considering extending the roof crush resistance requirements of the standard to cover light trucks, vans, and multipurpose vehicles (MPVs). This rulemaking is intended to reduce the risk of fatalities and injuries in rollover accidents and other crashes where the roof crush resistance of the vehicle is a relevant factor.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1401; 15 USC 1403; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.109; 49 CFR 571.119; 49 CFR 571.120

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In the agency's safety standards applicable to new pneumatic tires for use on motor vehicles, there are listings of standardization organizations whose publications of specifications are accepted under the standards as means for determining appropriate rim sizes on which to mount the tire during testing, and for providing other tire and rim technical data. The agency has received a petition requesting changes to these listings. The Tyre and Rim Association of Australia has asked that their name be added to the list of standardization organizations.

2051. ● AIR-BRAKE SYSTEMS; PNEUMATIC TIMING REQUIREMENTS

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposes to require for towing vehicles that actuation at the interface between towing vehicles and trailers must be at least as fast as actuation at the towing vehicle brake chambers. It also proposed requirements for towing trailers to ensure that the relay booster valves used on these trailers do not upset brake balance between vehicles in a combination.

2052. + CRASHWORTHINESS RATINGS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1401; 15 USC 1941

CFR Citation: 49 CFR Chapter 5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would require manufacturers to disseminate crashworthiness performance information concerning their cars to the public, to provide consumers with comparative information on the crashworthiness performance of new car models. This rulemaking is considered significant because of the impact on manufacturers, the interest shown by consumers, and the potential significant effects on the automotive marketplace.
